Land owned through secret trust

Domas casts no vote on brother's zoning

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Zoning Board member Roman Domas abstained from "discussing, deliberating and voting" Tuesday night on the requested rezoning of property owned by his brother through a secret land trust.

The property in question, on Dundee Road west of the Wildwood Apartments, is proposed for a Ponderosa Steak House. The Cook County State's Attorney's Office is involved in an investigation of the property and the secret land trust which owns it.

The investigation reportedly centers on possible conflicts of interest involving secret land trusts. Several Wheeling officials have been subpoenaed to testify before a county grand jury on the matter. Those scheduled to testify Wednesday include Village Mgr. George Passolt, Plan Commission Chairman Herbert Lortz and village surveyor Thomas Popke.

"I HAVE REASON to believe I am related to a party involved with this property," Domas said Tuesday, referring to the fact that his brother Lambert is involved with a secret land trust which owns the property.

Other beneficiaries of Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank Trust 834 include Popke and his partner John Marnul.

Under questioning by Frank Wojek, zoning board chairman, Domas said he had no interest in the property. "I have no financial (interest), I have no hidden (interest), I have nothing that is involved with this piece of property," Domas said.

When asked if he had a silent partner with interest in the parcel, Domas said "I don't have a silent partner or a live partner. It's just unfortunate that people who do purchase property, who do happen to be related, I can't tell them not to purchase property here."

IN REMOVING himself from the matter, Domas forced the continuation of hearings on the proposed Ponderosa. Since only four zoning board members attended the Tuesday hearing, Domas' action left the board without a quorum because less than a majority of members were present. The hearing was continued to Sept. 10.

Disclosure of the trust beneficiaries came after plan commission members said that while the zoning was requested

Special meeting tonight on school board aspirants

A special meeting of the School Dist. 21 Board of Education is set for tonight to interview applicants for the seat on the school board recently vacated by Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Reid resigned her post after nearly nine years on the school board to take a job with the district as public relations and volunteer coordinator.

Dist. 21 serves Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Seven residents had applied for the available school board seat by last Thursday, the deadline set for accepting applications. Supt. Kenneth Gill, however, said applications also will be taken until tonight's meeting, so others may indicate an interest in the position.

Residents who submitted letters of interest last week were Gerald McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Mary Arlene Weil, 824 Ivy Ct., A. M. Mansukhani, 24 St. Armand Ct., all of Wheeling; Susan Tripp Rose, 175 Timber Hill Rd. and Janet Grass, 331 Cottonwood Rd., both of Buffalo Grove; and Arnold Drobny, 3230 Volz Dr. and Jeanne Peters, 2413 E. Dundee Rd., both of Arlington Heights.

The special meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the administration building. The interviews will be open to the public.

The School Board must appoint Mrs. Reid's replacement by Aug. 24 or the county superintendent will call a special election. The appointee will serve until the regular school board election next April.

Disclosure of secret land trusts left to commissions

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said individual commissions will have to decide whether to call for the disclosure of beneficiaries of all secret land trusts involved in village reviews.

Previously, Passolt maintained that the village would only seek disclosure from those trusts that applied for zoning changes, special use permits, building permits or licenses.

Citing recent state legislation, Passolt said the law only requires disclosure by those trusts seeking official village action.

In several instances, however, this approach allowed contract purchasers to apply for zoning and planning reviews. Thus, the actual owners of the property who would also benefit by the village action were never disclosed.

THE PLAN COMMISSION recently exceeded previous village policy on disclosure and called for the names of persons involved in a trust which owns property proposed for a Ponderosa Steak House. Although contract purchaser Bernard Kron applied for the zoning change, the plan commission said it wanted to know who owned the land and would benefit by the rezoning.

The disclosure revealed a possible conflict in which zoning board member Roman Domas would be asked to vote on property owned by his brother through a secret land trust. Domas has avoided that conflict by removing himself from any discussion or vote on the Ponderosa rezoning.

Passolt said he now expects the plan commission to require disclosure of all trusts involved in a planning review. "It's my impression that the plan commission will ask it every time," he said.

THE MANAGER said he is unsure what position the zoning board will take, but added its commissioners have the prerogative to demand such disclosure.

Noting that the village could not enforce any demand for disclosure by trusts not seeking official village action, Passolt said that he is unsure if the village policy should be changed.

"Where the contract purchaser is the petitioner, we could ask, but they are not under any obligation to tell us," he said, noting that the commissions could only refuse to vote on a project. "I'm sure we can require it although I do not think of that as something that is essential to know when approving a project."

Passolt said he has not considered changing village policy on disclosure. "At this point I haven't really determined yes, no or maybe," he said.

ALEX JANOWSKI likes to keep an eye on where he's going even when it's backwards off the diving board at the Wheeling Park District's outdoor swimming pool in Chamber of Commerce Park on N. Wolf Road.

Special education program expands

Special services for handicapped children in School Dist. 21 are being expanded this year to include a new class for intermediate students with serious learning disabilities.

The self-contained class will be added to a similar class set up last year for primary students at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove. Children from other areas of the district will be bused to Longfellow to participate in the special classes.

Besides Buffalo Grove, Dist. 21 serves Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

The new intermediate learning disabilities (LD) class is intended to accommodate children in the upper elementary grades who have previously been sent to Summit School near Elgin, according to Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 director of special services. Summit School specializes in teaching children with learning disabilities.

Wynn defined learning disabilities as basically neurological problems that cause children to have trouble taking in information and processing or communicating it accurately.

For example, he said, some children with a learning disability perceive images that are backward or upside down or hear sounds that are scrambled.

IN PROVIDING a special LD class for intermediate children as well as primary youngsters, Wynn said it is hoped that teachers will be able to correct the students' problems or at least, help them to cope with the difficulties well enough to be able to participate in regular junior high school classes.

"The goal of much of our special education program in the district is early identification so that teachers can work with the children to remediate their difficulties or the child can be taught ways to adapt learning procedures to his problems that will allow him to get back in the regular classroom as soon as possible," Wynn said.

Although the primary and intermediate LD classes are self-contained, Wynn said there is a high priority placed on integrating children in the classes as much as possible with the rest of their classmates in art, physical education and other activities.

"Children recognize when they're receiving special treatment and it's a better climate for them if they have as much contact with regular classes as possible," he said.

RESOURCE LD teachers are available in all 17 Dist. 21 schools and at area high schools as well for children with continuing problems that affect them throughout their school careers.

According to Wynn, another reason for setting up the intermediate LD class is to provide the necessary special instruction for children in the upper elementary grades moving into the district.

Parents of children known to have or whom they suspect of having one or more learning disabilities should contact the Dist. 21 special services office at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

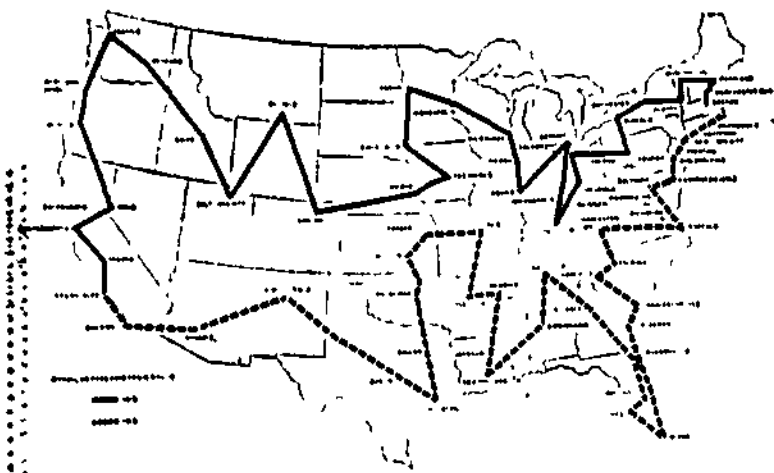

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

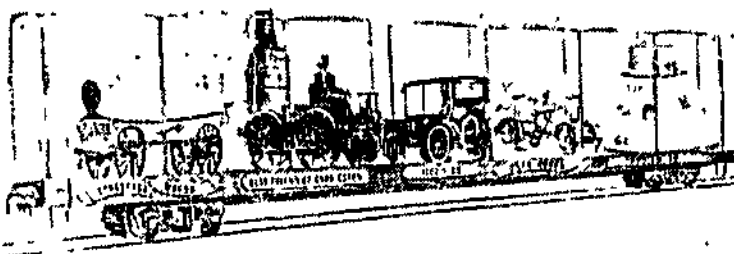

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said,

Charge Turkey broke new cease-fire

From United Press International
Turkish forces shelled two Greek Cypriot villages west of the Turkish-held port of Kyrenia after daybreak Wednesday despite the new cease-fire ordered into effect on the island during the night, a United Nations spokesman said.

The shelling apparently came from Turkish warships, the spokesman said, and it drove off Greek Cypriot National Guardsmen in the area. The villagers themselves had fled days ago.

The spokesman named the two villages as Karavas and Laphos, both about 10 miles west of Kyrenia.

It was the first significant violation alleged by the U.N. peacekeeping force since the new cease-fire went into effect, though earlier Wednesday the provisional president of Cyprus, Glafkos Clerides, had protested that the Turkish invasion force had seized new territory in violation of the truce.

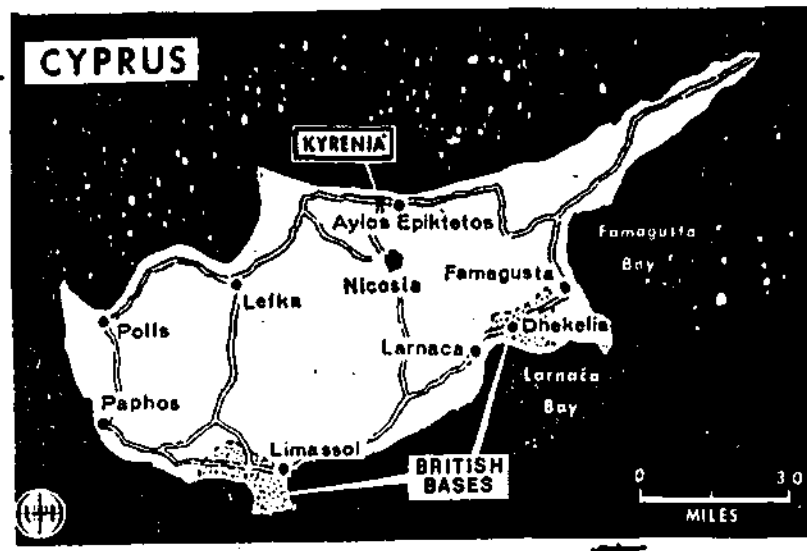

Clerides charged that Turkish troops had driven into new positions on both sides of Kyrenia. A U.N. spokesman said Maj. Gen. Prem Chand of India, the U.N. commander, was "looking into the matter."

The new cease-fire, the second in eight days, went into effect just before midnight Tuesday Cyprus time when the foreign ministers of Turkey, Greece and Britain, urged on by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, signed a preliminary Cyprus peace agreement in Geneva.

The agreement did not specifically require the Turks to remove their 30,000-man invasion force though it provided for an eventual reduction of all foreign troops on the island — meaning Greeks as well as Turks.

It required Greek regular and Greek Cypriot troops to withdraw from Turkish villages they have occupied, but it contained no similar provision for Turkish troops. The agreement was widely viewed as a victory for Turkey and even as a de facto partition of the island.

Much more negotiating lay ahead. The Greek, Turkish and British foreign ministers meet again in Geneva Aug. 8 to work out the political details. They will be joined two days later by the leaders of the Greek Cypriot provisional president and the Turkish Cypriot vice president of Cyprus.

TURKISH FORCES shelled two Greek Cypriot villages west of the Turkish held port of Kyrenia Wednesday, despite the cease-fire on the island.

Nixon hints no debate impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is considering asking the House to impeach him without debate and move the case swiftly to Senate trial, White House spokesmen said Wednesday. Some conservative House Republicans branded the idea "offensive" and "a copout."

Nixon also made a claim of executive privilege regarding half of the 20 tape recordings he surrendered to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Tuesday under Supreme Court order, urging Sirica to keep portions of those tapes secret. Presidential lawyers also revealed Wednesday that a gap of more than five minutes exists in one of the tape conversations.

The White House spokesman stressed Nixon has made no decision on the plan for shutting the impeachment case through the House and they seemed to disagree on how seriously he is considering it. But their comments were the first public indication that Nixon might consider his case lost in the House.

The plan met with opposition from all 10 of the conservative Judiciary Committee Republicans as well as from Democratic House members, who said they would insist impeachment be fully debated.

Meanwhile, 10 Republicans on the Judiciary Committee agreed Wednesday to oppose a rule that would bar the full House from amending the three proposed articles of impeachment.

The Republicans, whom ranking GOP member Edward Hutchinson of Michigan described as his "10 stalwarts" for their consistent anti-impeachment stand, caucused less than 12 hours after the committee completed final action Tuesday night on the proposed articles.

Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., said they reached a consensus to fight the rule for full House consideration proposed by Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., and the House leadership. Under that rule, the 435 House members could add to the articles or eliminate them, but no amendments would be allowed.

Dennis said the 10 committee Republicans apparently want to bar the full House from proposing any more articles, but they would allow amendments and motions to strike an entire article.

Impeachment supporters fear that the articles could be seriously weakened by amendments in the House, thus crippling prosecution in the Senate.

It is anticipated that House debate will begin between Aug. 15 and 19 and be limited to between 60 and 100 hours. Counsel John M. Doar has been instructed to complete the final Judiciary Committee report to the House by next Tuesday.

Economic recovery plan urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., Wednesday proposed a six-point plan for economic recovery, charging that President Nixon's policies offer only high interest rates, tight money and slow growth.

Bentsen, a first-term senator and a possible contender for the presidential nomination, was chosen by Democratic congressional leaders to reply to Nixon's address on the economy last week.

In his televised speech, Bentsen outlined what he called a "workable program for economic recovery" including three immediate steps and three longer-term goals.

He urged decisive action to channel loan money to the neediest and most productive industries, such as housing, and said Nixon should urge leading institutions to hold back on ones that do not contribute to the production of items in short supply.

He urged Nixon to immediately establish a cost of living task force to keep track of price increases and wage settlements and to provide guidance to business and labor on what is best for the nation.

The third short-term proposal, Bentsen said, was to "step up our efforts to rein in federal spending."

As long-term goals, Bentsen proposed reform of the tax system, an action plan to increase productivity in business and industry, and a call for the administration to "put its own economic house in order."

Ehrlichman sentenced in Ellsberg case

From Herald news services
Still protesting his innocence and predicting ultimate exoneration, John D. Ehrlichman Wednesday became the seventh former White House aide to be sentenced to prison.

Ehrlichman, President Nixon's former chief domestic affairs adviser, drew a 20-month-to-five-year term from U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, who said it would have been "far more severe" if not for other affirmative aspects of Ehrlichman's life.

Ehrlichman and three others were found guilty of the break-in at the Los Angeles office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, the psychiatrist who treated Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg. Ehrlichman also was convicted of lying to the Watergate grand jury about the incident.

Of his fellow conspirators — all also convicted in the Watergate burglary — G. Gordon Liddy was given a one-to-three year sentence to run concurrently with his Watergate term and Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez were placed on probation for three years.

Before sentencing, Ehrlichman told Gesell, "I believe I'm the only one who really knows whether I am guilty and, your honor, I am innocent of each and every count."

Gesell replied, "You are a lawyer. You held the position of highest public trust... the Constitution was ignored, the rights of citizens were abused and falsehoods and concealments were employed."

In another Washington courtroom, Harold S. Nelson — former general manager of the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. — pleaded guilty to conspiracy in a long list of alleged illegal corporate campaign contributions by the nation's largest milk cooperative.

Among the charges were donations to the 1968 presidential campaign of former Vice President Hubert Humphrey and the bribery of former Treasury Secretary John Connally to influence federal milk price supports — a charge on which Connally was indicted Monday.

'Big 3' profits lowest in years

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. reported first-half profits Wednesday that helped plunge the "Big Three's" January-to-June earnings to their lowest level in 13 years.

Overall, General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp. and Ford reported profits for the first half slumped 70.8 per cent to $746 million.

Ford said its first-half profits fell 61.5 per cent with earnings of $291, or $3.11 a share, compared with $755 million, or $7.57 a share, for its first half of 1972. First six month sales totaled $11.4 billion, down about 8 per cent from last year's $12.4 billion.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Federal Trade Commission accused Ford and Chrysler of making false claims of fuel economy in advertisements for their cars during the height of the gasoline shortage last winter.

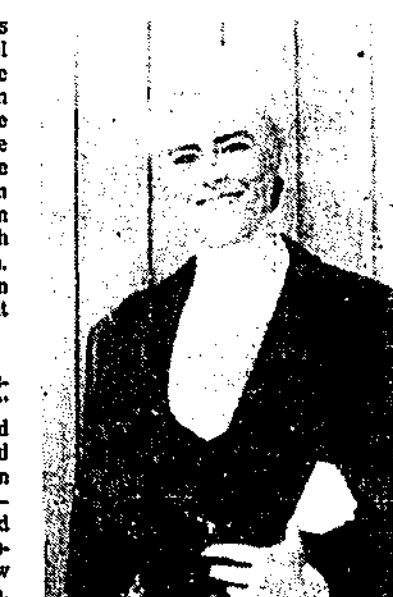

The agency said a similar complaint was made against General Motors but the company had signed an agreement pledging to discontinue such advertising, whereas Ford and Chrysler are fighting the complaints against them.

Gold-ownership bill passes House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday passed and sent to President Nixon a bill that would permit Americans to buy, own and trade gold for the first time since the 1930 Great Depression era.

The measure slipped through the House with no debate and on a voice vote after the House accepted a Senate amendment providing that no existing law can conflict with private ownership of gold.

The gold clause was included in a bill to extend for three years U.S. participation in the International Development Association. U.S. contributions totaling $1.5 billion over the three years are authorized for IDA, which makes loans to developing countries.

THE MOVEMENT to restore private ownership of gold to U.S. citizens was a pet project of local Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, who fought for the legislation and saw it rebuffed in previous sessions of Congress.

The measure provides that unless ordered earlier by Nixon, private ownership of gold shall be permissible after Dec. 31, 1974.

Nixon was voted authority by Congress last year to permit such ownership but has not used the authority.

Treasury Secretary William Simon recently said he had recommended to Nixon the issuance of such permission and anticipated Nixon would act soon.

Private ownership of gold was ended by congressional decree at the request of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his sweeping first-term legislative package to combat the Great Depression.

Since that time only jewelers, the medical profession and rare-coin collectors have been allowed to buy or own gold.

While waiting for board chairman

RTA has a set of 'temporary' problems

by STEVE FORSYTH
A news analysis

In a sea of transportation woes, the Regional Transportation Authority Board is adrift in a small boat without any rudder.

While transportation proposals and carrier failure threats rise and fall like the ocean's waves, the eight board members are ignoring them and searching for the ninth member, the "rudder."

The board stance on that issue perhaps should not be criticized, because anything but care in selection of the chairman would be irresponsible. However, every small step the board has been able to take has been predicated with the word "temporary."

Awaiting the magic charms of a chairman who will guide the RTA straight and true while appeasing the Chicago and suburban members alike, the board is afraid to do anything permanent.

TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN Joe Tecson has overseen selection of a "temporary" secretary, "temporary" treasurer and assistant treasurer, adoption of a "temporary" set of rules of board conduct, selection of "temporary" counsel, and "temporary" policies for investment of RTA funds. The board continues to meet in "temporary" quarters with no discussion of a permanent site, and has temporary banks for deposit of funds.

Some of the temporary measures may have been necessary under the questionable future of the RTA until resolution of the constitutional challenge to its existence, but that is passed.

Instead of laying down permanent foundations upon which the RTA can build rapidly once the elusive chairman has been found, the board is leaving everything in a state of flux, waiting for that all-knowing, guiding hand.

Tecson said the effort is intentional, because they don't want to saddle the new chairman with existing rules and procedures. He overlooks the fact that the eight present members were appointed by elected public officials, and have more basis for their actions than any chairman will.

THE MEMBERS ARE in no hurry to tackle the tough job of transportation in the city and suburbs, even though federal, state and local plans relative to regional transportation are forging on without the guidance, and in some cases without much knowledge, on the part of the RTA board.

More realistic than Tecson's explanation is that the board may be incapable of carrying on much business without the help of the ninth member as a tie-breaker. Despite rhetoric about the common concerns of the board and a lack of partisan city-suburb action, the voting has been conspicuously partisan recently.

At the board's last meeting, three resolutions were defeated by 4-4 votes, evenly split between Chicago and suburban members, although the issues had little to do with either. The city members defeated a motion requiring at least five votes, evenly split between Chicago and suburban members, although the issues had little to do with either. The city members defeated a motion requiring at least five votes for any board action, and they defeated another similar proposal to vary from Robert's Rules of Order. A proposal to urge Gov. Daniel Walker to veto a particular RTA amendment also was voted down by the city contingent.

BEHIND THE CLOSED doors of the board's numerous executive sessions to search and interview for the chairman, the talk must be similar. The four city members are probably looking for a weak link on the suburban side of the table, with a standoff if they don't succeed. Rumors of that kind of pressure have leaked out of the board in recent weeks.

Any person interviewing for the position must find it difficult to please eight persons when they know the biases of the board members. How does a person promise fairness, while hinting to the city members that he sides with the city and suggests to the suburban members that he leans in their direction?

The decision on a chairman is all the more crucial, however, because of the board's aversion or inability to act without him.

Old Guard units never die—they just fade away

by JOE SWICKARD

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday ending the unit's 53-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of confrontation between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, state adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hanger used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fatigues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Caen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Janas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinelli, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed tatters.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

As an officer walked out to the ceremony, he remarked, "This is the last of the 202nd. Sort of like Custer's last stand."

He was asked if it didn't more closely resemble the British leaving India. He chuckled, "Yes it does at that."

Phone bills might be higher in September

Some Wheeling area residents may see increases in their telephone bills beginning in September, due to proposed new rates for local area service.

Because of an increase in telephone use in the Wheeling area, Illinois Bell has asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to change some basic telephone service rates for residents with 459, 537 and 541 telephone number prefixes.

The proposed rates would become effective Aug. 28.

Increases in the monthly telephone bills of Wheeling residents affected by the change will range from 25 to 30 cents for individuals and $1 to $1.75 for businesses. There will be no increase for customers with metropolitan service.

Two lanes of Dundee Road ready

Two lanes of Dundee Road have been completed and state officials said traffic will be shifted to the new pavement later this week or early next week.

Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways said Wednesday workmen have put in approximately 6,000 feet of pavement during the last week.

The work was done following a two-month strike by cement and material truck drivers. The strike seriously set back progress on the road, Sifrer said.

Sifrer expressed confidence that the project will be completed this year. Completion of the project, he said, will depend on the weather and availability of construction materials.

The project consists of widening Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 83, through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Now that two lanes are completed, Sifrer said, traffic can be shifted from the battered existing lanes to the new pavement. The shift will make traveling on the road much safer, he said.

Before work starts on the last two lanes of Dundee Road, Sifrer said workers will replace 900 feet of pavement on Arlington Heights Road, adjacent to Buffalo Grove High School. The pavement has been in disrepair for quite some time and was recently closed to traffic.

After the repairs are made, the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads will be connected. Both roads were realigned where they intersect Dundee Road.

Zoners oppose apartments in single-family area

Residents in a cluster of single-family homes just west of Elmhurst Road will not have to share their neighborhood with apartment dwellers if the Wheeling Zoning Board's recommendations are upheld by the village board.

The zoning board unanimously voted against three 12-unit apartment buildings proposed for property on Edward Street, just west of the First Baptist Church of Wheeling.

Zoning board members Ronny Potter, Hugh Sommerfeld and Ed Slepicka were absent from the meeting Tuesday.

Residents from both the unincorporated area adjacent to the proposed apartments and from nearby sections of the village turned out to protest the proposed intrusion of apartments in their area.

Noting the large three quarter-acre lots, residents said that the apartments would set a precedent for more multi-family dwellings in the neighborhood. They said the apartments would also reduce their privacy, lead to increased traffic problems and worsen an already existing vandalism problem caused by the proximity to Wheeling High School.

"I LIKE WHAT is up there now," one resident said of the neighborhood. "I don't want to see it change."

Contract purchaser Harvey Tonn argued that the neighborhood needed such development to bring village water and sewer lines into the area. He said it would be too expensive to build single-family houses because of the need for water and sewer.

Tonn said the buildings would be high quality construction and would include only two-bedroom apartments.

Zoning board members Roman Domas and Frank Wojcik, however, criticized Tonn for not having sufficient information to support his petition. They noted that Tonn had not contacted School Dist. 21, the pastor of the Baptist Church, the fire chief, and had further failed to get information on the installation of water and sewer lines.

"This proves again the petition is not prepared coming in on a re-zoning," Domas said.

COMR. NEIL BRANT said he objected to the apartments because the neighborhood "is a little enclave pretty well isolated unto itself."

"I feel we are getting in the area of spot zoning here," Brant said. "I'm not really sure I like it."

Comr. Alan Martin said residents in the area are satisfied with well and septic facilities and do not need the water and sewer lines that would be brought in by Tonn. Residents said that more single family homes can be built under the current county zoning by using well and septic systems.

The zoning board's recommendations will be sent to the village board for final action.

Zoners tied on advice for industrial park project

Members of the Wheeling Village Board will have to decide whether to approve zoning for a proposed industrial park at the northwest corner of Hintz and Wolf roads without a clear recommendation from the zoning board.

With little indication of their reasons, zoning board members tied 2-2 in voting whether to recommend approval for the project. Alan Martin and Neil Brant voted in favor of the zoning while Roman Domas and Frank Wojek opposed it.

The vote came about 2 a.m. Wednesday after nearly three hours of discussion on Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regulations controlling obstacles to Pal-Waukee Airport flight patterns.

Zoning board members expressed concern that the FAA had no power to actually control obstacles built in the path of Pal-Waukee take-offs and landings. Domas noted that if zoning for the park is approved, the village has no assurance that the buildings will not be a safety hazard.

Doyle Hegland of the FAA noted that such buildings have been built south of the airport on Palatine Road, and pilots landing at Pal-Waukee now must take special precautions to avoid them.

OTHER PROBLEMS associated with the project proposed by Wheeling Partnership include poor soil conditions and a high water table that will make construction difficult.

A Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District report warned that these conditions would create severe construction problems for foundations and paving. "Foundations, streets, parking lots and sidewalks on them (the soils) are subject to cracking and heaving," the report states.

A soils expert testifying for the developers, however, said that special construction methods would make the site buildable. These methods include the sinking of special foundations to more solid soils and the reworking or replacement of soils for paving work.

The conservation district has also cautioned that the development might have an adverse effect on the Wheeling Drainage Ditch, which borders the northern edge of the 41.8-acre site. The report states that erosion could result from potential tree removal and runoff from the industrial park could pollute the creek.

THE SITE is separated from the Foxboro Apartments on the northeast by the creek. Developer Sigmund Lefkowitz, who was involved in the Foxboro project, is a partner in the industrial park proposal.

The property is now owned by Theodore and Marion Meier. Developers have testified that Acco International, a firm that makes office supplies, plans to build its headquarters in the park. The park will be expanded as other industries become interested in the site.

Accused cop agrees to lie detector test

by JOE FRANZ

Sgt. Frank Harth of the Buffalo Grove Police Dept., one of the sergeants accused of misconduct by former patrolman Floyd Merenkof, has agreed to take a polygraph (lie detector) test to clear himself, The Herald has learned.

Police Chief Harry Walsh would not verify if Harth is the sergeant, saying only that the person who has agreed to take the test is the one accused by Merenkof with stealing merchandise from Scott's Store in the Buffalo Grove Mall.

Merenkof, however, told The Herald that Harth is the sergeant he accused of the theft at Scott's.

Harth was contacted Wednesday, but would neither confirm nor deny that he has agreed to take a polygraph exam-

Sgt. Frank Harth

since the alleged theft took place in February, 1971; the statute of limitations would prohibit prosecution of the sergeant.

In a joint statement released Tuesday, Walsh and Larson said all allegations made by Merenkof were investigated and are untrue.

Investigation by the police department, they said, failed to prove that a theft had taken place at Scott's. All it revealed was that the sergeant had taken two items which the store had discarded as trash, they said.

Walsh said many of Merenkof's allegations were based on "second hand information" and the alleged theft at Scott's occurred seven months before Merenkof joined the department.

ACCORDING TO THE statement, Merenkof was unable to furnish the department with information on the alleged theft "except that it occurred three years before."

Walsh said he would be reluctant to order any members of the department to take polygraph examinations unless those making the accusations also submit to the test.

Merenkof said he is also willing to take a polygraph test, but does not know whether some of his former colleagues would be willing to submit to the test.

TRUSTEE EDWARD OSMON last week asked that Walsh and all police department personnel take polygraph examinations because of Merenkof's allegations.

Merenkof was suspended from the department July 5 by Walsh who asked for his dismissal by the police and fire commission. The commission last Saturday reinstated Merenkof, but he submitted his resignation after the hearing.

Park board to weigh improvement projects

The Wheeling Park Board tonight is scheduled to review its progress on completing work promised in the $700,000 park improvements referendum approved by voters in December 1972.

The board will also receive a report from the recreation advisory committee, a citizens' group formed to provide community input into park programming.

Other scheduled discussion includes a review of a proposed fixed asset account for the district and the need for acoustical tile in the Indoor Neptune's Pool.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Heritage Park recreation building, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

ination. "I would rather not comment on that," he said. "The police department is conducting an investigation and I don't think it would be proper for me to say anything."

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson also refused to divulge the name of the sergeant, but said the officer volunteered to take the test. "He was not ordered to take the test," he said.

ACCORDING TO LARSON, the polygraph examination will be administered within the next 10 days. After it is completed, he said, the results will be turned over to the fire and police commission.

Larson said he does not know what action would be taken if the sergeant does not pass the test. "Whatever is done will be up to the fire and police commission because, myself, the village board and the police chief have no authority to act."

Walsh said, however, that results of the polygraph test would not be admissible as evidence in court. He also said

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Human side to Dwyer mess

One of the most difficult things about a situation like the controversy surrounding Dwyer School is that the human beings in the story seem to get lost in the charges.

Whether you are reading a news story or watching a 30-second film clip on television, there are some parts of the story that you can't see and hear. For example:

• You didn't hear the voice of an official in Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office, as the story first became public, say, "I'm really afraid for the (NEC) governing board now that this thing is public. They're going to have all kinds of trouble."

• You didn't hear the voices, obviously fearful, of the staff members who have made the charges against John Whipple, clinical director of Dwyer, as they begged, in the beginning, not to have their names used in the paper.

• You didn't see Whipple's face, troubled and yet surprisingly calm, as he talked to a reporter for the first time about the charges. And you couldn't hear his indignant tone when he replied to some of his charges he was hearing for the first time.

• You didn't, and never will, hear the voices of the parents who have called this office, some to complain about the program and some to praise it. And so you couldn't hear the reflections of their deep concern for their children and for the program.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

The public part of the story — the part you do read about and hear about — are the allegations that children have been mistreated and that staff members at Dwyer are unqualified. Instead you see Martwick waving a paddle for the benefit of television cameras while declaring that, "As long as I am superintendent of this county, there will be no child abuse." You read angry rebuttals from officials of the Northwest Education Cooperative who are investigating the charges. And, as time goes on, you will probably hear the carefully drawn statements of attorneys for both sides.

Since anyone who is following this story is probably wondering what is true and what is false, and is perhaps despairing because of his or her inability to see the faces and hear the voices directly, I can tell you if you talked to everyone involved in this controversy, you probably still wouldn't know what is true and what is false or what is right or wrong.

The case is not simple. Everyone, on all sides, sounds convincing when you talk to them up close. And in some cases charges and rebuttals almost balance each other — making it a "his word against mine" kind of situation. This paper has called editorially for a public hearing, so that both sides can be heard equally and cross-examined. That process would help clear up some of the clouds of confusion and contradiction that surround the issues.

Right now there are only a few things we can say for sure. We can say that a lot of people, present and former members of the Dwyer staff, dislike John Whipple and are making some extremely serious charges against him. We can say there is an investigation underway.

But there are very few other things we can say with assurance. There is one important thing we can remember, however. There are children in the Dwyer School program, children who need special help and attention.

Whatever the outcome of the current trouble, those children will still need help and attention. And we can hope that everyone involved, the NEC officials, Martwick, those making the charges and beleaguered John Whipple will remember that.

Harper has classes for high schoolers

Local high school students will receive high school credit this year by taking career courses at Harper College in Palatine.

Juniors and seniors in High School Districts 211, 214 and 220 may enroll in one of four programs: health occupations, engineering technology, computer concepts and programming and food service.

The career cooperative program between Harper and the high schools began in 1971 and has expanded in enrollment from 27 students to 72 students last year. The courses are designed to help students make decisions about their careers while they are still in high school.

Students interested in enrolling in the programs should see their counselor or contact the Harper dean of career programs, 397-3000, Ext. 307.

Briefly on business*State retail sales for month drop 2%

Illinois retail sales dropped 2 per cent in June compared to sales a year earlier, reports the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. this week. According to Hugh Muncy, IRMA president, "This is the first time since July, 1972 that monthly sales figures did not compete favorably with the previous year. However, looking at sales reports covering the first six months of 1974, retail sales for all merchandise lines were up 3 per cent over the same period of 1973."

Muncy used IRMA's sales comparison report for his reference. The survey of Illinois retailers indicates that specialty shops and food store sales rose 6 per cent in June compared with figures a year ago. Hardware, home appliance and home furnishings sales dropped and shoe retailers dropped 3 per cent and department stores sales declined 8 per cent.

Secretaries hit law firms

Law firms on trial: the Women Employed (WE) Secretaries Committee conducted a mock court session on Wednesday in Chicago. At the trial, law firms were accused of depriving secretaries of their rights. "They're the myth that legal secretaries are the elite of the secretarial profession," said Mary Catherwood, spokeswoman for the committee, "but when WE asked secretaries to rate their companies according to the WE Secretaries Bill of Rights last May, law firms received the worst ratings in the Loop." Poor benefits and lack of opportunities are among the problems cited by the group.

Oil floating interest rates

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, announced Tuesday it plans to offer $150 million in floating interest rate notes. The proposed offering of 15-year notes would tie interest rates to treasury bill yields. The oil company would pay at least 9.7 per cent through July 31, 1975 and then would adjust the rate twice a year to one per cent above the interest on 3-month Treasury bills. The proposal follows the successful offering by Citicorp in New York last week of floating rate notes.

C&NW income hit by seasonal weather

The Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. had consolidated net income of $4,035,000, or 91 cents a share and total operating revenues of $121,621,000 in the second quarter of 1974. In the 1973 second quarter, net income was $4,025,000, or 91 cents a share and operating revenues totaled $102,241,000.

North Western president Larry S. Provo said second quarter results were adversely affected by harsh spring and early summer weather throughout much of the railroad's territory.

Recycling utility poles eases national shortage

by LEA TONKIN

Old utility poles may never die, thanks to the ingenuity of engineer Walt Chapman at the Western Electric Central Region headquarters in Rolling Meadows.

Chapman hit on an idea for the recycling of wooden telephone poles that was recently used for the first time in a pilot program in northern Wisconsin. Based on the success of this trial run, says Ed Gilroy, resident buyer at WE in Rolling Meadows, the pole treating system may be used in Illinois and other states.

Gilroy said the recycling effort came in the wake of a new national shortage: utility poles. "Poles are very expensive and difficult to come by," said Gilroy, adding that wooden pole prices doubled within the past year. The central region purchased more than 21,000 new poles during 1973 and expects to need approximately that many this year. Central region buys materials for American Telephone and Telegraph affiliates in four states: Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan.

Most utility poles are southern yellow pine, said Gilroy. Tall, straight trees are becoming rare, while prices for competing wood productions are nudging pole-buyers out of the market. For example, a logger can net much greater profit by cutting a tree into two-by-fours compared to profit on a one-three-one pole system.

WHAT IS CENTRAL region doing about it? Gilroy said he plans to work with Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and utilities in Indiana and Michigan to set up a pole recycling program patterned after the pilot program in Wisconsin. "What they did in the past," said Gilroy, "when they pulled out poles to be replaced by putting cable underground or installing a microwave tower, was to give them to a farmer to use as a fence."

In the program administered by Wisconsin Telephone Co., engineering and plant personnel, contractors uprooted poles between Rhineland and Trough Lake, Wis., and carted them to C. M. Christiansen Co. in Phelps, Wis.

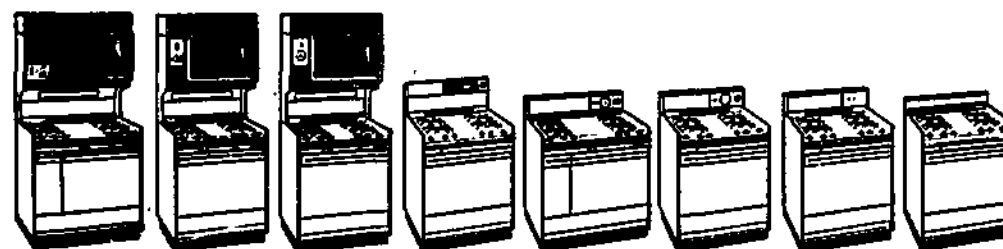

Poles treated with preservative at the Christiansen plant, "even after 20 or 30 years in the ground, in most cases come out good as new," Gilroy said.

The savings on pole costs and timber preservative usage is substantial, said Gilroy. Of the original pole sampling in Wisconsin, 88.3 per cent were recycled for another 30 years of service.

Asked about the gradual decline of wooden utility poles as a staple of the utility industries, Gilroy said, "We keep hearing that too. But there is a continuing need for them, mostly in rural areas... in Illinois you'll still see them along county roads."

Des Plaines River study nears end

A thorough field study of the Des Plaines River is nearing completion with the cooperation of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, state conservation department and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

A final written report on fish and plant life, water quality and characteristics of the river may be completed by December, according to Dave McGinty, fish biologist for the forest preserve district.

Several samples of fish and the river bottom have been sent to the EPA for extensive laboratory testing. The tests will disclose such things as presence of heavy metals in fish. McGinty's early reports indicate a wide variety of fish in the river, including some game fish species.

Job guide available to area's students

The Northwest Industrial Council, in cooperation with High School Dist. 214, is distributing 4,500 booklets to high school seniors throughout the Northwest suburbs giving them job information from 17 local companies.

Students in Dist. 214, as well as Dist. 207 and Dist. 211, may indicate interest in one or more companies by returning postcards printed on the booklet's back cover. The booklet also includes a sample letter of application and data sheet to aid the student in compiling a resume.

More financial aid for Harper students

THE HERALD

Thursday, August 1, 1974

Section 1 —13

More and more financial aid has been made available to students at Harper College from state, federal, local and college sources since the school began classes in 1967.

Scholarships, loans and monetary awards are offered by the State of Ill.

Harper to offer new degree program

Next year students at Harper College in Palatine can write their own college degree program and receive an associate degree in liberal studies.

The liberal studies program, which will be offered for the first time this fall, is an alternative to the traditional degree program. The student designs his own course of study with the approval of his faculty advisor. Only nine semester hours of liberal studies seminar credit are required.

Students interested in applying for admission to the liberal studies program must have an interview with program director Frank Christensen or a member of his staff. More information on the program is available through Christensen at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, 60067. Or phone 397-3000, Ext. 433.

Special programs provide aid for physically handicapped and for those whose primary language is not English. The federal government makes aid available through the basic opportunity grant, college work-study jobs, supplemental educational opportunity grants, and national direct student loans.

STUDENTS PLANNING careers in law enforcement or nursing are eligible for special federal programs, as are those whose families are receiving Social Security dependent allowances.

Both state and federal agencies disburse funds to eligible veterans who are college students. The Illinois Military Scholarship covers tuition for eligible veterans of World War I or anytime after Sept. 16, 1940. Federal GI Bill education benefits also provide financial assistance depending on the veteran's marital status and course load.

Many local community organizations and area businesses have made scholarships and loans available to Harper students. Harper College offers a number of scholarships and service awards. The college also has a short-term student loan fund and a special scholarship program for students who want to study abroad.

A packet of information on all financial aid programs may be obtained by writing The Office of Placement and Financial Aids, Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine 60067.

'I thought presidents were great men'

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

"Grampa, who was Richard Nixon?"
 "He was the 37th President of the United States."
 "When?"
 "Before you were born."
 "When?"
 "He started in 1968."
 "Geo. How long was he President?"
 "I don't remember for sure. It was either until 1973 or 1977."
 "Was he a bad President?"
 "I don't think that's the right word."
 "Was he a good President?"
 "A lot of people thought so."
 "Why do people still talk about him so much?"
 "Because he had a very big effect on all the presidents who came after him."
 "Why?"
 "Well . . . I guess you could say he taught them some things about how a president must act."

"Like what?"
 "I think that all the presidents since President Nixon have been very careful to try to treat people the right way."

"Is that why so many people say he was a good president?"

"Ahhh . . . no, not exactly, son. It's pretty complicated to explain. People liked President Nixon for other reasons."

"What?"

"Well, for one thing, America was in a very bad war when President Nixon was elected, and a lot of people were getting killed, and he was able to end that war."

"Right away? As soon as he got elected?"

"No. It took him several years, but he finally got it done, and everybody was a lot happier then."

"Was that the war with Russia?"

"No, we never had a war with Russia. It was with a country called Vietnam."

"I never heard of it. I thought we had a war with Russia."

"A lot of people were afraid we would. But President Nixon went and talked to the Russians, and after that it began to look like we wouldn't have to have a war with them."

"I thought he went to China."

"He did. And we never had to have a war with China, either."

"That was good, wasn't it?"

"Yes, that was very good."

"Why do some people think he was a bad president?"

"A lot of things happened during those years. There was a bunch of men who broke into a place called Watergate to steal some papers."

"Watergate? Is that in Ohio?"

"No. It was in the nation's capital."

"Did the President break into Watergate?"

"No."

"Then why did they blame him?"

"Some said he knew about it and didn't tell anybody."

"Grampa?"

"What?"

"You're not supposed to tattle."

"It's hard for a little boy to know the difference between tattling and standing by and letting somebody to something bad, son. But when you grow up, you'll be able to know the difference."

"What else did they say about him?"

"Some said he took money he shouldn't have to make the government do favors for certain people. Some say he used government money to buy things for himself."

"Is that like stealing?"

"Very much like it."

"If people think you steal, they don't trust you."

"Some people think that was the worst thing."

"Grampa?"

"Yes?"

"I thought presidents were great men."

"They are."

"Even President Nixon?"

"In some ways, even President Nixon."

"Grampa?"

"What, son?"

"I don't understand."

"Neither do I, son."

Herald opinion

House's 38 men, women are genuine U.S. heroes

Now is the time for Americans to search for heroes instead of villains, and if there are genuine American heroes at this moment of history, their names are Wiggins, Rodino, Hutchinson, Sandman, McClory, Rallsback, Cohen and the other 31 members of the House Judiciary Committee.

Compared to the shadowy figures who moved through White House corridors and who "stone-walled" before committees of inquiry, the members of the House committee who formulated the articles of impeachment on Richard M. Nixon are men and women who exhibit the soundness of the American system and who vindicate the rules of law.

Yes, there are members of the Judiciary Committee who are partisan and passionate, but the single impression which came from that historic setting is one of civilized debate — in the open and in front of a jury of television watchers.

Instead of a shameful occasion marking the repudiation of a President, the committee debate was a celebration of what is right with the American system and what is fundamentally wholesome about its citizens.

And this holds true for those opposed to the committee's findings and who are battling on the side of President Nixon. Representatives Sandman and Wiggins are the best of Nixon's defenders because they speak openly, they are alive and animated and they carry with them a basic respect toward their opponents.

Our sympathy and sense of compassion extends most to the two Illinois Congressmen on the committee: Robert McClory and Thomas Rallsback. Both are Republicans to the core who have found that their sense of propriety and appreciation for the laws of behavior forced them to vote for impeachment. Whatever anyone thinks of their findings, we must all know that what they did is causing them private agonies and profound disquiet.

Contrary to the White House view of the Judiciary Committee, we find the men and women of the committee to be honest representatives of American opinion. They are forthright in their motives and actions and their basic fairness to each other; they are troubled and at times angry.

They sought the truth and they have found it each in different ways and with different interpretations. But in watching them each day and evening on television it was clear they all share a common identity: they are us.

'Impeachment belongs to all citizens'

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — When Zachary Taylor was elected President to succeed James K. Polk the inauguration day in 1849 fell on Sunday. Taylor refused to take office on the Sabbath and so Congress was forced to elect an interim President for a day. A man named David Rice Atchison was named — and you could look it up.

As today's Congress prepares to debate impeachment, and as the American people hopefully prepare to eavesdrop, Atchison's historical footnote comes to memory. The story is that the events then were so hectic that he went to bed Saturday evening, bone-weary, asking not to be disturbed for any reason. His order was followed. He was not awakened until the following Monday. Thus President Atchison slept through his entire term of office.

In retrospect, it was of little consequence that citizen Atchison slumbered past his responsibility. The biggest thing happening in those days of America was the discovery of the hot air balloon. But now, more than a century later, in times of Constitutional, Presidential and governmental crises, the responsibilities of U.S. citizens seem more acute. Anyone who sleeps through the impeachment debate, that is, ignores it, is failing his nation and himself.

The framers of the Constitution did not intend for the public to be left entirely out of the impeachment process. True, they rejected the idea of a plebiscite in deciding an accused President's fate. Al-

Philip Kurland, a law professor at the University of Chicago and one of America's preeminent Constitutional authorities, puts it this way: "I don't believe we should expect legislators to be forced one way or another by their constituencies, but I do feel it proper for them to take constituency opinion into consideration."

There are, naturally, risks involved in an impeachment debate which includes public opinion. Kurland points out that impeachment is not a popularity contest, "that should be irrelevant," but worries that "stimulated correspondence" (mass mail campaigns) are bound to develop. Thus the sophisticated legislator should not — but may — be impressed by a colleague entering a "Petition of One Million" or some such into the record.

Similarly, adds Kurland, home district partisans are likely to form vicious block-vote groups which will threaten, and perhaps sway, congressional opinion their way.

But such is the stuff of democracy: lobbies. If industry is entitled to argue in Congress on tax laws, people may argue however they will on impeachment. Keep in mind that public pressure will not in anyway limit President Richard M. Nixon's legal rights, for, as Constitutional interpreter Joseph Story has written: "Impeachment is not so much designed to punish an offender, as to secure the State; it touches neither (a President's) person nor his property, but simply divests him of his political capacity." And so everything and anything is applicable in deciding the fitness of leadership.

It may be said that impeachment is too important to be left to the impeachers, Thus at this crucial dogleg of history, citizens must serve as a Greek chorus in the drama. Offstage, but still part of the act. Read the evidence. Hear the debates. And when you've made your personal decision, let your Congress, and your President, know.

Construction thefts remain a continuing suburban mystery

Lonely patrol works — attacks by vandals cut

by TOM VON MALDER

It's pretty lonely walking through a four-story condominium building that is little more than a shell, floors and wall studs.

Footsteps echo, a metal bar is dislodged or a piece of wood is kicked and, standing in one unit, a person can see through the not-yet-completed walls clear to the other end of the building.

Traveling through such a deserted building is part of the patrol duty at the Huntington Commons development, west of Elmhurst Road in southern Mount Prospect. Such patrol duty is very familiar to Patrolman Andrew Toth who heads up the guard duty detail.

During the last few months of 1972 and January of 1973, vandalism and petty thefts at Huntington Commons amounted to a loss of more than $5,000 for developers Kenroy Inc. of Skokie. An arrangement for off-duty Mount Prospect policemen to patrol the Kenroy property was made with then Police Chief Bert Giddens.

DURING THE winter months, when construction is at a virtual standstill, only two or three policemen are involved in the program. But in the summer months, their numbers rise to about eight and a total of 35 hours a week are put in.

The Huntington Commons situation is a bit different from other construction projects in that much of the development has been completed for some time. Thus, the men spend a large part of the patrol time cruising or walking through the occupied areas.

Other than checking for vandals who smash the globe lights which are everywhere, but particularly around the lake, and looking for swimmers who are not allowed at any time in the lake, much of Toth's time in the residential areas is spent talking with the residents, helping being in the buildings under construction. He said he also looks for vans that appear to be lingering in a construction area.

Toth has only made one arrest for theft in all the time he has patrolled Huntington Commons. He caught a man taking a piece of angle iron once.

The patrols have been successful, Toth said. "We have cut vandalism 60 per cent and the people feel a lot more secure when they know someone's in the area."

by STIRLING MORITA

Several two-by-fours, pipe fittings, rolls of shag-rug carpeting, rolls of copper wire and even an occasional gas stove vanish mysteriously from construction sites — a story not uncommon in the Northwest suburbs.

And who are the culprits, the ones who make valuable building materials disappear between working days? No one knows for sure. Except for arrests every now and then of children sneaking lumber for a homemade fort or a resident looking for material to re-do his basement, the thieves are unknown.

However, police in the area speculate, although there is no proof, that it is the construction workers who make off with equipment for a side job or some other use.

Local general contractors do not deny there are some small internal thefts but are quick to point out the thieves can be anybody, even a once "law abiding" citizen who was lured by the presence of free, unwatched materials at a nearby site.

MOST AREA police departments and a local insurance office report no major jump in construction site thefts this year. However, Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy thinks such thefts are on the increase in his village, which is teeming with new construction of single-family, apartment and office buildings.

Already this year, a high-rise office building near the Woodfield Shopping Center has been sacked for several thefts, each ranging in value from $1,000 to $5,000. Mallard West apartments on Roselle Road just south of Weathersfield Way has been hit for major thefts three times within a month.

Construction trailers for another development nearby were broken into recently, and nearly $6,400 worth of tools and equipment was reported stolen. Not counting thefts less than $1,000, the total reported stolen in seven major thefts totals at least $17,000 for 1974.

Mount Prospect police report for 1974 that through May total thefts amounted to about $3,540. Last year, about $2,070 worth of items were reported taken, but that figure did not include stolen appliances.

IN BUFFALO Grove, about $4,040 worth of materials was reported taken in 1973, but so far in 1974 only about $2,480 worth has been stolen.

Police in Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove report no substantial amount of thefts. In Palatine recently, someone made off with a cement mixer, valued at about $600.

Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell and Rolling Meadows Chief Lewis Case attribute lack of construction thefts to the recent slowdown in area construction spurred by strikes and the economic crunch.

Elk Grove Village Police Sgt. Ronald Iden says it is difficult to investigate construction site thefts because of the large number of people who normally are on the site legally. It is hard to determine when a theft is going on, he says.

LA. Mike Clark of Des Plaines police said that areas where equipment is

Stepped up nuclear plant inspections set

by LEA TONKIN

Stepped-up inspection schedule at the Dresden nuclear power station in downstate Illinois by the state Dept. of Public Health will result from the recent charge by consumer advocate Ralph Nader that the steel pressure vessels may be inadequate.

According to Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the public health dept., a regular quarterly inspection would have been made at the Dresden site within 10 days. "Pressure vessels (which surround the radioactive core) are not ordinarily included in the inspection," she said Wednesday. The public health dept. regularly checks radiation levels at nuclear power stations in Illinois, with the permission of Commonwealth Edison Co., at Dresden and other sites.

Dr. Lashof said the letter to Gov. Daniel Walker and several other state governors, calling attention to the possibility of a "catastrophic accident" prompted interest in the adequacy of pressure vessels at the Dresden station. If the department finds hazardous conditions at the plant it will "evaluate and consult" with the Atomic Energy Commission, she said. The AEC has jurisdiction over nuclear power plant operations.

White tigers popular

A unique pair of white tigers continue to enchant zoo-goers, report Brookfield Zoo officials in Brookfield. Mohini and Rewati arrived at the zoo last December on loan from the National Zoo in Washington, D. C. The females were accompanied by Brookfield's male Bengal tiger Poona, who was sent to the National Zoo in 1972 on breeding loan.

The cats were transferred to Lincoln Park pending completion of a new Lion House at the National Zoo.

Mohini, the first white tiger in the U. S., arrived at National Zoo in late 1960. Rewati is the offspring of Mohini. Most of the three dozen captive white tigers are in India. The white tigers are mutants of the orange Bengal cat — their greyish black stripes on a whitish coat are the result of genes which cause a reduction of pigment.

Auto pollution hearing set

Illinois Pollution Control Board will conduct a hearing on sulfur dioxide removal technology and proposed state regulations Friday in Chicago. The 10 a.m. session will be held at Room 605, Chicago Circle Campus, 750 S. Halsted St.

Illinois State Chamber of Commerce representatives, participants in the Friday session and in a previous hearing in Peoria, will conduct a conference at 9 a.m. in room 613 at Chicago Circle campus to explain their viewpoint. They include Wendell Miller of Illinois Power Co., Decatur; Jay Norco of Environmental Technology Assessment, Oak Brook; and Richard J. Kissel, a Chicago attorney, Illinois' proposed sulfur dioxide regulations are slated to take effect in June, 1975, prompting an enforced commitment to clean up by Illinois industry.

"We don't believe there is as pressing a need for the deadline as previously thought," said Jim Ahr, a state chamber spokesman. He said the questionable effect on health caused by sulfur emissions and the lack of proven technology to accomplish the cleanup job will be discussed by chamber representatives. Illinois coal interests stand to gain from a delay in enforcement of clean air standards, as the state's coal reserves are largely high in sulfur content.

Discuss 'waste to profit'

Turning waste into profit: It's among the topics to be discussed at the third International Pollution Engineering Congress and Exposition at Chicago's McCormick Place. The four-day exposition opens Sept. 9 and the congress will continue Sept. 9-11. Practical pollution control methods will be discussed at both sessions, with specific discussions of noise, safety and health and solid waste disposal. Among speakers at the congress will be Francis T. Mayo, administrator for region V, U. S. Environmental Protection Agency in Chicago.

Parents hit program for deaf children

since it offers a combination of various teaching methods.

THE PARENTS ALSO were concerned that their children were not being integrated properly into regular classrooms when possible. Wightman said that in the past orientation of regular classroom teachers has been poor, but that NSSEO is planning better orientation for regular teachers at the schools that house deaf programs. This will help include the children in the total school program. He said.

Parents also accused NSSEO of not having a planned curriculum or proper communication between teachers of the deaf children. They said material is repeated each year which results in their children standing still in their academics rather than moving forward.

Wightman said it is up to the administration of the district where the deaf program is located to make sure that the district's curriculum is being followed in special education classes as well as the regular classrooms. He said often the curriculum must be supplemented to accommodate deaf children's special needs.

Special speech therapists, learning disability teachers, psychologists, social workers and audiologists also are available for deaf children, he said. NSSEO is one of the few districts that offers a speech therapist for deaf children under a total communication program.

Parents also charged that Wightman does not answer their inquiries or that they have to fight to get proper programs for their youngsters.

"I ALWAYS ANSWER phone calls," said Wightman. "I try to answer those things I am knowledgeable about or I refer them to people with better background in a subject area. It's just that things have changed."

Wightman said deaf classes had been transferred between schools, depending upon where space was available until recently. Now programs have been established at Link Elementary School in Schaumburg for preschoolers and primary students; at Kensington School in Arlington Heights for primary and intermediate students; at River Trails Junior High School in Mount Prospect and at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

He said with set locations, better communications should be achieved with parents. He said they will know in advance where their child will be located for an extended period of time and should be offered an orientation about their child's curriculum.

Parents who insist their child must receive an oral program Wightman said, may send their child to a residential school out of Illinois. The state then pays for two-thirds of the tuition and fees.

The parents argued against this suggestion saying that their children belong at home and that Illinois shouldn't pay another state for a program that could be offered here.

"We don't want just an oral program," insisted Mrs. S. Frankenthor of Des Plaines. "We want a dual-track program so that we have a choice."

Construction sites—a prime theft target

"CONSTRUCTION workers are ripping them off mostly," says Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette of Buffalo Grove police, noting there is not much police can do to check workmen in connection with thefts. Conroy says he believes construction employees are involved because residents would have no use for items like elevator equipment, copper valves, heating coils or jackhammers.

One local contractor who asked not to be identified says, "The police often say what is convenient for them."

Frank Pollicchio, superintendent for Celsel-McGuire, contractor for Mallard West apartments, says he did not know who was responsible for some of the major thefts at the project, but adds there has been some small employee thefts. "You expect that for small stuff."

"Most of our guys live too far away. They're not going to go this far and take a chance in getting caught."

BRUCE BESSER, construction head for Hollywood Builders' Colony project in Mount Prospect, says little things disappear all the time. "There is some merit to the argument that it often is an inside job," Besser says, noting he does not really know who is responsible for the thefts.

Small thefts occur all the time on the sites and often go unreported for fear of jacking up insurance premiums, contractors say.

Contractors say they do not know of any black market for materials in connection with any organized crime. One contractor says, "When you have something like 2,000 or 3,000 feet of copper wire, there will always be a market for it. There will always be somebody with a slide job going."

Guard services might not help that much, one contractor says, because anyone can walk through the projects during the day.

Arlington Heights faces touted Bellwood

Cook County legion tourney begins today

"We've been making stupid mistakes which you can't do against Lloyd Meyer. He comes on strong at the end every year. You can always count on him being there." Ralph D'Anza, manager, Bellwood American Legion baseball team.

by MIKE KLEIN
Respect is wonderful stuff. Witness the above remark. Then remember that respect keeps small children in line at the dinner table and even makes heroes out of common looters like Robin Hood and his merry men.

Honesty and respect combined aren't too bad either. At least Ralph D'Anza must think so when he links Lloyd Meyer to an incident that occurred during last year's American Legion Cook County playoffs.

"Let me tell you something," D'Anza continued. "It's because of Meyer that we won last year. We were down and just about dead. Then he started saying things which got our kids all fired up. If he'd have sat down, he'd have won."

It happened during the second game of County playoffs at Thornton Fractional North High School in Calumet City. Arlington had already clubbed Chicago

Paul Kastner

Ridge, 14-1, and held a two-run lead on Bellwood after three innings.

Then all evil crashed upon Arlington pitcher Jim Hopkins who yielded three homers for six runs over a 315-foot fence in center field. Bellwood, which scored its first run on a homer, won, 7-5. And the next afternoon, Northbrook eliminated Meyer's Ninth District entry.

This morning at 9:30, Bellwood and Arlington Heights play the opening game of County playoffs at Memorial Park on Washington Boulevard in Bellwood.

It's a field without any home run fence and for Meyer, that's good news. His hitters spray sharp line drives, not 400-foot bombs. And Meyer's outfield of Joe Riplinger, George Vukovich and Bruce Hanson has the speed to catch those blasts.

The four-day tournament will determine which of five American Legion clubs representing four districts may advance to next weekend's state finals at Blackhawk Park at Rockford.

Cicero and Bellwood will represent the Fifth District at Memorial Park. Wilmette comes down from the Seventh District. The Eighth District did not select its entrant until Wednesday night.

Three games are scheduled today with two each Friday and Saturday plus at least one Sunday. It's a double elimination set-up.

Today's first game precedes Cicero against the Eighth District entrant at 1 p.m. Wilmette, which owes a bye through first round games, plays the Arlington-Bellwood winner at 4 p.m.

It marks the second consecutive year that a Seventh District team has gotten the first round bye. Northbrook had the honor last year.

Dar Townsend

Pitching generally rules at any short tournament. "If you don't have the arms, just forget it," said Cicero coach Ed Janicki. His top two pitchers are out, one with a broken finger and the other a shoulder separation. Cicero is 19-5-2 but Janicki says the club has been "medicore" and describes his playoff hopes as "slim, very slim."

Fifth District relative Bellwood, which suffered one of five defeats to Logan Square while winning 38, has an experienced staff led by Tom Doyle, 12-1 with a 0.85 ERA, and Jim Bergo, 11-1.

Tim Halas

Both are southpaws and Doyle pitched Bellwood's County playoff victory over Arlington last year. He compiled a 7-2 record this spring at Trilon Community College while Bergo was pitching at Western Illinois University.

In relief, Bellwood uses southpaws Mark O'Bradovich (6-3) and Bill Pasero (5-0) plus 6-foot-7 righthander Chris Kaminska.

Cicero managed one win plus a tie against Bellwood in five tries this year. "I've never seen a team potentially as good," Janicki said of D'Anza's club. "They're strong on defense, good hitters, fair hitters. They hit when they count."

But D'Anza claims his club "hasn't played good baseball in a month. We had a 20-game winning streak, then went medicore. Our problem is having so many weak teams down there that you start playing just well enough to win."

"Up there, you're got at least 10 good teams. Meyer can bring his club on slow so it'll reach a peak now. We reached our peak three weeks ago. Now, we've got to get it back."

This morning's first game result is especially important. The loser faces at least five games in four days to reign as champion. Can any pitching staff survive that?

Bellwood certainly has pitching depth. Meyer has selected Paul Kastner (7-2) to oppose probably Doyle or Bergo. Meyer wants Dar Townsend and Tim Halas as his next starters and hopes to save Dave Thorstensen for relief.

Townsend is fighting a sore arm and was hit soundly in Tuesday's Ninth District All-Star game. Meyer admits, "We certainly need him." Others available are Don Kamps and Carl Pederson.

This will be Arlington's sixth County appearance in the past 16 years. Meyer's current club started poorly, with a 1-4 record, then evened up at 8-8 with a 9-8 win over Ninth District favorite Wheeling.

"I'm sure the kids gained some confidence there," Meyer said. Down the stretch, Arlington improved afield and won 11 while losing three. They take a 24-11 record against Bellwood.

"All we can hope for is a 6-0 game and then we squeak one out," Meyer said with regard to facing Doyle or Bergo. "I'll say the same thing I've always said, they've got to hit my pitching, too."

"Two years ago in National regionals we went against this (Tom) Underwood of Kokomo, Ind., who was 12-0 and gave up only two runs all summer. We cleaned his clock. I said then they'd have to hit my guy. Bellwood's got to hit Kastner and he can be tougher than nails."

IMPENDING SMASH-UP. Arlington catcher Steve Breitbail failed to score, but Park Ridge relief pitcher Dave Elin was an even bigger loser on this home plate tag in Sunday's American Legion action. Elin, who officially faced no batters, jammed his wrist and couldn't continue. Arlington won this game, 8-3, behind Paul Kastner's fine pitching but blew an identical lead in the nightcap and lost, 9-8. (Photo by Mike Seeling)

Legion stars handle Arlington; rally from 5-3 deficit for win

Great defense, extra base hits, double plays and double steals. You expect those in an All-Star baseball game. But a ground rule triple? Who has even heard of such an odd play?

About 100 enthusiastic fans saw Park Ridge first baseman Tommy Comyn get one during Tuesday evening's Ninth District classic, All-Stars against league champion Arlington Heights.

The All-Stars trailed, 5-3, when Comyn faced Arlington relief pitcher Dave Thorstensen to start the home third. He pulled a high drive that barely dropped fair down the right field line at Recreation Park.

And when the ball rolled past Bruce Hanson, stopping in a faraway residential backyard, Comyn had his ground rule triple, even though the usual argument was made that it should have been a home run.

Comyn scored one batter later on a single by Mount Prospect's Ken Butzen, drawing the All-Stars within one run. They scored five runs over the next two innings against losing pitcher Don Kamps to take 9-3 win over Arlington Heights.

There were no home runs although Comyn's triple plus for other batted balls would have cleared fences on any American Legion field.

Arlington second baseman Rick Sedor launched a third inning drive that fell between Butzen and Wheeling's Jeff Brison in deep left center, scoring two runs. Although he hit the ball far, Sedor was an easy out at third base, getting credit for a double.

Comyn's triple and Butzen's run producing single preceded great catches by Arlington center fielder George Vukovich, also an All-Star selection who played with his regular club.

Vukovich retreated straight back for Ken Margalski's long fly ball for the second out. Then he ranged for left and made a diving catch of Paul Groot's line drive that surely would have been a home run.

In the All-Star fourth, Mount Prospect shortstop Mike Quade, a replacement for Logan Square's Jim Bucaro, solved Kamps for a line drive to right, scoring Logan Square's Pat Rooney and Wheeling's Ron Henricks for a 6-6 lead.

The ball skipped past Hanson who tried a shoestring catch. But two relay throws later, Arlington catcher Steve Breitbail put a sound tag on the sliding Quade.

All-Star outfielder Bill Harrison of

Jeff Hanisch

Park Ridge lost his sixth inning home run bid when Jim Vogts, Vukovich's replacement, made a diving catch in deep center.

The victory went to Wheeling's Willie Koziel, second of four All-Star pitchers. He worked the third and fourth in relief of Mount Prospect's Buddy Hughes. Koziel allowed Arlington's last runs on third inning singles by Hanson and Tom Good plus Sidor's double.

Mount Prospect's Buddy Hughes opened for the All-Stars and fell behind, 3-0, after an inning. Vukovich got the first of his two hits and was later thrown out at home when Hanson bounced into a double play.

But Hughes was wild. He hit Jerry DeSimone before Hanson's double play grounder, then walked Tom Good, hit Brett Fraze and walked Rance Aguirre.

With the bases loaded and Sidor batting, Hughes wild pitched. DeSimone home. Then Sidor singled for two of his four runs-batted-in which led all players. Arlington led, 3-0.

Hughes retired Arlington during the second inning and was part of a double steal that tied the game at 3-3. Singles by Wheeling's Jeff Brison and Park Ridge's Dan Lowy made it a 3-2 game when Mount Prospect's Jim Anderson and Wheeling's Margalski carried runs across.

Hughes, who reached against Dar Townsend on a fielder's choice, was standing on third when Lowy swiped second. Hughes ran home and was safe without a play.

Sidor's double off Koziel gave Arlington its 5-3 lead in the third. Comyn and Butzen got a run back for the All-Stars against Thorstensen. Their two-run fourth against losing pitcher Kamps put the All-Stars on top for good.

Jeff Hanisch, a teammate of Koziel's at Wheeling, pitched the fifth and sixth for the All-Stars. He was outstanding with five strikeouts. Park Ridge's Dave Patterson finished up in the seventh.

Kamps allowed the All-Stars their last three runs in the fifth. Wheeling's Hanisch, Mount Prospect's Rick Haaning and Logan Square's Rooney got the RBIs. Rooney hit a double.

Each team stranded five runners, Arlington leaving the bases loaded in the fourth, against Koziel. The All-Stars turned double plays in the first and seventh innings.

Playing a solo parent is his toughest game

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — At the residence of Kenneth McMullen in Oxnard, 35 miles up the coastal highway from Dodger Stadium in downtown Chavez Ravine, there is a separate room out by the garage away from the rest of the house.

It's where Ken sleeps when he comes home from a night's work at the ball park because he's got three little kids — Ryan, 4½, Kenna, almost 3, and little Jonathan, 7 months — and they're up at the crack of dawn, ready to get at the world.

Life is a little different at the McMullens than it is in the other tidy homes in bucolic Oxnard, where there is a mother to take care of the children and keep them away from a sleeping father.

Bobbie McMullen, who gave birth to Jonathan last November 30, died April 6 of this year of cancer — the first Saturday of the baseball season.

Ken knew she was dying when he left the Dodgers' spring training base at Vero Beach, Fla., to return home and be with her the last 10 days. He knew she was dying as long as May, 1973 when Bobbie felt a lump on her breast and she went into the hospital for a biopsy. The doctor called Ken at home to tell him she had cancer, with 13 of her 15 lymph glands affected. She underwent an immediate mastectomy.

Right then Ken wanted to quit baseball. He has been a major league third baseman and a good one, since the Dodgers, his original club, traded him to the Washington Senators in 1965. He was always dependable for his 20 homers a season and his share of runs batted in. And with his glove he was a big barrier, at 6-3 and 195 pounds, for shots down the left field foul line.

In the fall of 1972, the Dodgers had reacquired him from the neighboring California Angels. And that was fine because it would keep him in native southern California and Chavez Ravine was closer to Oxnard than Anaheim.

But when the doctor, confirming the malignancy, also told Ken that Bobbie had only two years at most to live, playing baseball — with all its distractions and travel — no longer seemed like a good idea. He wanted to spend the two years with his wife.

Bobbie, however, insisted she wanted him to remain in the game, that nothing should be changed because of her condition. The doctors to whom Ken talked also said that the best thing for her was just to continue life normally, that there was no sense upsetting Ryan and Kenna, who knew vaguely their daddy was often away playing game.

There was, however, a complicating factor. Bobbie was pregnant. To fight her malignancy, the normal procedure was to induce radium and cobalt treatments. But these would surely have aborted the unborn child or inflicted serious damage. Bobbie and Ken decided jointly that she would not have the treatments.

"It was not a difficult decision," says Ken in retrospect. "We're not Catholic or anything like that. The doctors said at the time it wouldn't make much difference in her condition. For a long time, even after the baby was born, Bobbie felt fine. Until she started getting pains in her lower back, and even then we thought that might be from carrying the baby."

The cancer had spread but Bobbie still insisted that Ken report to the Dodgers as usual in February.

A few months have passed since the funeral and Ken has had time to reassess his position as a father and as an athlete. Since he joined the Dodgers, he has been only a spare performer. Although he still thinks he could play regularly, he realizes that he is 32 years old and has only a couple more years of real utility.

"Baseball," he says, "is more of a job to me now. I have a responsibility of raising three young children and this gives me the best chance to provide economic security for them."

The intrinsic problem of being a ball player is that the Dodgers are on the road half the time. Even at home after a late night game, Ken used to spend the night in town. But now he treks back to Oxnard. The three youngsters require constant care and supervision.

At first, he hired a young woman and that didn't work. Then there was an older woman and she couldn't handle them either. His mother-in-law stayed on for two months after Bobbie's death, but now she has gone home to Detroit. Ken's mother, a couple of blocks away, can't cope with three young children. At the moment, Ken's cousin stays with them, but shortly his sister and brother-in-law will move in permanently to provide a family environment.

So the material problems, he feels, will be solved. There is still a hangover of mental anguish.

"The only question I ask," he muses, "is, 'Why?'"

"It's made me more religious and maybe that'll provide an answer. I don't have a sad feeling. I loved my wife very much. We had those great years together. And I miss her. At this point, I can't even conceive of loving anybody else."

Ryan, 4½, who still remembers his mother vividly, is more reconciled to the loss.

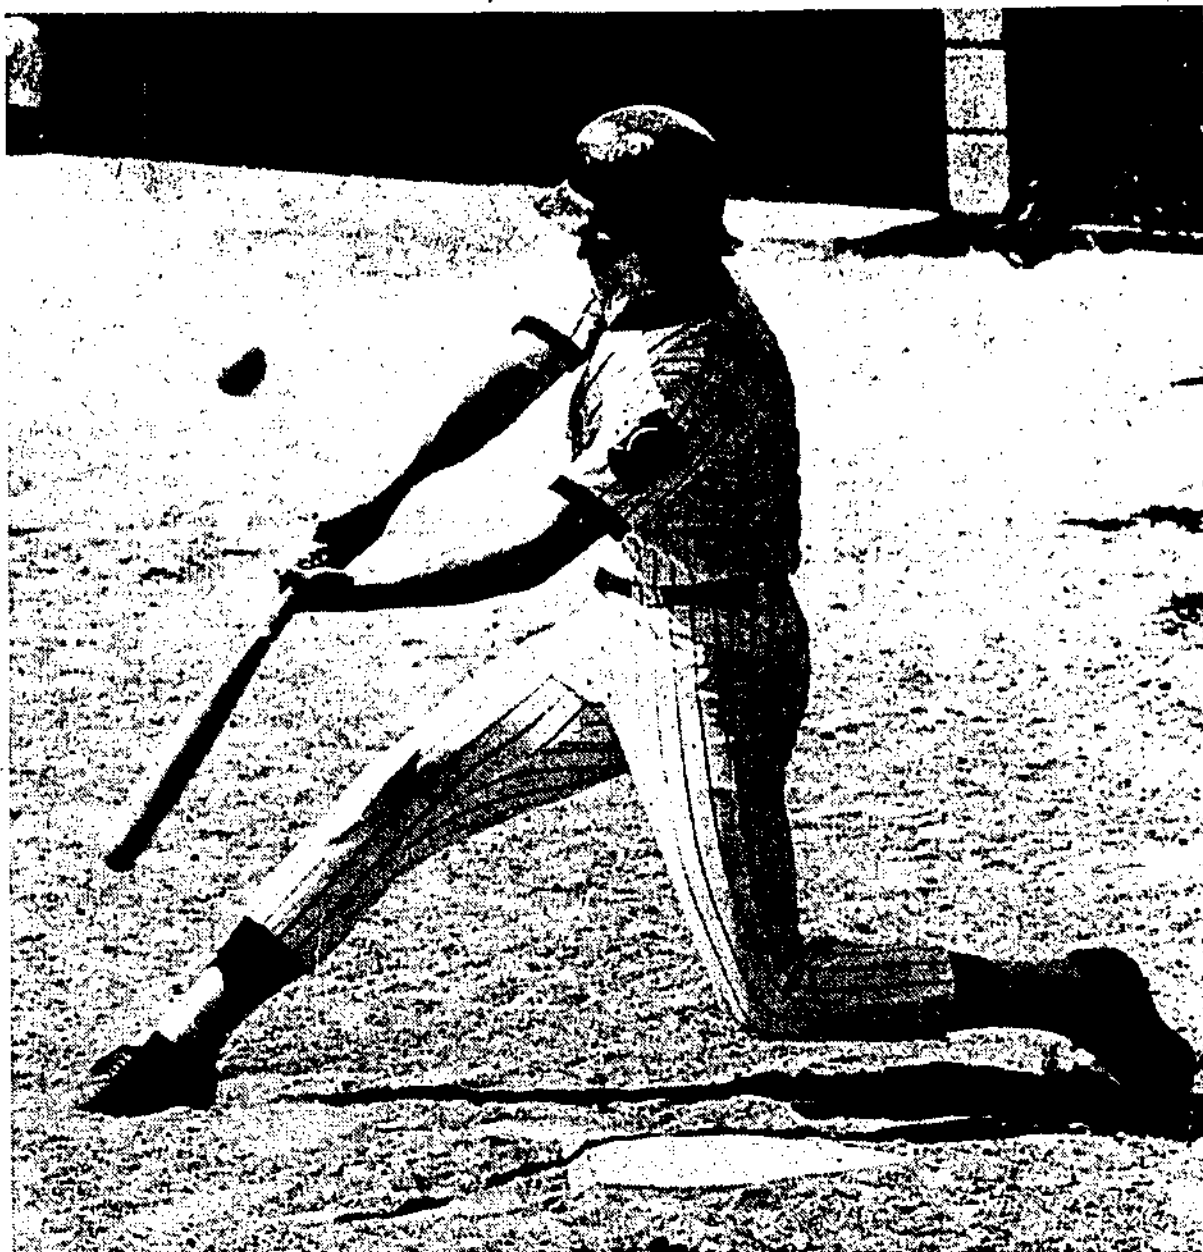

"Mama's gone to heaven," he says. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The "Bills," last year's Invitational Football League champs and also champs of the Widge area football programs, will have two registrations for the '74 season.

Boys can sign up at the Emmerich Park Fieldhouse on two Saturdays — August 3 and August 10 from 10 a.m. till 3 p.m. Emmerich Park is located at 150 Raupp Blvd. in Buffalo Grove. Registration for the Bills traveling teams and park district teams will be held at this time. No registration fee will be required at the initial registration.

For those boys who will be on vacation or out of town at the time of registration, you can sign up with coach Jim O'Heir at 532 Chatham Circle during the day. If you have further questions regarding registration, you can call Mr. O'Heir at 537-3844.

The Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association provides all equipment each player will need to compete in the tackle football program. The Bills will compete in the Invitational Football League and will also join the area Pop Warner Widge Football League.

Last year under the leadership of coaches Jim O'Heir, Roger Miller, Dick Porter, Ray Turelson, and John Truelson, the Bills compiled a sparkling 9-2 season record. This year the Bills have expanded their program so that more boys can participate in the program.

Expos' Gene Mauch loves his work

NEW YORK — Privately, when they talk among themselves, the majority of big league managers agree the business has changed for the worst. They talk about how the new breed of players are impossible to motivate and difficult to discipline.

Gone is that good old-fashioned pride, and production along with it. So say the managers when they get together among themselves or know they're speaking off the record.

There are any number of managers who shrewdly pump up their players to the press, notably men like Ralph Houk, Sparky Anderson and Chuck Tanner, but there is one in a class all by himself. Not so much because of what he says about his players or how he treats them, but more for what his players have to say about him and how they react to his direction.

Basically, what his players say about Gene Mauch is that he's far and away the brainiest manager in the game.

One rival manager says the very same thing.

There's one fellow who used to play for Gene Mauch who insists he's "the smartest manager who ever lived." Now that's taking in a whole lot of territory, probably too much. Supporters for Miller Huggins, John McGraw and Joe McCarthy, are openly invited to debate the point.

It is absolutely true, however, Mauch manages the Montreal Expos completely differently than other managers handle their clubs.

For openers, he does not have any curfew.

Mauch allows the players to make their own curfew. That doesn't mean he lets them turn every night into New Year's Eve, but what it does mean is that he expects his players to apply the rule of reason, and if they do, he does, too, and everybody's reasonably happy. In the six seasons Mauch has been managing Montreal, there has never been a bed check.

Most managers run their ball clubs with that same old tired cliché.

"All I ask my players is that they give me 100 per cent," they say.

Mauch doesn't say that at all.

"If an employee is 95 per cent productive," says the Expos' manager, "he's one helluva employee. And I'm not only talking about baseball."

What if he's less than 95 per cent?

"Less than that, you ought to move him," Mauch says.

Gene Mauch's introduction into the major league managerial ranks took place on April 15, 1969, with the Philadelphia Phillies one day after the season already had started.

Eddie Sawyer had the club the day before in the season opener, employed four pitchers in a 9-4 loss to Cincinnati, and then, just like that, announced he was quitting.

"I'm 49 years old and would like to live to be 50," he said, Sawyer, now a distributor for the Plymouth Golf Ball Co., never managed again since then. I asked him Monday whether he ever missed managing and his answer was loud and clear.

"Not a bit," he said.

When Mauch took over the Phillies, Sawyer met with him to fill him. The two talked maybe 20 minutes and that was enough — for Mauch. He didn't think any useful purpose would be served by his hearing anymore.

Whatever Gene Mauch does, right or wrong, he does positively. That makes him a rarity in this day and age of vacillation and general indecision. Most managers, it seems, grumble about the distasteful aspects of their job at least now and then. In all the time I know him, I've never heard Mauch do it even once. The fact he enjoys what he's doing is perfectly obvious.

"It's the one job I know that's never boring," he says. "Of course, you're going to have some aggravation. You win 100 games, you win the pennant. Sixty-two games will turn out to be hell. If a man doesn't enjoy managing, then he has no business managing. The chief difference between players and managers is that players have more ways to be happy. A player can go 4-for-4, pitch a shutout or have a good game any number of ways. The only way a manager can be happy is leave the ballpark a winner."

On Monday the Mets came from behind to beat the Expos for the third consecutive time, 4-3. The setback was the fifth straight for Montreal, and Gene Mauch did not leave Shea Stadium a happy man. They did beat Chicago Tuesday.

No matter, though.

Catch him someplace today, and he'll still tell you he has the best job in the world.

(United Press International)

BASICALLY, WHAT his players say about Gene Mauch is that he's far and away the brainiest manager in the game. The Montreal manager, right, is shown here with infielder Ron Hunt.

The Men's A team had the closest match of the day and the doubles team of Dave Little and Steve Wild came through with a win 6-4, 6-2 after splitting the singles matches 2 and 2. The Men's A team finished the season with a 4-1 record with a crack at the championship.

The Men's B team won, 4-1. Dan Wilson, Dave Stege, and Mike Mozdren, and Howard Pohl all won their singles matches with Bill Salisbury and Merlin Schultz losing in the doubles in a tiebreaker finish. The Men's B team ended up with a 6-1 record and also are in a tie for first place. They had wins over Naperville, Elmhurst, Wheaton, LaGrange, Northbrook, and Skokie and lost to Arlington.

The Junior Boys ended their play with a 5-0 rout of Wheaton. They finished the season with a 5-1 record and will go into the playoffs in the Western division.

The Women's team defeated Wheaton, 4-1 behind the fine playing of Cindy Gernhofer, Chris Canar and Lea Sopkin. The team finished the season with a win and was the only division to lose more matches than it won.

Kranepool hasn't changed in 12 seasons with Mets

by MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK — Ed Kranepool was different from the very first day he reported to the New York Mets. It's 12 years later now and a lot of things have changed. Not him, though. He's still different.

Most ballplayers, for example, don't like you telling them they're in the twilight of their careers, especially when they're not even 30 yet.

With Ed Kranepool, it's completely the other way around. You don't have to tell him, he tells you. What makes the whole thing odder yet is that he's only 29.

"The reason I say I'm in my 'twilight' is because I've played up here 12 years

School in the Bronx.

"At that age you're not able to cope with big league pitching either physically or mentally," he says. "That's why that 14-year-old boy the Phillies signed (Jorge Lebron) will have a lotta trouble if he's not handled properly."

"This kid the Phillies signed is going to learn in the minors. I didn't do that. I was in the minors only six weeks, so I hadda learn everything in the majors. If I could've known then what I know now, I would've insisted on being sent down to the minors. But you don't know that then."

Ed Kranepool is the dean of the Mets. He is the only player to have participated in every season of the club's history and played for all four of its managers beginning with Casey Stengel.

When he first came up, he got the reputation of being a wiseguy kid over an episode which really wasn't his fault.

While taking batting practice one day at the old Polo Grounds, Kranepool, who had been having trouble with inside pitches, instructed the pitcher to keep throwing him on the outside. Duke Snider, one of the Mets' outfielders, noticed it.

"It might be a good idea," suggested Snider, "to have him pitch you on the inside and you learn to pull the ball instead of swinging at all these outside pitches."

"You're not doing so good yourself," Kranepool came back curtly.

Today Kranepool realizes Snider was only trying to be helpful, and that he shouldn't have answered him in the manner he did.

"What Duke didn't know at the time, though, was that Casey had given me specific instructions to go out and practice hitting every ball to the opposite field. He said he was going to be watching me from the centerfield clubhouse, and he did."

"Duke didn't know that. Here was Casey telling me to hit to the opposite field and Duke telling me to pull. What was I

Pony Invite to begin Aug. 3

The Mount Prospect Boys Baseball Association will hold its third annual Pony Invitational Tournament at Lions Park with opening round games to be played Saturday, Aug. 3, at one, four, five and eight o'clock.

Second round action will take place Sunday at the same times. Monday through Friday, games will be played at 8 p.m.

The championship game will be played Saturday, Aug. 10, at 5 p.m., and if necessary, a deciding game has been scheduled for 8 p.m.

All-Star teams consisting of 13 and 14-year-old boys from Elk Grove, Mount Prospect, Oak Park, Palatine Central, Palatine South, Spring Lake, Waukegan and Wheeling will be participating.

A traveling trophy will be presented to the winning manager and individual trophies to all players on the first and second place teams.

Last year's first place team, Buffalo Grove, is not entered in this year's competition. Mount Prospect, a second place finisher last season, will play their first game Saturday, Aug. 3, at 5 p.m.

Northbrook hosting bike championships

The National Bicycle Championships began yesterday in Northbrook with concluding action taking place Saturday from 1-6 p.m.

Sessions are underway for heats this morning and tomorrow morning and each evening beginning at 7 p.m. for semifinals and finals.

In competition is Bob Vehe, winner of the State 1000 Meter Time Trial Championship and a second place finisher overall to Tim Zsady of Prospect Heights.

Both are vying for a spot on the United States World Team that will compete in Montreal during August. Itch Vehe finished second in the Junior Class State Championships, his first year in that class.

Teams from foreign countries, including Russia, will compete with the U.S. contingent in a series of races at Northbrook on Aug. 6-8 prior to the World Meet. In addition, the U.S. professional team, recently sponsored by the Shimano Corporation, will compete among themselves.

Saints seek linemen

The Niles Saints football team, set to start their season in two weeks, is searching for able-bodied men to fill the gaps in their offensive and defensive lines.

The semi-pro squad, scheduled to venture to Wisconsin for the season opener against the Racine Raiders, is missing six starters from last year's championship aggregation.

A spokesperson for the team indicated Monday that the opening game may have to be cancelled unless an adequate squad can be fielded. Anyone interested in plugging the gaps in the Saints' line should contact the club at 279-5845.

'30s Depression cause of many divorces now: doctor

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines. Forest Hospital is a fully-accredited 130-bed psychiatric hospital known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

This is an age where divorce among 30 to 45 year olds is becoming more and more commonplace than ever before. Dr. Leonard Cammer believes there are a number of reasons for this, some of them stemming from the Great Depression during which this segment of the population was born and brought up.

Cammer, clinical associate professor of psychiatry at New York Medical College and author of the book "Up From Depression," calls this group the middle-aged. He cites as an example a mythical 40-year-old man, born in 1933 during a period when the population was static, as being in a fortuitous position. "The demand for this man is high," Cammer says. "Companies have become large corporations, industry and population have burgeoned, salaries are high and men this age are needed desperately for powerful, responsible and authoritative positions. There is a limited supply of men this age to fill these positions.

"The stress load is great," he adds. "This man has to be able to discharge all that power and responsibility, but he may pay a price. Where has the price been paid? Socially. His marital relationship, his ability to be a father and husband has failed. He has become divorced and is living over his head. Affluence has become part of his way of life, but that doesn't mean he's been able to handle his affluence.

"MUCH OF THIS IS true of the wife, too," Cammer believes. "She's not able to handle the responsibility thrust upon her. She's security conscious, terribly frustrated and has a husband who is not with her because he's married to his executive responsibility. She's caught in the trap of having had to produce children in a time when it was fashionable to have two, three or four children. She's not fulfilled. She looks for fulfillment of her social, sexual and emotional needs in extramarital experiences.

"One problem this age group has had to deal with can be traced to their parents. Depression parents promised themselves that their children would never have to suffer or struggle like they did. They then deprived their children of the learning of how to struggle and meet the demand placed upon them. The children grew up to take for granted and accept all the nice jobs and positions waiting for them and they never committed themselves to their marriages.

"I think," Cammer says, "these marriages of 10 to 20 years duration were never very good to begin with, and now they've reached the breaking point. All these years children were being produced, homes were being purchased, obligations were heaped upon obligations, families were being transferred to new job locations. They needed stability to get ahead and they couldn't handle the rapid promotions to the next rung of the ladder."

The economics of separation and divorce for couples in this group were favorable, too, Cammer points out. "Now, rising inflation is making divorce more difficult and supporting two households more burdensome. Also, the 40 to 45 year old is becoming old prematurely. He's finding the 25 to 30 year old is ready to displace him at less salary."

CAMMER IS NOT certain that the unhappiness of the many relationships in which people made a compromise in order to establish some kind of co-existence isn't better than the war and separation and horrible loneliness of divorce. "I'm not sure that the unhappy marriages that are kept together in the family tradition are necessarily any worse than the unhappiness I see outside of marriage among divorced and single people," he said.

Therefore, Cammer is trying to establish an approach to reconciling marriages. He's starting family therapy programs with an approach of contract and negotiations.

"We're encouraging the couple to renegotiate the marriage contract on a behavioral basis, to learn to live with an respect each other's needs and to establish a better communication that never did develop as it should. Both husband and wife had pursued independent growth and development curves which did not include one or the other as an integral part. They lived in a three-way struggle between husband, wife and children with no one ever bringing the thing together to some kind of unity for a common goal to please one another.

"A good marriage requires adult, mature responsibility which primarily involves making compromises. The more judicious the compromise, the more the results work for you, the more satisfied one is."

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Old Man Z ain't got no finesse

Old Man Z who used to play all the dummy's in the days of auction bridge remarked, "I'm glad I didn't try for seven. I see a couple of finesses available to me, but when I played this hand for Milton Work back in 1923, he had all the finesses wrong. Anyway, I don't need them.

"The finesse would draw trumps and lose a finesse to East's queen of diamonds. Later he would lose the spade finesse to West."

Z took the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. He cashed his ace of trumps; led a second trump to dummy's king; ruffed the third club; played king, ace and a small diamond in dummy and let the Jack of clubs. East followed and Z discarded his deuce of spades. Then he showed West his hand.

West studied a while and conceded. If he led a spade it would be away from his king right up to Z's ace-queen. If he led a diamond, Z would ruff with dummy's last trump, discard his queen of spades and make the last tricks with the ace of spades and trumps.

"Companies have become large corporations, industry and population have burgeoned, salaries are high and men this age are needed desperately for powerful, responsible and authoritative positions. There is a limited supply of men this age to fill these positions."

"The stress load is great," he adds. "This man has to be able to discharge all that power and responsibility, but he may pay a price. Where has the price been paid? Socially. His marital relationship, his ability to be a father and husband has failed. He has become divorced and is living over his head. Affluence has become part of his way of life, but that doesn't mean he's been able to handle his affluence."

"MUCH OF THIS IS true of the wife, too," Cammer believes. "She's not able to handle the responsibility thrust upon her. She's security conscious, terribly frustrated and has a husband who is not with her because he's married to his executive responsibility. She's caught in the trap of having had to produce children in a time when it was fashionable to have two, three or four children. She's not fulfilled. She looks for fulfillment of her social, sexual and emotional needs in extramarital experiences."

"One problem this age group has had to deal with can be traced to their parents. Depression parents promised themselves that their children would never have to suffer or struggle like they did. They then deprived their children of the learning of how to struggle and meet the demand placed upon them. The children grew up to take for granted and accept all the nice jobs and positions waiting for them and they never committed themselves to their marriage."

"I think," Cammer says, "these marriages of 10 to 20 years duration were never very good to begin with, and now they've reached the breaking point. All these years children were being produced, homes were being purchased, obligations were heaped upon obligations, families were being transferred to new job locations. They needed stability to get ahead and they couldn't handle the rapid promotions to the next rung of the ladder."

The economics of separation and divorce for couples in this group were favorable, too, Cammer points out. "Now, rising inflation is making divorce more difficult and supporting two households more burdensome. Also, the 40 to 45 year old is becoming old prematurely. He's finding the 25 to 30 year old is ready to displace him at less salary."

CAMMER IS NOT certain that the un-

happiness of the many relationships in which people made a compromise in order to establish some kind of co-existence isn't better than the war and separation and horrible loneliness of divorce. "I'm not sure that the unhappy marriages that are kept together in the family tradition are necessarily any worse than the unhappiness I see outside of marriage among divorced and single people," he said.

Therefore, Cammer is trying to establish an approach to reconciling marriages. He's starting family therapy programs with an approach of contract and negotiations.

"We're encouraging the couple to renegotiate the marriage contract on a behavioral basis, to learn to live with an respect each other's needs and to establish a better communication that never did develop as it should. Both husband and wife had pursued independent growth and development curves which did not include one or the other as an integral part. They lived in a three-way struggle between husband, wife and children with no one ever bringing the thing together to some kind of unity for a common goal to please one another."

"A good marriage requires adult, mature responsibility which primarily involves making compromises. The more judicious the compromise, the more the results work for you, the more satisfied one is."

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Old Man Z ain't got no finesse

Old Man Z who used to play all the dummy's in the days of auction bridge remarked, "I'm glad I didn't try for seven. I see a couple of finesse available to me, but when I played this hand for Milton Work back in 1925, he had all the finesse wrong. Anyway, I don't need them."

"The finesse would draw trumps and lose a finesse to East's queen of diamonds. Later he would lose the spade finesse to West."

Z took the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. He cashed his ace of trumps; led a second trump to dummy's king; ruffed the third club; played king, ace and a small diamond in dummy and let the jack of clubs. East followed and Z discarded his deuce of spades. Then he showed West his hand.

West studied a while and conceded. If he led a spade it would be away from his king right up to Z's ace-queen. If he led a diamond, Z would ruff with dummy's last trump, discard his queen of spades and make the last tricks with the ace of spades and trumps.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Aneurysms are hard to predict

My husband was a comparatively healthy man for 50 years, considered to be a slight hypochondriac because of his many miscellaneous complaints. He complained of headaches and eye pains for years. And, he had miscellaneous little skin problems over the years.

At age 51, in a three-month span, he suffered an attack of acute diverticulitis, a severe generalized eczema, and nine days after drainage surgery for a second ruptured diverticulitis, he suffered a massive cerebral hemorrhage due to an aneurysm. The doctors claimed each was a separate condition unrelated to the other. It is claimed that cerebral hemorrhage from an aneurysm is an unpredictable and unusual illness. Yet, over the years I have heard about a number of people who have died from this. Is there any way to predict this weakness? What preventive measures can be taken? Can you comment?

I'm not surprised that you are confused by that array of illnesses. Your doctors have told you the truth. The type of aneurysm that forms in the arteries to the brain, inside the skull, is called a "berry aneurysm" referring to its berry-like shape. The artery wall apparently has a defect in it from birth. In time the area of the artery balloons out into a small, thin-walled berry-like structure.

There is simply no way the doctor can know it is there without injecting dye into the arteries to the brain and taking X-rays to show it. This procedure is not one a doctor undertakes lightly. There needs to be some pretty good reason to do it. No one knows why the aneurysm breaks. It is like trying to explain why a weak bridge suddenly collapses on its own one day. A sudden sharp rise in blood pressure, as might occur during violent physical exertion, can cause it. Or, if the person happens to have high blood pressure then the little balloon is more likely to burst. There would not appear to be anything in your husband's other illnesses that would have been a factor in causing the sudden hemorrhage.

Cerebral hemorrhage is not so rare, but hemorrhage from the small berry aneurysm is. Most cerebral hemorrhages occur from arteries diseased with fatty-cholesterol deposits which rupture under the influence of high blood pressure.

ONE OF MANY things that can cause severe recurring headaches is an expanding berry aneurysm. Depending upon the nature of the headaches, the doctor may decide to study the arteries to the brain.

That aneurysm may leak slowly, not causing instant death, and enable the patient to be diagnosed and treated successfully. This is very tough and go, and one never knows if the patient will survive or not. Surgery is often used in these extreme cases if the facilities and the person trained to do such surgery are immediately available. Surgical procedures to deal with hemorrhage in the brain from any cause are serious and difficult.

However, I have known of people who have survived such episodes and lived normal full lives for years afterward with no evidence of recurrence or other significant medical problems.

Law for today...

2 professional legal concepts under study by state

Two new concepts are under study now within the legal profession in Illinois and other parts of the nation — legal specialization and the use of paralegal employees.

Both concepts already are being tested in some states.

Specialization within the legal profession is based upon the practice already used within the medical profession. A general medical practitioner can list himself as an "MD" and a certified doctor specializing in some field of medicine can also make known the fact that he is a specialist. This is not only felt by many to be a bonus for the doctor, but also for his prospective patients, who can easily find someone who can help them for treatment of a certain, specific ailment.

Such a practice of specialization in the legal profession would consist of an attorney having to work in his particular field of interest for several years before he could be certified a specialist. He could then list himself in the yellow pages of a telephone directory or the "shingle" in front of his office as a specialist in a certain area of law, such as "probate" or "divorce," etc.

Specialization already is in effect in California.

THE INTRODUCTION of paralegal assistants is already a reality in many large law firms in Chicago. However, the profession in Illinois is currently discussing making mandatory the certification of such employees within this state.

A paralegal is much the same as a paramedic which we have heard much about during the past two years. The paralegal employee is a person who assists an attorney, but has not graduated from a law school. He is generally a person who has been trained for several weeks or months in a paralegal school, such as one in Philadelphia.

It must be made clear, however, that the attorney is fully responsible for the work of his paralegal employee.

The main purpose in hiring such a person is to reduce the time and effort, and thus the cost to the client, which normally would have to be spent by the attorney in doing research on a case or filling out legal forms, such as contracts, with clients.

Specialization and paralegal employment are two new concepts to the legal profession in Illinois and will be the subject of some controversy and discussion in 1974.

World cycling meet to be honored

An 8-cent commemorative stamp will be released Aug. 7 by the Canada Post Office to mark the 1974 World Cycling Championships to be held in Montreal Aug. 14-23.

Officially started in Chicago in 1893, this is the first time in recent history that the Championships, usually held in Europe, will take place in North America. Athletes from some 50 countries are expected to participate in track and road events open to both amateurs and professionals.

The stamp was designed by Burns and Cooper of Toronto. A total of 27 million is being printed in two-color steel and two-color gravure by the British American Bank Note Co. of Ottawa. Marginal inscriptions, including the designers' names, appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The total production will bear general (Ottawa) tagging.

COLLECTORS DESIRING first day cancellations should send their requests to FDC/Cycling Stamp, Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A 0B3. Enclose the proper remittance, which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed, plus a service fee of 15-cents for each cover to be affixed with less than 50-cents postage. Make your international bank draft payable (in Canadian funds) to "The Receiver General for Canada."

For this issue, all covers will be shipped in bulk to Montreal for cancellation after which they will be forwarded to the collector by regular mail.

SEVEN 7-CENT Australian stamps in the Sports series were released July 24, almost a month before they were expected, due to impending tariff changes.

The adhesives, printed in separate sheets of 100 stamps, feature Australian football, bowls, cricket, golf, rugby, surfing and tennis.

Because of the change in release date, orders for first day cancellations will be accepted until Aug. 27. Send your covers to the Philatelic Bureau, Australian Post Office, 374 Bourke St., Melbourne, Victoria, Australia 3000. Make your remittance by international bank draft, in Australian funds, to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

A SUGGESTION: When ordering first day covers from foreign post offices, request enough postage to be affixed to bring them back by air mail — 26-cents from Australia, Ireland, Swaziland, France etc.; 13-cents from Canada and Mexico.

'Peace with Honor' being offered again

The results of President Nixon's "Journey for Peace" to the Peoples' Republic of China and the Soviet Union in 1972 has placed new demands on the producers of the famous "Peace with Honor" medal commemorating the 1972 trips. As a convenience for collectors, the bronze or silver copies are being reoffered.

Sculptured in high relief, the extra-large medallion is 2 1/4 inches in diameter and available in solid bronze or .999 Fine silver. It was designed by the noted medallist team of Paul Catto and Joseph De Lorenzo and minted exclusively for the International Numismatic Agency by the Medallic Art Co.

Bronze copies sell for $13.95 including a metal desk easel and the Pure silver (.999 Fine) copies containing over five ounces of pure silver sell for $31. The latter is accompanied

A COLLECTION of pioneer gold coins and related material, acknowledged by money collectors as one of the finest in the world, have been on public exhibition at the Old Mint in San Francisco.

On loan from the private collection of Henry H. Clifford of Los Angeles, the money of the Old West, produced on skins, paper, wood and metal, illustrates economic progression from the days of the lucrative fur trade through the discovery and mining of the vast gold and silver deposits.

Represented are tokens and notes on walrus and seal skins issued by fur trading firms such as the Russian-American Co., the Hudson Bay Co. and the North West Co. which operated during the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

There are various denominations and sizes of gold coins issued by private minters until 1864 when Congress passed a law forbidding issues of gold coins by unauthorized individuals. And gold and silver ingots that circulated as "necessity coins" in western territories. Poker chip stamps, Mormon paper money, gold coinage and banknotes signed by Brigham Young are parts of the collection.

1205 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling

541-4770

The new home of Trans-America Realty is at 1205 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. From this office, communications span the continent to serve transferees to and from northwest suburban industry. The building itself was constructed by a highly successful pioneering technique of poured concrete slabs lifted into place by cranes to form the Mediterranean-style structure. The method may be adapted for speedy, economical and, rugged home construction in the future.

Comments from Jeanne Palmer, president, Trans-America Realty

Customers, who soon become Trans-America friends, come to this firm for expert assistance in making the most important purchase of their lives — a home in which their family can live and grow together.

Or they come because Trans-America has nationwide contacts to help find a buyer for the home they have outgrown, or must leave because business takes them elsewhere.

A home is more than shelter from the storm, or just a place to eat and sleep. The right home provides a way of living — a lifestyle for a family. Families grow to fit houses, just as people grow to fit their community.

That is why a Realtor at Trans-America is concerned with more than merely guiding the home buyer and the home seller through the technicalities of a major financial transaction.

A hard-headed, business-wise older Realtor with whom I once worked used to say, "We don't sell houses. We sell dreams."

He was right. And that is why the staff at Trans-America Realty takes the time to find out what each client wants, and needs, and can realistically hope to get at the present time. Staffers believe it is essential for them to use all the knowledge and skill at their command not only to help fulfill a family's dream of the right home, but to protect that dream from the pitfalls that surround any major financial investment.

Knowledge and skill come with training and experience. However, many clients are buying or selling a home for the first time. People buy or sell a home only a limited number of times in a lifetime.

Here are some of the things the Trans-America Realty staff has learned through combined experience with thousands of home transactions.

—Rents are high, and rent receipts are worthless scraps of paper — a record of money gone forever. When a family makes payments on a home, they are building equity . . . accumulating wealth over the years. This means security, stability and strength in the future.

—Many families that think they cannot afford home ownership now, in fact can. There are first steps to be taken, and these can be explored in a meeting with a Realtor. Almost any family that can afford rent can afford to start out on the road to home ownership and greater financial security.

—A first home need not be a final home. It may be a move toward a final home. The time to start saving for a dream home through first home ownership is now.

Because tax laws are designed to encourage home ownership, and banks and lending institutions have a stake in residents and their lives in a stable community, and because real estate values are on a long-term rise, there are tremendous financial advantages in home ownership. A Realtor can explain how these advantages can be realized.

Above all, buying a home means putting down roots, belonging to a community of friends and neighbors, and finding peace of mind, safety and security through responsible home ownership and financial management.

A Realtor at Trans-America talks with sincerity about a thing called his own "job satisfaction." The reason for this job satisfaction is that he has shown so many people how to make their dream of a home come true — now.

DORY FLOWERS, New Trier graduate. Lives in Wheeling. Unmarried - enjoys water skiing, sky diving and adventure.

Comments from Tom Loehde, sales manager, Trans-America Realty

Home sales across the nation in April this year were 7.6 percent above last year . . . a sharp upward trend.

Trans-America Realty participated in almost $1 million in home sales in a two-month period. The housing market is strong, despite current money shortages.

Real estate today can be viewed as both a buyer's market and a seller's market.

It's a seller's market because home prices are high. A family that has maintained its present home for even two or three years in the northwestern suburban area is able to sell at a substantial profit — a profit that means they've essentially been living rent-free during their period of occupancy.

It's a buyer's market because all economic signs indicate prices will continue to rise in the future.

Now is the time to buy. All trends point to a continued high rate of inflation; a new state usury law now being drafted may push mortgage prices even higher; the continuing growth of the northwest suburbs is strongly indicative of further increases in property values.

The time to buy a home is almost always now, when a family needs it. This is a basic economic fact of home ownership.

A home is a necessity, like a loaf of bread, rather than a luxury like a new car or new furniture. There is no way a family can postpone finding some place to live in hopes of a more favorable economic climate. If they don't buy, they rent, or they may conceivably continue living in a home that doesn't meet the needs of the family.

Sylvia Porter, nationally renowned economic analyst, recently pointed out that on the average the purchase price of a home increases by 10 percent a year. This means people will NOT save money by waiting for lower mortgage rates.

She cites figures on a hypothetical $35,000 home with a 10 percent down payment and an annual mortgage rate of 8 percent. The monthly mortgage payment for 25 years would be $243.18.

Wait one year . . . the value of the home increases, and if a person is able to get the same mortgage at 8 percent, the down payment would increase by $350, and the monthly payment, on the balance would increase to $267.50.

On top of that, interest rates are likely to go up rather than down, because while 8 percent mortgage money now is available, the prime rate of interest for industry is soaring over 12 percent.

And by waiting, families lose the tax benefits of home ownership. They also lose the equity they would be building in the home for that year.

Finally, the family will have paid another year's rent for inadequate housing — a dead loss.

Trans-America Realty can show that the time to buy a house in the current market is when the family can use it. The time to sell is when the home the family has no longer fits its needs.

Of course, many factors are to be considered . . . location, specific tax rulings, contract possibilities.

Home improvement records can keep profit taxes down

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI)—You may buy a house planning "never to move again" but you should keep records as if you might move tomorrow.

Actually, the average homeowner in the United States keeps a house for only 12 years before selling it and moving on. So, in a lifetime, might own several houses.

When you do sell, whatever the reason — a new job, the need or the desire for a bigger, or smaller, or just a different house, unless you know how to keep taxes on your "profit" at a minimum, you could lose a lot of the investment you thought was a hedge against inflation, Citibank warns.

"From the day you buy a house, keeping records for its eventual sale will guarantee you a fair sale price and a fair tax break," Citibank says.

If, for example, you bought a house for $18,000 and 10 years later sell it for $27,000, you have made a profit of $9,000. This "profit" actually can be reduced substantially, even eliminated — if you have the records to prove certain expenditures.

You can, of course, subtract your closing costs of 10 years ago; for title search and insurance, lawyers' fees, bank appraisal, mortgage and deed recording and other expenses of purchasing the house. Also deductible are costs of selling such as broker's fee, legal fees, advertising, costs of painting and fixing up for the purpose of selling done within 90 days before house is actually sold and paid within 30 days after.

But you also can subtract for all the improvements made over the 10 years. It is here that proof is most important and most difficult to establish if records have not been kept.

If you are buying a house, set up a simple book in which housing expenses are listed by date, purpose, supplier and cost, and keep a file of supporting bills, checks, etc.

If you already own a house, set up a current system and work back through check stubs, receipted bills, e. c. to reconstruct expenses for any years you have missed. The longer you wait, the tougher the job and the more likelihood you will miss important deductions.

Citibank advises while you can't deduct for normal maintenance, keep those records, too. "Sometimes, what seems to be maintenance can be credited as an improvement; your lawyer or accountant will sort this out."

For example, house painting is maintenance. Suppose, however, the house had seven coats of exterior paint, all chipping away in spots. If you installed new siding, or removed all seven old coats and applied two fresh ones, it might be a deductible improvement. To replace a window because a frame has rotted is maintenance. But to substitute storm windows is an improvement. A new kitchen stove is maintenance; a sizeable kitchen overhaul an improvement.

When the time comes to sell, Citibank explains:

"Suppose you have a net profit — total profit less deductions for costs of buying and selling and capital improvements — of $5,000. You pay a capital gains tax on this — at half your regular tax rate, up to 25 per cent. For any amount of gain over $50,000, the rate could go up to 35 percent. If you owned the house less than six months, any gain would be taxes as ordinary income.

"If you buy another house, co-op or condominium within one year before or after the sale, the tax on all or part of your gain is postponed. You have 18 months if your new home is being built for you, but it must be started within the year. "You may buy and sell as many times as you like during your lifetime and keep deferring the tax if you meet all the requirements. But each house must be primary, not a second or vacation home."

"In the case of your death, your heirs don't owe any tax on your profits. And since the first $60,000 of an inheritance is not taxable, they might not owe any federal tax if your taxable estate is under that amount."

"If you are going to sell your home at retirement, try to wait until you are over 65," Citibank advises. "Then you can choose, once in your life time, not to be taxed at all on the profit, if the 'adjusted' selling price is $20,000 or less. If more, you are forgiven part of the gain. You must have lived in the house five years over an eight-year period."

The longer you have a house, especially in these days when inflation boosts housing values dramatically each year, the bigger your so-called profit and the more important record of your deductible costs.

Centex building goes for $162,500

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has announced the sale of the one-story building containing 10,000 square feet located at 1425 Howard St. in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village, to an undisclosed investor.

Edward A. Rowe of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented the purchaser and Thomas Conrady of Prudential Realty Co. represented the seller in the $162,500 sale transaction.

Attorneys were Alphonse Cerza for the purchaser and Harold F. Scovel of McKenna, Scovel, and Gannon for the seller.

Why our rents are 20% lower.

If you could rent a brand new apartment today at 1972 prices, would you do it? You bet! With prices what they are today, a saving of more than $800 per year in rent is worth looking into. How can we offer you such a saving?

First, our financing was arranged more than two years ago when interest rates were low (Would you believe 5 1/2%?). Second, our construction contracts were let 15 months ago when prices were 20% less than today.

Third, we have eliminated superfluous amenities such as saunas, conversation pits and putting greens so that you are not paying for something that you never use.

We do, however, offer everything you expect in a quality apartment community. Included in the rents below are well to wall carpeting heating, central air conditioning, parking and membership in our private swim club. Solid sturdy brick construction (concrete floors so you can hear your neighbor) and 22 beautiful landscaped acres of room in 1 BEDROOM

Ken Roud is re-elected MAP Service president

Ken Roud was re-elected as president of MAP Multiple Listing Service for the 1974-75 term.

The election was held at the yearly MAP members meeting at Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn. It was the first time in the MAP history that the members re-elected a president for a second term.

Additional officers and board members elected for the 1974-75 term are Stan Lieberman, vice president; Robert Proctor, secretary; Jack Holding, treasurer. The directors are Jack Keller, Margaret Christian, Marv Kamp and Wallace Busse.

At the annual election meeting, the attending members heard a review of current flood control systems in the northwest suburbs presented by the Busse-

Debs Insurance Co. of Mount Prospect. Plans were also discussed for additional methods of up-grading the current MAP homes advertising magazine.

The renomination and re-election of Ken Roud as president for the 1974-75 term was considered to be a strong reflection of confidence in Roud and his officers.

MAP Multiple Listing Service enjoyed a successful sales period in 1973 and 1974 and has grown in the number of participating member real estate companies to where the organization is considered one of the nation's most influential multiple systems.

The newly elected officers and directors will be formally installed at the MAP Installation banquet, July 8, at Lancers Steak House in Schaumburg.

To developers, trees are as good as money in bank

Who says that money doesn't grow on trees?

"It most certainly does," argues Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

"The presence of trees on raw — or developed — land adds immeasurably to its dollar value," Goss says.

Any real estate developer contemplating shouting "timber" really had better think twice.

"The practice of clearing trees from a construction site should be seriously considered — and then reconsidered," Goss advises.

Professional land appraisers determine that a tract of land suitable for development enhances its monetary value from 5 to 15 per cent, if wooded.

"The traditional love of the homeowner for lofty trees has long been extolled and really turns off the prospective home-buyer when he sees property bare and treeless," Goss warns.

The converse is also not true — namely, the more trees the greater the dollar sign total on the tract.

The presence of too many trees actually decreases the appraisal value.

"More than two dozen trees on a tract running about 12 acres reduces land worth," Goss reports.

He further notes that the size of a tree is a major factor.

Only trees having diameters of at least 6 inches are counted as important by the appraiser.

"So, if you are a builder-developer, it may be wise to give careful attention to nature's abundant endowments."

Realtor offers winning tips to help you sell your home

If you're thinking about putting your house up for sale or have been trying to do so, chances of success are better today than you may think.

"Families trying to sell their homes have been fighting an almost impossible combination of problems since July, 1973, including inflation, recession, negative psychology and a money crunch," said Bob Love, vice president of Continental Real Estate, Inc., Northwest, 180 W.

Higgins, Hoffman Estates.

"But the money squeeze is easing and terms are improving. Mortgage recovery has kindled the interest of many potential buyers who have been standing on the sidelines," the real estate expert pointed out.

"But don't let a rise in demand lull you into a false sense of security. You may have the best-looking, best-maintained, best-priced home for sale in the community, but there are many ways you can complicate, if not kill a sale," he warned.

He pointed out that buying a home is the biggest purchase of a life time for most families. It is a situation filled with emotion as well as financial involvement. A realtor understands this and applies his training, skill and experience to create an ideal climate which will lead to a favorable decision to buy.

Here are his suggestions on how you can contribute to the selling effort:

1. Forget about being a perfect host or hostess. If you are at home when prospects visit — and it is not necessary that you be there — say hello graciously, offer to answer questions and exit gracefully. Let your realtor handle it.

It's your realtor's job to know people and how to deal with their questions or objections and to show your home to its best advantage.

Also, the buyer may hesitate to ask an important question that might be embarrassing to you if you are present. Give him a chance to ask all the questions and get them answered by the Realtor.

2. Control your pets and children. They may create a lived-in feeling, but they can be distracting and annoying at a time like this.

3. Cleanliness is vital. Treat every prospect visit as you would a visit by your husband's boss and his wife. This means: sparkling clean bathrooms. Bedrooms unoccupied, no boxes or clothing strewn about, waste baskets empty, no little finger prints on walls or appliances.

4. Even if the thought is disagreeable, you may have to invest in a little decorating to help you sell the home. Discolored walls, peeling paint, cracked plaster, leaking pipes and windows that won't open at all suggest that you may be just as careless about major features. A small investment to fix up the little things can pay off with a sale at your price instead of a buyer frightened by the prospect of spending a couple of thousand dollars to patch up the homestead on top of his big initial investment.

5. If you have to move before you sell the house, try to leave curtains, draperies and blinds intact. It makes a woman prospect feel more at home and helps her better to visualize her own furnishings.

6. In winter, keep your walks shoveled. Put sand on icy spots on walk or steps. Move family things out of the guest closet to display plenty of room for overcoats. If you have a fireplace, a cozy fire is a great touch.

7. In summer, a nicely manicured lawn, trimmed hedges and tools in place can help turn on a prospect and convince them to make offer.

8. Even though this is the age of Women's Lib, most women still regard the kitchen as the nerve center of their home. If it's not the most streamlined and complete kitchen ever created, you can't change that. You can be sure, however, that the range and oven are clean, dishes are washed and in place, garbage is out of sight, floors are clean and waxed. A few strategically placed flowers wouldn't hurt! This attention to detail is good merchandising. It suggests that you enjoy and respect your home and have given it tender loving care.

9. Closet clutter is another way to cool off the prospect. Closet space is an important item and potential buyers want to feel it is at least adequate. Create this impression by hanging garments properly and arrange shoes, ties, and other items — including necessary boxes — neatly.

10. The sound of music may be a hit in the theater but can ruin a sale. Keep the noise of TV and radio receivers, record players or musical instruments at a minimum.

11. If you are planning to sell some of your house furnishings which may not be included in the price of the house, wait until you sell the house. If the prospect asks about appliances, carpeting or other furnishings, of course you can reply that some items are included but that you would be happy to discuss the others at an appropriate time, the Continental executive said.

Celine Allen, Bea Ake named winners of real estate contest

Celine Allen

Bea Ake

Celine Allen and Bea Ake were named winners of a sales contest held by Holding O'Connor Blaeser Real Estate. For their winning efforts each was awarded dinner for two at the Greenhouse restaurant in Palatine.

The contest honored those salespeople who put the firm over the one-and-one-quarter and one-and-one-half-million dollars in sales during May. The firm actually finished just short of 1.8 million in sales during the month, said Jim Blaeser, sales manager of the firm.

U.S. Home releases results from first quarter of 1974

U.S. Home Corp. (NYSE) announced today that for its first quarter, which ended May 31, revenues totaled $78,473,000 and net income was $1,930,000 or 20 cents per share.

These results compare with revenues of $82,236,000 and net income of $3,407,000 or 36 cents per share for the same period last year.

Commenting on the announcement, Charles Rutenberg, Chairman of U.S. Home, said, "A slowdown in new orders written during the last half of fiscal 1974, caused by the compounding effects of the energy crisis and high mortgage interest rates, resulted in a lower level of deliveries during the quarter which ended May 31, 1974. Earnings were also adversely affected by the sharply increased cost of bank borrowings."

"The dollar volume of new orders written during the first quarter of the current fiscal year was 13 per cent lower than the same quarter last year. While this rate of new orders continues at what we must term an unsatisfactory level, it shows improvement over the last half of fiscal 1974, when the dollar volume of new orders was 18 per cent lower than the comparable period of the previous year," he explained.

Rutenberg also announced that U.S. Home had renewed through Aug. 31, 1975, its open line credit agreement with 24 banks. Under terms of this agreement, U.S. Home now has commitments of $145 million and is permitted to obtain an additional $30 million in commitments to a total of $175 million.

Headquartered in Clearwater, Fla., U.S. Home builds single-family homes, town houses, condominiums and apartments in Arizona, Texas, Colorado, Minnesota, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, Washington, D.C., Virginia and Florida.

Realty extension course offered this fall in Chicago

A real estate appraisal course will be offered in Chicago on an extension basis this fall by the Chicago Real Estate Board and the Illinois Chapter of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, according to CREB President Leo J. Sheridan, Jr.

Known as Course I-A, "Basic Appraisal Principles, Methods and Techniques" is the first in a series of AIREA courses that eventually lead to the professional designation of MAI "Member, Appraisers Institute," the highest designation given by the Institute.

Class sessions will meet on Monday and Thursday evenings beginning Thursday, Sept. 5, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Room 1227 of the Civic Tower at 32 W. Randolph St. Tuition is $175, which includes all the necessary materials except the required sixth edition of the basic textbook, "The Appraisal of Real Estate," and the optional "Appraisal Terminology and Handbook," which cost $15.23 and $7.88 respectively, tax included.

Enrollment is open to mature persons whose academic training or practical experience is equivalent to graduation from an accredited four-year high school. Enrollment will be limited to the first 100 registrants.

The course will be taught by Arnold M. Kaufman, MAI, Director of Real Estate Appraisal Board of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and by Richard Brandt, MAI, partner of Brandt-Carlson & Co.

Among the topics to be covered in Course I-A are the basic principles of property value, the appraisal process, techniques of statistical analysis and the cost approach, correlation and final value estimate and report writing.

The course will culminate in a comprehensive final examination on Saturday, Nov. 2. Although successful completion of the course does count as credit toward the MAI designation, it is not recognized for the Institute's other designation, RM (Residential Member).

Lightning protection systems essential to property security

A lightning protection system of proper materials, correctly installed according to the best protective science, will guard life and property for the lifetime of the residence when properly maintained.

This is the contention of Charles Carlee, Editor of the "Operating Techniques and Products Bulletin," an Institute of Real Estate Management monthly publication. Carlee proposes lightning guidelines for residential properties in the July, 1974 issue.

According to Carlee, failure to provide lightning protection, even failure to warn of lightning danger, can cost a building owner or an employer heavily. "In addition to property losses, owners and property managers also have to be concerned with meeting criteria of the Occupational Safety and Health Act where the owner's liability is awesome."

Carlee explains the anatomy of a lightning bolt and discusses how optimum lightning protection should be built into planned properties and added or upgraded in existing residential properties. He expresses concern that too often, buyers of lightning protection systems do not demand high enough requirements. Among the basic needs to be met include proper materials, proper workmanship, specialized installation and complete protection.

"Contrary to common conceptions of lightning protection equipment," reports Carlee, "the equipment does not consist of tall, conspicuous lightning rods and unsightly cables. They can be incorporated into structures in very inconspicuous manners and made to blend in very neatly. Three to five foot 'lightning rods' have given way to 'air terminals' which may be as short as 10 inches and are the only parts that show."

Carlee details the parts of a lightning protection system which are important to guarantee maximum residence security. He discusses air terminals, main conductors, branch conductors, lightning arresters, tree protection and grounding.

Carlee cautions that an improper system may not protect. "In fact, it may even contribute to the loss if the residence is struck. Thus, it is important to purchase a trustworthy system, not a bargain substitute that is cheaper because it is deficient."

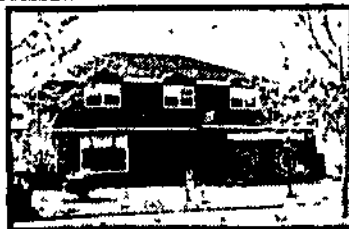

The "Operating Techniques and Products Bulletin," an official monthly publication of the Institute of Real Estate Management, is designed to keep the Institute membership, general public and government agencies informed about the field of professional property management.

Home at 9.5% rate cheaper than 8% house of future

If you bought a new home in Illinois today with a mortgage at 9½ per cent interest — a rate that is available now but not probable under a new law that is awaiting the governor's signature — it could still be thousands of dollars cheaper than waiting to get the home at 8 per cent interest, which is the prevailing legal limit in the state.

Those who fought to keep the Illinois usury ceiling at 8 per cent have been overlooking the impact of inflation on long-term costs of home ownership, asserts a Chicago real estate authority.

"The national average rate of interest for conventional mortgages issued by savings and loan associations the past few months has been from 8.6 to 8.7 per cent, even with generally higher allowable interest rates or no restrictions at all. The market determines the rates, and there is no reason to believe they will be any different in Illinois," said Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, for Baird & Warner, Inc.

Even with the current mortgage situation in Illinois, home-buying continues to be brisk, Walters says. Baird & Warner's sales volume for the first half of 1974 is almost equal to what it was at the same time a year ago, proving that many buyers are not postponing their decision.

What the wise buyer sees is that, even though interest rates may go higher under the new usury ceiling, it will still be less costly to buy a home now at current prices rather than wait for inflation rates to drop while inflation keeps pushing prices up, he contends.

"The critical issue is whether people will be able to buy homes and secure necessary financing at reasonable terms," said Walters. He is convinced that delay will increase costs for the same house thousands of dollars if price projections stand up.

According to a special report on the outlook for housing in the June, 1974 issue of "Professional Builder" magazine, the average selling price of new homes will rise 12.8 per cent this year, another 16 per cent in 1975 and 15.5 per cent more in 1976.

"The sharp rise in the average cost of single-family housing will be produced not only by the costs of financing but for the increasing builder costs of operations, materials, labor and land," Walters said.

Noting that the cost of existing housing tends to be proportionate to the price of new housing, Walters set up a hypothetical case to illustrate the comparative cost of buying a $40,000 home today or waiting two years to buy the same home.

"Very likely the family who was hoping to buy it for 20 per cent down discovers that they have to pay 40 per cent down, if they can find financing at all. This family might well have to shelve homebuying plans indefinitely," said Walters.

"Let us suppose, instead, that the loan interest to buy this particular house does in fact go to 9½ per cent, and we're not conceding that it would. But if it did it would certainly increase mortgage lending in Illinois. The money supply would improve and down payments would be dropped. Let's see how it might affect the buyer."

Walters allows, for the sake of making his point, that even at 9½ per cent interest today's buyer might only secure a 70 per cent mortgage and thus would have to pay 30 per cent down for the $40,000 house, or $12,000. (He suggests that at 9½ per cent, down payments could well be reduced to 25 or 20 per cent, or hopefully go as low as 10 per cent.)

This would leave you with a loan of $28,000. Your monthly payments for principal and interest on the loan at 9½ per cent (assuming a 30-year mortgage) come to $235.48. Annual cost is $2,825.76.

"Now let's suppose that it takes you two years to come back into the market for an 8 per cent loan. The price of that $40,000 house, meanwhile, has leaptfroged to $46,400 by 1975 and then to $53,582 in 1976," continued Walters.

If you could then get an 80 per cent mortgage you'd only need to put 20 per cent, or $10,718 down. But that would leave your mortgage at $42,874. Even though the cost per thousand dollars of your 8 per cent mortgage would only be $7.34, compared to a cost per thousand of $8.41 for a 9½ per cent, 30-year loan, the monthly charges on the bigger mortgage would be $314.76. Your annual charge is $3,776.

"Another way of looking at it is to see how much you've invested after 10 years, which is about the length of the average mortgage. If you bought the house today you'd pay $12,000 down and another $28,257 in mortgage payments for a total of $40,257," Walters continued.

"But look what happens if you wait two years to buy the same house, assuming the inflation forecast by housing experts materializes. Your down payment drops to $10,718 but your 10-year payments are $37,760 for a total of $48,478.

"So by waiting two years you've increased the cost of living in the same house for 10 years by more than $8,000. And that doesn't include two years in which perhaps you've been paying rent and not building any equity or enjoying the tax benefits of owning a home," he concluded.

'Brown outs' shouldn't hurt certified central coolers

During the past several years, when extremely hot summer weather has caused power outbacks, or "brown outs," in some sections of the country, some terms once known only to engineers and utility workers have come into use and have insinuated themselves into the public's vocabulary.

Some people use these terms without being completely sure what they denote in each case. The Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute has prepared a few definitions which may be helpful in discussing the energy situation:

A "brownout," for instance, occurs when the utility system drops the amount of power moving through its lines by reducing voltage — usually because its generating and transmission facilities can't meet the load demand temporarily. This may cause lights to dim, appliances to be less effective, the television picture to be dimmer.

A brownout shouldn't harm your central air-conditioner, if it is capable of starting up under reduced voltage conditions, because it is internally protected against excess current and temperature. However, if the unit cannot start at the reduced voltage level, the unit may be damaged. If your area is subject to brownouts, consult your installer or the power company, and if needed, most manufacturers provide a kit to correct the nonstart problem. Central air conditioners certified by the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute are designed to pass stringent tests, under which identical models have operated without damage at extreme conditions and at reduced voltage levels.

A "blackout" is much more serious. This is when the power is out altogether, usually in a given geographical area. While it will not harm the air conditioner, it is best to turn off your cooling system as well as other appliances and lights until current is restored. (They're not operating anyway; it's just a matter of remembering what was operating when the blackout occurred.)

The reason: If a lot of power-using equipment is already on the line when the power does come back, it can create a "power surge" which could, possibly, lead to another blackout. This is because the startup current (for a very short time) is considerably higher than the "running current" for air conditioners and other motor-driven equipment. So it is up to you, and all consumers in the affected area, to turn off appliances and lights and bring them back on the line only as needed after service is restored.

Power surges may be large or small in scope. They are created when a large additional load — large in proportion to the capacity of the section of the system in which it occurs — builds up in a short time, or is induced by nearby lightning, or malfunctions of switchgear or other apparatus in the utility system.

In your own home, a "mini" power surge may be caused when a toaster, electric percolator, electric blender, and portable electric kitchen heater, plus possibly a few lights and the electric juicer, are all on at the same time — if they happen to be on the same circuit. Most homes have protective devices to minimize the effects of surges, such as fuses or circuit breakers.

Most circuits for lighting and small appliances in homes are "fused" for 15 to 20 amperes (electric cooking, heating, water heaters, and central air-conditioning have special circuits, usually with higher voltage and amperage). If the draw on the circuit exceeds the amperage limit for which it is fused, either the fuse burns out or the circuit breaker does what it is intended to do — breaks the circuit — and everything on that line goes dead. When this happens, some of the load must be taken off the circuit and the fuse replaced or the circuit breaker reset.

In a utility's electric distribution system it's not quite that simple, although the system is divided into areas and smaller sectors, so that in most cases effects of a damaging surge may be confined within these sectors or areas. This system, like your home system, has protective devices similar in nature to your fuse box or circuit-breaker panel.

When one of these areas of "blocks" goes out because of a power surge, the area served by that circuit may suffer a "power outage" until the automatic overload switches are reset, or, in some cases, a transformer replaced. (A nearby stroke of lightning can cause a "transient" surge capable of knocking out a transformer.)

Keep attic vents open year-long

Ventilate your attic well. Leave the vents open both summer and winter.

That advice to home owners comes from the National Mineral Wool Insulation Assn., which represents practically all manufacturers of rock wool and fiber glass insulating materials. Categorically, both types are "mineral wool."

In summer, attic ventilation keeps heat from building up and thus keeping the living space beneath cooler. In winter, ventilation keeps the attic dry. Otherwise, moisture vapor might condense on the inside surface of the roof.

The attic is considered to be outdoor space and allowed to stay at outdoor temperature. Insulation in the attic floor is a thermal barrier, containing winter heating or summer cooling within the living space.

Vents in the gable ends of a roof are the most common type, the association says. There should be a vent in each gable end.

When there are vents in two gable ends, the National Assn. of Home Builders Research Foundation and the Federal Housing Administration recommend that each vent have one square foot of open area for each 300 square feet of attic floor. With rain louvers, the overall size should be doubled because the louvers bars shut off about half of the area.

Courtesy Manufacturing Co. gets more space in Elk Grove Village

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has recently announced that Courtesy Manufacturing Co. has leased the one-story, 28,000 square foot building at 1250 Pratt Blvd. in Elk Grove Village.

This facility is an addition to their main office building at 1300 Pratt Blvd., and a second facility at 1100 Pratt Blvd., both located in Elk Grove Village. Courtesy intends to use the building for additional computer facilities and warehousing.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was the sole broker in the $120,000 lease transaction, with James H. Dana representing Courtesy Manufacturing Co. and Gary L. Thompson and Robert A. Stone representing the lessor. Attorney for the lessor was Vincent Downing of Alexander & Green in New York City and Wallace Sollo of Brown, Fox & Brumberg representing the lessee.

15-year-old, shingled roof may soon need reroofing

Into each life some rain must fall. But if the rain is coming through an old roof, chances are the forecast is for a steady downfall. A 15-year-old roof covered with standard shingles is a prime candidate for reroofing.

That's because roofs tend to wear uniformly and even the best roofing materials eventually fall victim to weathering. The real culprit is the sun, which causes roofing to dry out, fade and become brittle. Wind, rain and temperature changes add to the aging process.

Signs of a weathered roof are excessive loss of protective mineral granules, cracked, curled or missing shingles and excessive buildup of granules in the base of downspouts. Before proceeding with a reroofing project however, the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association recommends an on-roof inspection by a professional roofer.

The professional roofer is a good source of product information and can recommend the best way to reroof your home. There are several points to keep in mind when making a product selection. For example, labor costs for installation of asphalt shingles tend to be the same whether the life expectancy of the shingle is 15 or 25 years. It may turn out that the better quality shingle, though costlier initially, is more economical in the long run because the cost of materials and labor is amortized over a longer period of time.

Asphalt shingles for example often can be installed over the existing roofing without the necessity of a tearoff. Since the labor cost of application is the same, consider using top-quality asphalt shingles, which are designed to last 25 years. Their higher initial cost can be amortized over the longer life of the roofing.

Another important consideration in the selection of roofing material is its fire resistance. Asphalt shingles are manufactured to meet the Underwriters' Laboratories Class C standards or better.

Dun-Rite Erectors buys in Elk Grove

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates reports the sale of the one-story 7,500 square foot building located at 370 Bond St., Elk Grove Village, to Dun-Rite Erectors. The purchaser plans to use the facility for the assembly of custom conveyor systems.

Vernon Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was sole broker in the $115,000 transaction. Attorneys were Don Alspaugh for the purchaser and Charles Albright for the seller.

Roofing with a Class C label indicates the shingles will not be easily ignited, will resist the spreading of flames over the roof area and will not emit burning brands, which could result in new fires. Many communities now require that new roofs meet at least the Underwriters' Laboratories Class C standard — a regulation that has the support of such organizations as the National Fire Protection Association and the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

Pavia breaks Starck sales record

Tony Pavia was recognized as the top salesman for the month of June at Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors. In winning the award, he equaled an all-time company record for the most points scored during any one month's competition.

Pavia works in the Schaumburg office of Starck & Co. Other office winners included: Carol Marsh, Mount Prospect; Norm Macy, Hoffman Estates; Bill Murphy, Arlington Heights; Paul Palm and Larry White, Palatine.

The Starck Salesman of the Month award is based on a point system for listings obtained, sales and referrals that are sold by the over 700 member firms of RELO, Inter-City Relocation Service. RELO is the international referral organization of which Starck is a member. Its purpose is to help families, who move from one community to another, to accomplish the move with a minimum of time and effort.

Pavia has been associated with Starck for 2½ years. He and his wife Mandy reside in Schaumburg. Before joining Starck, he worked for IBM for 15 years, and he served in the United States Marine Corps for six years. His outside interests include amateur theater with Loyola University, wine making and hypnosis.

Neal A. Pederson named manager of company's product development

Neal A. Pedersen has been named manager of product development for Hoffman Rosner Corp., publicly-held construction and development company, Hoffman Estates. It was announced today by Jerry J. Berger, executive vice president.

In his newly-created post in the company's research and development department, Pedersen will provide technical and design expertise in the development of new housing products and the modification of existing ones, Berger said.

Pedersen formerly served with the Larwin Co. in California since mid-1970, and most recently was purchasing manager with responsibilities for model site supervision. He holds a degree in architectural engineering from California State Polytechnic University.

Berger said that Pedersen's appointment marks a major expansion of the research and development department, which conducts analyses of market trends and consumer attitudes and then translates them into the design of new housing units.

Hoffman Rosner currently is developing three communities in the Chicago area and another outside of Philadelphia. The company's sales in the nine-month fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1973, were $27,122,000.

The wrong price for home hurts salesman's enthusiasm

Of all the ingredients that go into selling a house, none is more important than the right price.

A home that is not offered at fair market value will not only turn away potential buyers, it will turn off real estate salesmen who can be the key to a fast and successful sale.

Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, for Baird & Warner, Inc. notes:

"A real estate professional can help you sell your home quickly and with the least amount of inconvenience to you because he knows what to do and how to do it, starting with establishing a reasonable price. It's his job. But if you insist on a price that is out of tune with the market, a seasoned professional with integrity will be reluctant to list your home."

Walters suggested several reasons that professionals avoid overpricing and overpriced homes:

- Through arrangement with multiple listing services, not only do you have the sales staff of your listing broker working for you but the manpower of many other firms also trying to sell your house. But those extra troops won't want to cooperate in showing and trying to sell an overpriced home.

- Because homes that aren't priced realistically and equitably are always slow moving, the professional doesn't want to be associated with that kind of house. His reputation for handling fairly priced homes is at stake and so is his livelihood. Buyers want to deal with brokers who are known to handle properties that are priced fairly and competitively.

- A salesman wants to spend his time showing a home that he considers saleable. If he can't enthusiastically show a house that is fairly priced by comparing it with other homes he'll be showing, potential buyers will not want to return to that house.

- If you don't price your house right, the broker can't make a sale. You both lose.

"There are so many things that come into play in pricing a house when you list a house with us," said Walters. "We have to consider both national and local economic conditions, the local real estate market, the condition of homes similar to yours that have recently been sold or are currently on the market."

Walters said the owner lacks access to current information in the volatile real estate market. He also may be too emotionally involved with his home to be objective about what others are willing to pay for it in a competitive situation.

"An attempt to sell a house without the energetic and enthusiastic participation of real estate professionals who are trained to do the job can make it a long and arduous task," Walters observes. "You also lose access to a great reservoir of prospective out-of-town buyers who are depending upon brokers to scout up attractive homes."

"I guess what it comes down to is that a professional will work his tail off to sell a house that is priced right to sell reasonably quickly. If it isn't, he doesn't want to waste his time or risk his reputation and the seller loses an important ally," he concluded.

Weather-protect lawn furniture from summer's heat and humidity

Wooden outdoor furniture needs special attention because it is particularly susceptible to moisture. Wood readily absorbs moisture from rainy days and summer's humidity, creating mildew-infested undersides, blistering paint and rusted joints and metal fixtures.

These problems can be alleviated if you take time out this summer to "weather protect" your lawn furniture with paint.

First, properly prepare the surface. If the surface is dirty and faded and you just want to paint to perk it up, wash the surface with a household detergent and water and rinse well. If paint has blistered and flaked, remove it with a metal scraper or wire brush. Sand down any rough edges that are left behind.

If mildew is a problem, scrub the affected area with a solution containing two-thirds cup trisodium phosphate (contained in most all-purpose cleaners), one-third cup of detergent, one quart of household bleach, and enough warm water to make a gallon solution. After scrubbing, rinse the area well with clear water and allow the surface to dry.

Resist any "popped" nails and remove rust stains around nails with sandpaper. Then prime the nail heads with a metal primer. If rust is a problem on metal fixtures, scrape it off with a metal scraper or wire brush and touch up the metal with a metal primer also.

Next, brush on a good exterior enamel undercoat or primer. This prime coat provides better adhesion for the final coat, and also gives added protection. Finally, choose your favorite color in exterior enamel and brush away!

Older structures getting more real estate attention

"Recycling, that is putting old and outmoded homes back into the mainstream of American housing, may well be the tonic needed by the building industry when the current tight money crunch eases."

That's what Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization, believes.

He reports that "Imaginative builders developers will be creating luxury apartments from antiquated townhouses, providing elegant contemporary living units.

"The charm and dignity are there; the structures are the results of basic architectural principles and the foundations and walls are sound. This is a good start in any rejuvenation project."

"All that's needed then is keen aesthetic sense, lots of ingenuity," Dennison declares.

"Old brick and timber structural materials are usually left intact. New items, such as oak flooring, door frames, trim and stairs are custom-made to complement existing materials.

"Most important, keep the original character — the dwelling's flavor," Dennison suggests.

He observes that another important aspect to be considered in "Project: Rejuvenation" is that it is not exclusively the province of the major builder.

"Private individuals are purchasing old row houses with the purpose of remodeling and restoration in mind."

"For some it offers a meaningful equity investment — monthly rental income plus their own living quarters," Dennison concludes.

Lake Northbrook Plaza gets renamed Sanders Court

The investment group which recently acquired the shopping center nearing completion in Northbrook, announced this week a new name for the development. Arthur Rubloff & Co., which represents the new owners, disclosed that the project formerly known as Lake Northbrook Plaza has been re-named "Sanders Court."

Gene Beak, senior vice president of the Rubloff firm, stated that it is felt the location of the new 120,000-square-foot shopping center is better identified by the name of a prominent thoroughfare which runs through the heart of the area the center will primarily serve. Sanders Court is situated on a 12-acre site at the intersection of Sanders and Dundee Roads.

The first phase of construction is expected to be completed by late this summer. At that time 70 per cent of the mall will be ready and opened with about 15 stores, including a 43,000-square-foot Dominick's Finer Foods supermarket and a 16,000 square foot Osco Drugs. The balance of the Sanders Court shopping center will be completed early next year and will provide for an additional 10 stores at that time.

A.B. Dick celebrates move to Elk Grove Village facility

A. B. Dick Co. officially celebrated the move of its information products division into new facilities in Elk Grove Village with an open house.

More than 500 guests attended the opening including employees from the Elk Grove and Niles plants, customers and city administrators.

The 72,000 sq. ft. facility, located at 2200 Arthur Ave. more than doubles the space the division occupied formerly at the Niles plant. The facility incorporates all division operations — research, engineering, manufacturing and marketing as well as administrative support functions.

More than 175 persons are employed now at the facility. Increased staffing is expected, says the company, with the planned growth of the division.

The division is responsible for developing new product lines outside of the company's traditional copying and duplicating markets. It presently manufactures high-speed non-impact printing systems for commercial and industrial use.

These systems are capable of coding and imprinting control numbers on all types of packages and surfaces including can containers, bottles, cartons, address labels — even fresh foodstuffs.

The division also produces electrical and electronic components for the company's copying and duplicating division in Niles.

Guests were given tours of administrative offices, manufacturing and engineering sections.

Demonstrations also were given of the M9000 Videojet (TM) Printer which heads the company's line of high-speed, non-impact printing systems.

Rising population density will change style of living

Rising Population density 3-42 Ital — Profile of America, 2000 A.D.: 300 new cities each with populations of 140,000.

- About 271 million people or 60 million more than 1974.
- Forty-four million of these new Americans will opt for city living.
- Density will be approaching 77 people per square mile in contrast to today's 56.

So projects Robert W. Gaber, president and chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Company, San Francisco. Gaber observes that "to shelter and provide facilities serving this burgeoning populace is the major task of the nation's real estate sector during the fourth quarter of this century."

"Meeting this demand requires construction of one city with adequate housing for about 140,000 residents during each month of every year from now until 2000 A.D."

He explains that a population of approximately 140,000 appears to be a viable number for a self-sufficient community — one large enough to offer employment opportunities to its residents, yet small enough to retain an individual's sense of identity and belonging.

Gaber notes that examples of cities comprising nearly 140,000 citizens in current statistics include Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Youngstown, Ohio; Riverside, Calif.; Evansville, Ind.; and Newport News, Va.

"Simply 'housing' Americans, however, isn't sufficient," he emphasizes. "These new cities must combine the best features of older metropolises with today's most promising construction techniques."

"The goal is a balance between suburbia and downtown city life — the privacy of the suburbs without its frequent isolation and the diversity of big-city living without its present overcrowding."

Gaber continues that "the shape of

New Town 2000 A.D. will be vertical — multi-family structures of varying heights due to the ever soaring cost of available land.

"This emerging pattern need not be unattractive nor monolithic," he adds. "In fact, one of the great challenges to the construction sector is bringing variety to the high-rise through innovative design and novel use of building materials."

"Emphasis will be on differing dimensions and floor plans to give families an opportunity for individual preferences as well as privacy."

Gaber comments further that light industry, commercial centers and shopping malls in new cities will also follow the skyward trend. A case in point is the revival of high-rise department stores, once the hallmark of downtown business sections in our older metro-regions.

He points out that an additional aim of these end-of-the-century developments — preserving the charm of small-town America — will result in construction of community centers and town halls, thus providing sites for recreational activities and local government participation.

"These community and political functions will be reminiscent of the old New England town-meeting spirit.

"For the 40-million-plus inhabitants of New Towns, U.S.A., in the year 2000 A.D., community life will be exciting, diversified and with room for individual expression and choice," Gaber concludes.

Biofeedback taps mind power

(In the second of two articles on new help that is now available to headache sufferers, Eleanor Rives discusses the biofeedback technique, described as "one of the greatest breakthroughs in headache therapy.")

by ELEANOR RIVES

Five years ago a new medical technique was given a name.

The name was "biofeedback." Since then the name has tripped over the tongues of professionals and filtered into the conversation of practically everyone interested in the physical functions of his own body.

"Biofeedback," says Dr. Seymour Diamond, president of the National Migraine Foundation, "is one of the greatest breakthroughs in headache therapy."

Biofeedback is also a promising new therapy in the relief of asthma, epilepsy, hypertension, hyperkinesia and other functional disorders of many systems.

The biofeedback technique is used to teach patients to control their involuntary bodily processes, such as blood pressure, heart beat, internal temperatures and muscle tension, by means of special equipment that translates these processes into immediate audible or visible signals.

WHEN NEUROLOGIST Diamond read the initial reports concerning biofeedback at the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan., he immediately became interested. After visiting the clinic and seeing firsthand what was being done, he became a convert to biofeedback. For the past two years he has utilized biofeedback methods of therapy in the treatment of severe headache in his headache clinic in northwest Chicago.

One such machine teaches headache patients to raise the temperature of their hands. Another teaches them to relax the frontalis muscle of their forehead.

The hand-warming technique is aimed particularly at patients suffering from vascular headaches such as migraine — the massive, sick headache often accompanied by nausea, diarrhea and visual disturbances such as spots before the eyes, flashing lights and undue sensitivity to light and noise.

COLD HANDS in general, but especially during an attack, are associated with migraine sufferers. During an attack the victim's blood vessels become dilated and there is an increased blood flow through the arteries to the brain. By thinking "warm hands, cool head," the patient can learn to direct the blood flow to his hands which automatically raises their temperature.

Of course this takes practice. Electrodes are attached to the patient's fingers. He is given a page of warm, relaxing phrases to repeat over and over, and suggestions for warm imagery in his mind. A monitor registers the slightest temperature change in his hands. Gradually the patient recognizes what thoughts, feelings and imagery will raise the meter. Eventually he can raise his hand temperature at will, without a monitor to guide him.

"Patients have been known to raise their hand temperature as much as 17 degrees, but sometimes it takes only a two-degree change to avert a migraine," explained a technician at the headache clinic.

LEARNING TO RELAX the frontalis muscle of the forehead is a technique directed to patients with severe psychogenic headaches — also called "tension" or "depression" headaches. With earphones in place, leads attached to his forehead and an electromyograph transcribing any forehead muscle tension into unpleasant sound, the headache sufferer, following a page of guide phrases, begins to relax from toe to top.

Complete relaxation of the frontalis muscle is only possible when jaw, neck and shoulder tension have also been overcome. And complete relaxation removes the irritating sound, as well as the headache.

For a patient with pure migraine, especially one under age 30, the hand-warming technique seems to be most effective. For persons whose migraines have been complicated by muscle contraction, both biofeedback methods are employed.

A THIRD MODALITY occasionally used at the headache clinic, but only experimentally at this time, is a modified electro-encephalogram. It, too, teaches relaxation. Electrodes placed on the patient's head detect brain wave impulses, which elude normal consciousness, and translate them into sound. The alpha wave, which is produced during periods of pleasant, passive relaxation, produces a certain tone which the patient then attempts to sustain as long as possible. Eventually, with training, he can turn on his alpha waves independent of the biofeedback machine.

Both Dr. Diamond and his biofeedback technician cautioned that one should attempt to use these modalities only through a physician. That they may eventually make medication the "old-fashioned" way of treating headaches is certainly a good possibility.

But now, according to Dr. Diamond, "they are not the answer to everything, but in the hands of a physician, they are useful tools."

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

COMPLETE MUSCLE relaxation is the most effective cure for tension headaches, and a sure way to know you are completely relaxed is to be hooked up to an electromyograph feedback monitor. The slightest contraction of the forehead muscles is detected, amplified and fed back to the patient in the form of a rising tone. As muscles relax, the tone diminishes, and with complete relaxation disappears.

You and your headache

The National Migraine Foundation gives the following advice to persons who suffer from headaches:

1. Don't treat yourself without a diagnosis.
2. Do follow a treatment regimen and consult frequently with your doctor.
3. Don't traffic in quackery, for nothing is as expensive as poor therapy.
4. Learn to handle the headache episode quickly and expeditiously.
5. Carry your medication with you, especially if you have migraine.
6. Avoid or modify situations in your personal life which bring on a headache repeatedly.
7. Get away from home from time to time and learn to unwind.
8. Try to reestablish your sense of humor, if you have lost it.
9. Establish a pleasant and relaxing hobby, preferably non-competitive, and one which requires some physical work.

Best contemporary homes

Designed to meet owner's needs

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

Most of us never will live in an award-winning home, but it is interesting, nevertheless, to take a look at these special houses, to day dream, gather a few ideas, perhaps even to say: "You couldn't give it to me."

Architectural Record recently presented its 1974 "Record House" — the 19th year of awards for "the best in contemporary houses."

The winners range from a home built into a hill in Lyme, N.H., with wildflowers growing on the sod roof to camouflage the structure, to a turn of the century carriage house renovated at a cost of $85,000.

Cost was not a criterion in the selections, however. Architect Wendell Lovett built his award-winning vacation retreat $15,000. The house, only 12 feet wide, on Crane Island in Puget Sound for about contains just 370 square feet. One secret: "There is no wasted motion in the design and hardly a space or element that is not put to multiple use."

HALLMARKS of the 1974 homes generally are unpretentious elegance, large, uncluttered space and a concern for ecology. Simplicity, of design and upkeep, is paramount, reflected in a predominance of natural materials, wide use of built-in furniture, including such traditional items as beds and couches.

Herbert Smith, managing editor of Architectural Record and a member of the awards jury, said design reflects the virtual disappearance of servants and the new concept of woman's role in the home. "More provision has been made for the wife to do things outside the kitchen, and maybe away from the children," he said.

Exteriors, too, are simple and most use the traditional building materials.

The Engle residence in Boxboro, Mass., for example, was designed by Robert Whitton using simple wood painted white to achieve a sculptured effect, echoing a 1930s style, but in contemporary terms. Like the other homes, the house is built with its site in mind; windows give full view of the changing seasons.

THE IDEA OF bringing the outside in, reflected a few years ago in the "picture window," seems to have given way to designs which concentrate on inside space. The result is dramatic ceilings sweeping up more than a story; catwalks bridging these living spaces on upper levels reached by circular staircases.

The designs also look toward combining the desirability for family togetherness with the need for individual privacy. The Florida residence in Elizabeth Township, Pa., designed by architect Tasso G. Katselas, for example, provides a separate apartment, with outside entrance, for the owner's college age daughter. In the Horton house designed by architect Elliot Noyes in Greenwich, Conn., the family room is placed across a courtyard from the kitchen — precisely opposite the trend of a few years ago for the family room and kitchen to blend into one space.

"People no longer want to see the mess in the kitchen when they're eating," Smith said, reflecting what he sees as a new accent on elegance without the stiff formality that elegance implied a generation ago when it last was in vogue.

In most of the houses, there is a new emphasis on space and usefulness, with a corresponding decline of emphasis on form. Most of the houses appear from the outside as an amalgam of geometric shapes — triangles, squares, rectangles and cylinders.

ECOLOGY WAS the theme reflected in the 1974 houses. The energy crisis is not reflected specifically in any of the homes — indeed, many of the vast windows and interior spaces could add costs of heating and cooling. However, there is obvious climatic concern in the design. In the Winston house in Lyme, N.H., designer Don Metz says winter solar gain is sufficient on sunny days to keep temperatures in the house up to 70 degrees while outside temperatures are as low as zero.

In summer, when the thermal process is reversed, the insulating mantle of earth on the roof keeps the house pleasantly cool.

Each of the houses shows careful attention to placement. There are no wide lawns in front to show off the magnificence of the facade. The houses often have modest exteriors and are more likely to be hidden away.

The thing which draws the attention to each of the homes, whether or not it's a house to your taste, is its obvious individuality. Each is imaginative and clearly designed as a solution to the owner's needs and desires.

It's second time around for a 25-year-old gown

It was the second time around for a 25-year-old wedding gown last Saturday when Deborah Kay Strom became the bride of Daniel Mikata, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mikata, 626 S. Kaspar, Arlington Heights.

The candlelight satin gown was originally worn by Deborah's mother and featured a cathedral train and long bodice draped at the hipline. A champagne Camelot headpiece held her cathedral veil which was edged with Venice lace and satin ribbon inset, and she carried gardenias and baby's breath with greens.

Deborah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Strom of Belvidere, Ill., is a teacher in Elk Grove Village. She is a graduate of the University of Illinois as is her bridegroom. Daniel, also a graduate of St. Viator High School, is with Inland Steel Co., Chicago.

THE COUPLE'S candlelight wedding was held at 3:30 p.m. July 27 in First Presbyterian Church, Belvidere, and followed by a reception for 350 guests in the BelMar Country Club, Belvidere.

Suzanne Strom was her sister's maid of honor. She was in a lime green chiffon halter gown with matching capelet, and her headpiece was a small bow with a cascade of chiffon flowers matching her gown. She carried a crescent of green cymbidiums.

Bridesmaids were Karen Wells, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Judi Johnson, Rockford; Mrs. Ann Gerdes, Peoria; Mrs. Colleen Braid, Miami Lakes, Fla.; and Marcia Olson, LaGrange. They were in apple green and carried yellow cymbidiums.

The groom's 8-year-old sister, Susan, was flower girl, also in apple green.

Best man was James Jorgensen, Arlington Heights. Ushers were the groom's brothers, James and Kenneth; the bride's brother, Jeffrey, and Richard Schuetzner, Oak Park; and Jeffrey Atkins, Arlington Heights. The bride's brother, John, was soloist.

Mrs. Daniel Mikata

Airline service poor? Complain to him

Have a consumer complaint involving an airline? The Civil Aeronautics Board has an Office of Consumer Affairs which seems to be taking a fairly tough stance in favor of consumers.

Its director is Jack Yohe, who believes that airline ticket regulations "are filled with jargon" designed to thwart the public, and that baggage handling is "deficient."

Yohe urges that passengers who get unsatisfactory service from the airlines contact his office, which last year received 14,760 such complaints. "We are ready to help," he promises.

Write to: Jack Yohe, Office of Consumer Affairs, Civil Aeronautics Board, 1825 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20428. The telephone number is 202/393-3111.

THE CAB DOES HAVE some regulations to protect passengers' consumer rights, but it is often up to the passenger to know these rules and demand that they be followed.

For example, if an airline has "over-sold" a flight and a passenger with a confirmed reservation is unable to board, the airline is required to get the passenger on another flight that will arrive at his destination within two hours of his originally scheduled arrival time. If this is not possible, the airline must reimburse the passenger the price of his ticket, while still honoring his reservation.

The airlines are not responsible for any passenger compensation if a flight is canceled because of mechanical problems, weather or safety factors, but most airlines will provide stranded travelers with a free meal, a telephone call, a night's lodging or ground transportation.

COOK COUNTY State's Atty. Bernard Carey has announced that his Fraud and Consumer Complaint Division will station its mobile unit in the parking lot of the Northport Shopping Center, Rand and Palatine roads, Arlington Heights, Aug. 6 through 10.

The facilities of the unit will be available to any consumer, free of charge, and without appointments. Anyone who believes he or she has been the victim of a fraud — whether by door-to-door salesmen, a car dealer, or other deceptive business transaction — should bring all pertinent receipts, checks, contracts, etc.

The consumer

Such consumer help is regularly available at the state's attorney's permanent facilities in Room 303, Chicago Civic Center, Randolph and Clark, Chicago, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The telephone number there is 443-8425.

DECEPTIVE ADVERTISING: The FTC has ordered Sterling Drug to stop claiming that its disinfectant Lysol kills germs, viruses and bacteria or that it is of any medical benefit in reducing the spread of such disease-bearing substances.

Meanwhile, Media & Consumer notes that Warner-Lambert has a new disinfectant on the market now called "Lis-terol" — and right below that name, the label says "from the makers of Listerine antiseptic." M&C warns that children — or even adults — might confuse the disinfectant with the mouthwash and be seriously harmed.

Two other ads that sound like a lot of meaningless jargon: An underarm deodorant and Bayer aspirin are both currently being touted as "micro-encapsulated." Whatever that means, and whatever it does to improve a deodorant and a drug, remains a mystery.

SIGN OBSERVED in a local shop:

"There is hardly anything in the world that some man cannot make a little worse and sell a little cheaper and the people who consider price only are this man's lawful prey." — John Ruskin.

Salt for tomatoes optional

Dear Dorothy: I have high blood pressure and so have to be on a salt-free diet. In the instructions I've read to can tomatoes, it calls for a teaspoon of salt to a quart of tomatoes. Is this necessary to preserve the tomatoes?

—Virginia Gardner

Not according to the three canning books in front of me. One says salt "may" be added "if permitted." A second says "if desired" and the third says flatly that the salt is for flavoring only and isn't necessary for safe processing.

Dear Dorothy: I like to make candles as a hobby, but can't get the wicks to go through the centers. So while the candles are pretty, they don't burn down evenly. I've tried tying the wick to a pencil and anchoring the other end to the bottom of the mold, but it still slips. Would you know about this?

—Jackie Everett

Depend on the small fry. Our 8-year-old grandson, David, has been making candles both at school and home so I asked him. Quickly, he said he'd learned that pencils usually are slick and won't hold the wick as taut as is needed. His answer was to use a piece of wood to tie the wick to and said he'd had fine success.

Dear Dorothy: I have a hint for painting stairways that might interest others. Most people paint every other one. When we painted our stairs, we painted three-fourths of each step one day, and three-fourths the next day. That way you could use each step and had two coats of paint where it got the most use.

Susan's sister, Sara Ann, was maid of honor, and Marcia Howes, Arlington Heights, was bridesmaid. James Golden, Palatine, was best man, and the bride's brother, James, and the groom's brother-in-law, Michael Porter, Apple Valley, Minn., were ushers.

THE WEDDING was followed by a buffet reception for 150 in the Arlington Heights Elks Club. The newlyweds honeymooned a week at Mackinac Island and the upper peninsula of Michigan. They are now residing in a Mount Prospect apartment.

Stinging nettle itch culprit

Have you ever had the "7-minute" itch?

Nothing much is ever written about it, but maybe some information about "it" may save you some small anxiety if you should encounter it during the summer.

Our experience with the "7-minute" itch was during a camping trip. We were setting up a tent while our daughter went off to play and pick blueberries.

Soon she returned crying, her hands covered with a suspicious burning rash. Our immediate reaction was: "Oh no, poison ivy! — child laid up — itching — doctor — misery — no more woods!"

Tiny white welts started popping up like mosquito bites and the poor little kid was getting "what-for" as the result of an innocent walk down a berry patch.

THE SECOND TIME the "7-minute itch" struck was this spring — as I weeded my delphinium bed — right outside the living room window. Both times our hands broke out, burned and itched. Both times it lasted only briefly, but both times we thought it was something much worse.

The culprit: stinging nettle, an innocuous garden weed that likes to throw scars into people. The slim 3 to 5-foot weed is commonly found on rivers, creek banks and meadows. Its leaves contain tiny stinging hairs that irritate the skin at the slightest touch.

Actually, stinging nettle is edible, and if you wear gloves to pick it, the stinging hairs that cause the "7-minute" itch disappear in boiling. The leaves may be cooked like spinach, dried for tea, used as a potherb in soups or as a fresh green, and its roots produce yellow dye.

THE INDIANS USED stinging nettle as an astringent and also as a cathartic, making a powder of dried and ground yellow nettle and blowing the powder into the throat. The medicine men considered nettle juice as a blood cleanser, a remedy for the common cold, diarrhea, mad dog bite, aching feet, jaundice, gangrene, pinworms and other assorted Indian maladies.

Which only goes to prove the sting of the stinging nettle isn't all that bad. Some plants are good for nothing. Stinging nettle is good for something.

Keepsake ribbon trims bridal bouquet

The ribbon from the groom's great-great-great-grandmother's wedding dress was tied into the bouquet carried by Cheryl Ann Bretz for her July 13 marriage to James D. Kuper.

Cheryl and James were married by candlelight in the Community Presbyterian Church of Mount Prospect.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bretz, 623 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, and the groom's parents are the Alfred Kupers of Deadwood, S.D. The newlyweds met while the groom was stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station through a mutual friend who was also stationed there.

Now Cheryl and her husband are on their way to San Diego, Calif., where he will report for sea duty in mid-August. His recent base was at Norfolk, Va.

AFTER GRADUATING from Prospect High School in '71 and from Harper College in '73, Cheryl was a secretary for attorney Lee Garr in Elk Grove Village.

As she was given in marriage, she wore a white nylon over silk organza gown appliqued with lace on the high neckline, the long puffed sleeves and A-line skirt with its long train. Her full-length veil was attached to a Juliet headpiece of matching lace.

Her bouquet was composed of phalaenopsis, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Cheryl's maid of honor was Diane Selje of Niles, Ill., and bridesmaids were Karen Kula, Mount Prospect, and the bride's sister, Kathryn Bretz. The three girls wore yellow dotted swiss voile halter dresses with short jackets. They also wore yellow picture hats and carried yellow tea roses and baby's breath, daisies and white carnations.

BILL ADKINS of Lead, S.D., was best man, while Craig Larson, Mount Prospect, and Terry Hansen, the groom's brother-in-law from Deadwood, seated the wedding guests.

Also in the bridal party, Heidi Hansen, 2, of Deadwood was flower girl and Charles J. Bretz III, 5, the bride's brother, was ring bearer. Heidi was attired similarly to the adult attendants and carried a basket of the same variety flowers.

A dinner and dancing reception followed the ceremony at Allegretti's Velvet Room, Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Kuper

Hoffman teachers marry July 13 in Walnut, Ill.

Hoffman High School teachers Stephanie Adele Lawrence and Robert Earl Haskell were married July 13 and after Aug. 15 will be residing in Roselle.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Lawrence, Walnut, Ill., teaches English, speech and dramatics, and is also activity director for the school. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Haskell, Elk Grove Village, teaches mathematics and coaches basketball.

The couple's wedding took place at 4:30 p.m. in United Methodist Church, Walnut, with Stephanie wearing a polyester sheer gown in princess lines with Venise lace. Lace also trimmed her cathedral train, and appliques of the lace trimmed her cathedral veil. A Camelot crown held her veil, and she carried white orchids and stephanotis on a white satin and lace heart with streamers. An opal droplet necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, completed her ensemble.

STEPHANIE'S SISTER, Mrs. Paula Beams, Walnut, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Sandy Morgan, Chicago, Cindy Miller, Sandy Suydam and Mrs. Linda Stone, Lombard. All wore red dotted voile halter gowns with matching capelets, white picture hats with red ribbon streamers and red and white carnations. They carried peppermint carnations on white satin and lace hearts.

Breana Beams, niece of the bride, was flower girl wearing a white organza gown with lace trim. She wore red and white carnations in her hair and carried a white basket with peppermint carnation petals. Ring bearer was the bride's nephew, Brian Beams.

BEST MAN WAS the groom's brother, Edward Haskell, Elk Grove, and groomsmen were James and Ronald Haskell, brothers of the groom; Robert Lee, Tacoma, Wash.; and Daniel Agard, Schaumburg. Ushers were Kent Beams, brother-in-law of the bride; Vern Kujath, Plainfield, Ill.; James Robinson, North Aurora; and Roy Schodtler, Palatine.

A reception was held in the church following the double ring service and the bridal party and other guests also greeted the couple at a dinner that evening at Emerald Hill Country Club, Sterling.

The newlyweds honeymooned on a trip to the Pacific northwest.

The groom is a graduate of Prospect

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Haskell

High School and both he and his bride were graduated from Illinois State University, Normal, in 1970. They received their master's degrees from Northern in 1974.

Some like it cool!

When the temperature soars and appetites dropp, cool off with a back yard party.

The main course of the party is a scrumptious salad of cool, crisp lettuce, topped, at serving time, with cucumber and mushroom slices, ripe olives and chilled, cooked shrimp. Over the Summer Salad Bowl, a Caper Dressing is poured, then the salad is tossed lightly and served with a basket of assorted rolls or muffins.

Preceding the salad, or perhaps accompanying it if the hostess wishes, an appealing quartet of appetizers is served. Lettuce roll-ups filled with cream cheese or cheddar, stuffed party tomatoes with a duo of fabulous fillings and two dips for crackers or chips are offered to summer guests. For a decorative touch, the guacamole spread fits nicely into a scooped-out grapefruit while a clam dip is attractive in a pretty green pepper "holder."

What could be prettier for dessert than a Baked Ice Cream Alaska Pie? The pie can be made the day before — just bake the crust and fill with fruit and ice cream, and place in the freezer. The meringue is put on at the last minute. Then with a quick trip into the oven, a drizzling of Melba Sauce, it climaxes the party.

SUMMER SALAD BOWL

- 2 heads iceberg lettuce
- Caper Dressing
- 1 medium-size cucumber
- 2 cups fresh mushrooms, sliced

- ½ cup pitted ripe olives, sliced
- ½ to 1 pound cooked prawns or large shrimp

Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; refrigerate in a plastic container. Prepare Caper Dressing. Cut lettuce into bite-size chunks to measure 3 quarts, and turn into large chilled salad bowl. Score cucumber lengthwise with tines of a fork and cut in thin diagonal slices. Combine cucumber, mushrooms and olives with lettuce and toss lightly. Top with prawns. Just before serving, pour Caper Dressing over salad and toss lightly. Makes about 12 servings.

Caper Dressing: Combine ½ cup salad oil, ¼ cup garlic flavored red wine vinegar, 1 teaspoon each salt and Dijon mustard, ½ teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon finely crumbled tarragon, and 1 tablespoon capers in a jar. Cover tightly and shake thoroughly to blend. Shake again just before using. Makes 1 cup dressing.

ICEBERG APPETIZERS

- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons pimlento, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons ripe olives, finely chopped
- 2 teaspoons parsley, finely chopped
- ½ teaspoon onion salt
- 4 large leaves iceberg lettuce, washed and drained

Soften cream cheese and beat smooth. Blend in pimlento, olives, parsley and onion salt. Trim off stem end of lettuce leaves. For each large leaf (trimmed to about 5x8 ½ inches) use ¼ cup cheese mixture, spreading it evenly over leaf. Roll up tightly, crosswise of leaf, and wrap in plastic wrap. Chill about 30 minutes. Cut into 1 ¼ inch slices to serve. Makes about 20 pieces.

Cheddar Rolls: Soften 1 cup sharp Cheddar cheese spread. Blend in 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley and 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish. Spread over 4 lettuce leaves. Roll up, wrap and chill as above.

Note: These rolls remain crisp if prepared within a couple of hours of serving. Spread can be made ahead and lettuce leaves washed and chilled ready for filling. Left-overs can be refrigerated and will remain fairly crisp, if covered.

STUFFED PARTY TOMATOES

- 3 hard-cooked eggs
- 2 tablespoons real mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- ½ teaspoon salt

- ¼ teaspoon dill weed
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- 18 to 24 plum tomatoes
- Olives for garnish

Sieve eggs (or chop very fine). Mix with mayonnaise, mustard, salt, dill weed and pepper. Cut a small slice from top of each tomato and hollow out using a slender ¼ teaspoon measure or vegetable peeler. Set tomatoes upside-down to drain as they are hollowed. Fill generously with egg mixture. Garnish with small wedge or slice of ripe and pimlento-stuffed green olives. Makes 18 to 24.

Pate Stuffed Tomatoes: Mash ½ cup braunschweiger and blend with 2 tablespoons sour cream. Use to stuff 18 to 24 plum tomatoes. Garnish with parsley sprig or toasted sesame seeds.

CLAM SPREAD

- 1 cup small curd cottage cheese
- 1 cup (6 ½ oz.) chopped clams
- 2 tablespoons green onion, minced, including tops
- 1 tablespoon green pepper, finely chopped
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1/16 teaspoon garlic powder

Place cottage cheese in blender jar and blend smooth (or force through a sieve). Drain clams, saving 1 ½ tablespoons liquor. Stir clams and reserved liquor into cottage cheese, along with all remaining ingredients. Serve as a spread or dip with crackers or chips. Makes about 1 ½ cups.

GUACAMOLE SPREAD

- 2 small ripe California avocados (or 1 large)
- 2 tablespoons green onion, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons drained diced tomato
- 1 ½ tablespoons canned green chile, finely chopped
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt

Cut avocados in halves and remove seeds and skin. Mash fruit with a fork. Add all remaining ingredients; mix well. Serve as a spread or dip with assorted crackers or chips. Makes about 1 ½ cups.

BAKED ICE CREAM ALASKA PIE

- 1 quart peach or mango ice cream
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell
- 3 cups sliced cantaloupe and strawberries
- 3 egg white

- ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
- Dash salt
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- Melba Sauce

Spoon ice cream into an 8-inch pie pan and place in freezer to firm up. When ice cream is hardened, loosen edges with spatula, turn out on sheet of foil, cover and return to freezer. Chill pie shell. Prepare and chill fruit. When ready to serve, beat egg whites with cream of tartar and salt until stiff. Gradually beat in sugar, continuing to beat to very stiff peaks. Spoon fruit over bottom of pie shell. Set ice cream on top, pressing lightly into fruit. Swirl meringue over ice cream, sealing it to edges of shell. Bake in center of very hot oven (450 degrees) about 5 minutes until lightly browned. Cut into wedges and serve at once with Melba Sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Pie Shell: Combine 1 ½ cups sifted all-purpose flour with ¾ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening. Sprinkle with 3 to 4 tablespoons cold milk, using just enough to make dough hold together. Roll out about ¼ inch thick on lightly floured board and fit into a 9-inch pie pan. Trim edges of pastry about 1-inch wider than rim of pan. Turn edge under and flute, building up a high fluted rim. Prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes, until nicely browned. Cool.

Melba Sauce

Turn a 10 oz. package frozen raspberries into a saucepan and simmer just until berries soften. Turn into a strainer and force pulp and juice through, removing seeds. Return strained berries to saucepan, add ½ cup red currant jelly and 1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with ¼ cup port wine. Cook, stirring, until sauce boils and clears. Chill before serving. Makes about 1 ½ cups sauce.

Note: Any flavor ice cream of combination of fruits may be used.

Luncheon with taste appeal

Cool menu features fantasy salad

by LOIS SEILER

Lovely for a late summer luncheon are Summer Fantasy Salad, Mint Tea and Key Lime Pie. The recipes are specialties of Mrs. Tom Schuknecht of Palatine, who enjoys them for their versatility and flavor appeal.

The salad is a complete and nutritional meal-in-one, combining cooked macaroni, tuna, peas, pimiento, onion, celery and cheese. Heaped into a lettuce-lined bowl, it is mixed with a nippy mayonnaise dressing flavored with cocktail sauce.

The salad may be made a day ahead, freeing the cook from any last-minute fuss. Served with crescent rolls, it is ideal for a luncheon or dinner on a hot summer day.

Refreshing as a cool lake breeze is the Key Lime Pie, which Marion Schuknecht makes from a recipe acquired from her sister-in-law who lives in Florida. She prefers to use the juice from Key limes when available, but Parisian limes or lemons will also do.

The juice is mixed with egg yolks and sweetened condensed milk tinted with a few drops of green food coloring. Turned into a graham cracker shell, it is topped by meringue and baked until a pale honey in color. Quite high and impressive in appearance, the pie is rich yet very light and luscious to taste. It is a favorite of Marion's husband and their children, Jan, 13, Rick, 11, and Heidi, 7.

Mint Tea made by a Southern recipe is an ideal accompaniment for this meal. Tea bags are steeped in boiling water with sugar and springs of mint. Lemon and orange juice are added before it is chilled.

Because the tea is already sweetened and flavored with lemon and orange, nothing need be added when it is served. Marion garnishes each glass with fresh mint and a wedge of orange. It is a perfect summer cooler.

After living in Palatine for twelve years, the Schuknecht family will soon be moving to Phoenix. A member of a gourmet group, Marion considers cooking a hobby and enjoys experimenting with new recipes.

SUMMER FANTASY SALAD

- 1 7-ounce package creamettes
- 1 cup finely-chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1/4 cup diced pimiento
- 1 7-ounce can tuna, drained
- 1 17-ounce can Green Giant Peas, drained
- 1 4-ounce package medium-sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 1 1/3 cups mayonnaise
- 1/3 cup cocktail sauce
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1/8 teaspoon celery salt

Cook creamettes according to package directions. Rinse and drain. In a large lettuce-lined bowl, combine creamettes with celery, onion, pimiento, tuna, peas and cheese.

In another bowl, mix together remaining ingredients until creamy. Gently mix dressing into salad ingredients. Cover and chill overnight. Serves 6 to 8.

KEY LIME PIE

- 6 egg yolks, slightly-beaten
- 1 15-ounce can Borden's sweetened condensed milk
- 1/2 cup juice from Key limes or Parisian limes or lemons
- Few drops green food coloring
- 1 9-inch baked graham cracker pie shell
- 6 egg whites
- 4 tablespoons sugar

Combine egg yolks and sweetened condensed milk and blend well. Blend in lime juice and green food coloring. Turn into baked pie shell and spread to edges.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar until meringue is very stiff. Spread over top of pie, making sure to seal edges.

MINT TEA

- 3 cups boiling water
  - 5 tea bags
  - 12 sprigs mint
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1/2 cup lemon juice
  - 1/4 cup orange juice
- Pour boiling water over tea bags, mint and sugar. Let steep for 15 minutes. Remove tea bags and mint. Add juices and enough water to make a half-gallon. Refrigerate until ready to use.
- Pour over ice cubes in tall glasses and garnish with orange wedges and fresh springs of mint.

FOR A REFRESHING luncheon menu served in lettuce cups, features Mrs. Tom Schuknecht suggests Summer Fantasy Salad, Mint Tea and Impressive Key Lime Pie. The salad, served in lettuce cups, features macaroni and tuna with a zesty mayonnaise dressing.

Try colorful homemade jams

Strawberry Banana Jam is a happy blending of taste and color, which can be captured now and savored all year long. Fully ripe strawberries and bananas are mashed and combined in a large saucepan. Lemon juice, sugar, and fruit pectin complete the ingredient list; and it's the powdered fruit pectin which cuts the boiling time to one minute, assuring lovely color and lasting flavor.

For strawberry devotees there's plain Strawberry Jam.

STRAWBERRY BANANA JAM

- 4 cups prepared fruit (about 1 1/2 qts. fully ripe strawberries and 3 ripe bananas)
  - 2 tablespoons lemon juice (1 lemon)
  - 5 cups (2 1/2 lbs.) sugar
  - 1 box (1 1/2 ozs.) powdered fruit pectin
- First prepare the fruit. Crush completely, one layer at a time, about 1 1/2 quarts strawberries. Mash 3 bananas to a fine pulp. Combine fruits and measure 4 cups into a large saucepan. Add lemon juice.

Then make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin. Makes about 5 1/2 cups or 7 (6-oz.) glasses.

STRAWBERRY JAM

- 3 1/2 cups prepared fruit (about 2 qts. fully ripe strawberries)
  - 1/2 cup lemon juice (2 lemons)
  - 7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
  - 1/2 bottle liquid fruit pectin
- First prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts strawberries. Measure 3 1/2 cups into a very large saucepan. Squeeze the juice from 2 lemons; add 1/2 cup to fruit.

Then make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin. Makes about 8 cups or 10 (6-oz.) glasses.

Tomato buying tips

Greenhouse tomatoes are a good buy, partly because of their dense cell structure permits cutting and slicing without much loss of internal structure, says the Cornell University Cooperative Extension Service.

In a newsletter, the service said greenhouse tomatoes are vine-ripened, usually are more uniform than field tomatoes, and keep well. Winter tomatoes, field grown, are picked at the mature green or pink stage and ripened during and after shipping.

A major educational center for food studies has been established at Columbia University. It will look into the economic, political and social aspects of food-related subjects. The center for food studies will be financed initially by seven annual grants from General Foods Corp., says Louis D. Volpp, dean of Columbia's Graduate School of Business.

Chinese chicken salad wins honors

by FRAN HECKART

Mrs. Raymond Lutz of Taos, N.M., had no idea that while perfecting the stir-fry method of cooking, the result would be a prize winning recipe. Her recipe, Hot Chinese Chicken Salad, won first place honors and a cash prize of $10,000 for Fayne Lutz in the 25th National Chicken Cooking Contest last week.

Mrs. Lutz was one of 51 finalists from each state and the District of Columbia competing for top prizes last Thursday in Winston-Salem, N.C. The contest was sponsored by the National Broiler Council along with co-sponsors Ac'cent International and Best Foods.

Each state contestant prepared his recipe for a panel of 11 judges headed by Edward Robert Brooks, food columnist for the Chicago Sun-Times. Contest rules specified that each recipe contain broiler-fryers, Ac'cent and Mazola corn oil, but otherwise dishes were as varied as the contestants.

TWENTY-TWO finalists in the contest entered recipes that were cooked on top of the stove only, reflecting the trend for quick, easy meals. Fifteen shortened the cooking time by starting the recipe on top of the stove and finishing it in the oven. Seasonings and flavorings were highly varied.

Second prize of $3,000 was awarded to Dr. Hamid Tara, urological surgeon from Wayne, N.J., for his Persian Chicken Kabobs. A native of Iran, Dr. Tara created the recipe through a trial-and-error process.

Wine Glazed Chicken and Vegetables created by Mrs. Claude Swank of Cassopolis, Mich., was named third place winner.

A FREE LANCE designer from State College, Pa., won fourth place honors for a recipe called Lindos Chicken. The recipe combines browned chicken pieces with a sauce of sour cream, cream of chicken soup, lemon juice, mushrooms and onions. The chicken pieces are covered with bacon and baked before the flavorful sauce is added for additional baking.

A dish combining chicken and shrimp was named fifth place winner. Mrs. Charles Evans of Portland, Ore., obtained the recipe for Chicken and Shrimp from her mother-in-law.

Following is the top winning recipe by Mrs. Lutz. Additional winning recipes will appear next week.

HOT CHINESE CHICKEN SALAD

- 8 broiler-fryer chicken thighs, skinned, boned, cut into 1-inch chunks
- 1/4 cup corn starch
- 1/4 cup Mazola corn oil
- 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 large ripe tomato, cut into chunks
- 1 can (4 ounces) water chestnuts, drained, sliced
- 1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 bunch green onions, coarsely chopped
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 teaspoon Ac'cent flavor enhancer
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 2 cups finely shredded iceberg lettuce

Roll chicken in corn starch. Heat corn oil in fry pan or wok over high heat. Add chicken chunks and quickly brown. Sprinkle with garlic powder. Add tomato, water chestnuts, mushrooms, onion and celery. Stir. Sprinkle with flavor enhancer. Add soy sauce. Stir. Cover, reduce heat to simmer and cook 5 minutes. Lightly toss chicken-vegetable mix with lettuce. Serve hot with rice. Makes 4 servings.

MRS. RAYMOND LUTZ prepares Hot Chinese Chicken Salad, a recipe which won first place in the 1974 National Chicken Cooking Contest. She cooks Chicken chunks in a wok along with water chestnuts, mushrooms, celery, onions and shredded lettuce. The dish is served over hot rice.

Main dish salads packed with good nutrition

Cool, main dish salads are a natural for warm weather menus. Appetites wane as the temperature soars, making salads that "something light" the family orders.

There's no reason to sacrifice nutrition along with the hot stove. Main dish salads can and should contain foods from each of the four basic food groups.

Consider building the salad on fresh vegetables. There's a wide variety of lettuce to provide a base: iceberg, bibb, Boston, romaine, and romaine. Combine any or all for a basic green salad. From that point, check the vegetable bin. Green pepper slices, onions, radishes, celery, carrots, cucumbers or green beans are only a few selections.

THEY'RE ALSO A host of fruits to consider. Tomatoes are the staple, but for new flavor try adding rings or chunks of pineapple, peeled orange slices, raw apple, pieces of fresh or canned peaches, grapes, cantaloupe or honeydew melon.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

Do not expect to use all these foods. But at least be aware there's a wide selection from the vegetable and fruit food groups.

The meat group may involve some preparation, but not necessarily, because so many things come canned, all prepared. Like tuna, or canned salmon, or various meats, especially the luncheon-slice variety which can be easily converted to bite-size bits. Don't forget sardines, anchovies or for that matter, chunks of chicken, turkey, ham or marinated beef, or slices of hard-cooked egg.

DAIRY FOODS will be represented by use of cottage cheese, chunks of other cheeses, and the part that sour cream, Roquefort cheese and/or milk can play in your dressing.

CROUTONS or a sprinkling of wheat germ represent the bread and cereal food groups. Another nice addition is serving some of the many cocktail dip-type crackers that are available.

Although good from a nutritional standpoint alone, the following Crab Chow Mein Salad meets all the food group requirements when served with cheese and fresh fruit.

COMBINE 2, 6-ounce packages frozen crab meat, 1 package (10-ounce) frozen peas, cooked and drained, 1 cup chopped celery and 1 medium onion, chopped, in a covered bowl and refrigerate overnight.

Combine the following ingredients in a small bowl, cover and refrigerate overnight: 1 cup mayonnaise, 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon curry powder, 1 teaspoon soy sauce and 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder.

Combine all the ingredients at serving time and mix in 1 can (3 ounces) chow mein noodles. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Organically-grown foods have merits

by JEANNE LESEN

Inflation is closing the price gap between some health and organic foods, which used to be considered expensive, and the ordinary supermarket varieties.

Two distinguished educators have spoken out on the merits of farming and gardening without man-made fertilizers, pesticides, herbicides and fungicides.

In Gainesville, Fla., the local Environmental Action Group is into its second year of organic gardening on a one-acre plot. Except for severe insect problems, they say they're doing fine.

Until fuel shortages led to price escalation, large-scale farming produced more and cheaper food with chemical aids and highly mechanized methods. It still produces more food, but increased energy costs for operating farm machinery and making petroleum-based fertilizers and other growing aids are being passed on to consumers.

A RANDOM check of New York City health food stores showed the cost of some fresh produce near or on a par with supermarket prices, even though most of the health stores' produce reflects the added costs of airfreight from California most of the year.

PROF. PAUL A. BUCK of the Food Science Department of Cornell University is one of the educators studying organic farming and gardening. In an interview, Buck said 20 years' research had convinced him there is a beneficial effect in the nutritional value of food grown without man-made products. But he added that it still is too early to tell how significant the benefits are.

Buck said he thinks the body assimilates the form of vitamin A in organically-grown food more efficiently than it does the form in chemically-produced crops. He also said the vitamin appears to be more highly concentrated in foods grown without artificial help.

Joan Dye Gussow, a nutrition professional, also defends organic growing methods. Writing in Nutrition Today, Mrs. Gussow said it is not a fraud, although money has lured some cheaters into the market.

Genuine organic farmers are to be commended for producing food with a energy-conserving and non-polluting techniques, she added.

"They are not breaking any laws; their food is safe and no less nutritious than food produced by farmers using other methods," she said.

MRS. GUSSOW, an instructor in the nutrition program of Columbia University's Teachers College, also wrote that many organic farmers sell their produce on the open market for the going price and should not be harassed as food fadists because they choose to experiment with organic growing.

She favors certification of organically grown plants and informing consumers of lack of evidence that such food has more or better nutrition. But she said that long-term inter-generational feeding studies would be necessary to prove that there are no differences in total nutritional value.

Mrs. Gussow said she favors better use of agricultural waste by utilizing more fully the soil enriching properties of manure and kitchen and industrial garbage such as orange peels and coffee grounds.

Easy pizzas for kids

Make the youngsters quickie pizzas from split English muffins which have been buttered, spread with canned pizza sauce, sprinkled with shredded Mozzarella and Parmesan cheese, then broiled until the cheese is bubbly.

Add just a bit of butter to grated cheese that you're going to broil to melt. The butter helps to give the melting cheese a nice glaze.

Good with broiled fish is Caraway Cheddar Cheese Sauce: combine 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed Cheddar Cheese soup with 1/3 cup milk, 1 tablespoon caraway seed and 3 drops Worcestershire sauce. Stir and heat to serving temperature.

Extend the 'burgers with cheese for super flavor. To one pound of lean ground beef with seasonings and egg, add either 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese or 1/2 cup crumbled Blue cheese. Mix well before shaping into patties for grilling, outside or in.

Creamy blue cheese dressing from family of salad lovers

Today it's potpourri, or a mixture of things as we catch up with suggestions from readers.

Mrs. John Seastone, Palatine, "comes from a family of salad lovers," recommends her Creamed Blue Cheese Dressing. Mix well 1 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 slice of onion, minced, and garlic powder to taste. Crumble 4 ounces blue cheese, add to mixture and chill.

Mrs. Rae Winkler of Newman, Ill., suggests a cool summer dish, Frosty White Grapes. Wash, stem and chill 1 quart seedless white grapes. Combine 1 pint sour cream with 1/4 cup granulated sugar and 2 teaspoons vanilla. Add grapes and put in a heatproof dish.

In a saucepan melt 1/3 cup butter and 1 cup brown sugar. Heat and stir constantly until mixture is syrupy. Dribble this over the grapes and chill. Put on lettuce leaves in individual dishes for serving.

Mrs. Pat McVicker of Round Lake Beach, Ill., makes a Bacon-Cheese Spread which is excellent for sandwiches and may be added as an extra flavor ingredient to cooked vegetables, macaroni, or rice.

In a heavy saucepan put a stick (1 1/2-pound) margarine, 1 1/2 cups milk, 12 ounces American cheese, and 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until all the cheese is melted and blended into mixture. Now add 4 strips of bacon which have been fried gently, drained and crumbled.

Stir occasionally while mixture cools to distribute bacon bits, pour into a quart-size container, cover and refrigerate until ready to use.

MRS. HILDA M. Myers, Quincy, Ill., offers this favorite beef or calf's liver recipe. Purchase 1 pound calf's beef liver. Soak in lightly salted, cold water for 15 minutes. Drain well, remove any membrane, and pat dry. Cut into serving pieces.

Beat an egg, add a small amount of milk. Dip liver pieces in mixture, then into very fine cracker crumbs, coating both sides thinly and evenly.

Heat bacon drippings or other shortening in skillet. Fry liver quickly browned on both sides. Cook only 5 minutes in total until red leaves meat. Over-cooking toughens liver. Serves 4.

Meat and poultry prices showed general increases this week, according to a price survey on Monday. Pork chops, up 19 cents a pound, averaged the largest increase.

Ocean perch fillets and whole fryers rose four and seven cents, respectively. Bacon and ground beef, down seven and eight cents, were the only exceptions to the increases.

With the exception of eggs, up five cents, dairy prices remained close to stable this week. American processed cheese reflected a two-cent decrease from a week ago followed by milk and margarine, down one-cent each.

Head lettuce rose six cents from a week ago. Two-cent declines were recorded for canned tomatoes and frozen orange juice concentrate this week, but other fruits and vegetables remained near stable.

Cereals and dry groceries followed a stable trend from a week ago.

Food prices are based on averages obtained from four area stores on Monday of each week to record general trends.

Protein-rich salads for warm weather menus

When warm weather wits your enthusiasm for cooking and appetites request lighter meals, let a sprightly salad star as the supper entree. Remember, however, that no matter what the temperature, a balanced diet is needed to maintain energy and good health. The addition of cooked meat boosts salad sustenance as well as contributing high quality protein, vitamins and minerals.

Compatible combinations of meat, fruits and vegetables, such as the following, are especially tempting in the sultry days of summer.

TROPICAL HAM SALAD
1 to 1 1/2 pounds cooked smoked ham, cut in julienne strips
1 can (13 1/4 ounces) pineapple chunks
1/2 medium cantaloupe, cubed
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 egg yolk, beaten
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 avocado, sliced
1 banana, sliced
1 cup toasted slivered almonds
Drain pineapple chunks, reserving juice; combine with cantaloupe and chili. Blend sugar and cornstarch in saucepan; stir in 1/2 cup reserved pineapple juice, lemon juice and egg yolk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened; cook 2 minutes longer. Fold in sour cream and chili. Dip avocado and banana slices in remaining pineapple juice and combine with ham strips, pineapple, cantaloupe and almonds. Lightly stir in chilled dressing. 6 to 8 servings.

CHEF'S MEAT SALAD
2 medium beef strips cooked beef, pork or lamb
1 can (16 ounces) cut green beans, drained
1 cup sliced celery

Lavender fizz for thirsty crew

Worried about what to serve a thirsty crew after boating, tennis, golf or coquet? Set out a pitcher of lavender fizz. This mixture of fruit flavors helps revive the weary on a warm day.

LAVENDER FIZZ
1 can (12-ounce) concord grape drink
3 cups pineapple grapefruit juice
1 can (12-ounce) apricot nectar
1 bottle (12-ounce) ginger ale
Water
Orange slices
Chill juices and soda. Meanwhile, make ice cubes by filling ice trays with half concord grape drink and half water. Freeze until firm. Combine remaining grape drink and juices in a large pitcher. Add ginger ale. Float ice cubes in drink. Garnish glasses with orange slices. Makes about 2 1/2 quarts.

Limes from Florida

The Florida citrus industry is noted for its orange and grapefruit production but it also produces commercial crops of limes, primarily the Persian lime.

The Persian lime is larger than the Key Lime, is oval shaped, has smooth dark green skin, pale green pulp and yields a high level of juice.

The Persian lime was imported to Florida from Tahiti and is in season from May to September. The fruit is nearly always seedless.

Easy apple breakfast

Serve icy cold apple sauce in individual copies for the breakfast fruit. Then offer a selection of fruit go-whits so each family member can help himself. Try, for instance, chilled canned whole figs — one or two per person, chilled Mandarin orange sections, chilled whole pears. You'll think up other happy fruit combinations as you go.

Dazzle the flavor of canned apple sauce by adding a little sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg as your taste indicates. Fill individual custard cups and garnish with chopped nuts, toasted coconut, tiny marshmallows or crushed cornflake crumbs. While dinner is in progress, slip the desserts into a 325 degree oven to heat through. For an extra touch, serve with a little heavy cream or a small spoonful of vanilla ice cream.

Need something quick and light for supper? Try making pancakes with finely chopped ham or luncheon meat folded in. Make the individual cakes quite large. Serve them hot with canned apple sauce as the topping. Serve a hot vegetable as a side dish or a tossed salad and complete the menu with tall glasses of cold milk.

Frank Harth seeks 'to clear himself'

Accused policeman agrees to take lie detector test

by JOE FRANZ

Sgt. Frank Harth of the Buffalo Grove Police Dept., one of the sergeants accused of misconduct by former patrolman Floyd Merenkov, has agreed to take a polygraph (lie detector) test to clear himself. The Herald has learned.

Police Chief Harry Walsh would not verify if Harth is the sergeant, saying only that the person who has agreed to take the test is the one accused by Merenkov with stealing merchandise from Scott's Store in the Buffalo Grove Mall. Merenkov, however, told The Herald that Harth is the sergeant he accused of the theft at Scott's.

Sgt. Frank Harth

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson also refused to divulge the name of the sergeant, but said the officer volunteered to take the test. "He was not ordered to take the test," he said.

ACCORDING TO LARSON, the polygraph examination will be administered within the next 10 days. After it is completed, he said, the results will be turned over to the fire and police commission.

Larson said he does not know what action would be taken if the sergeant does not pass the test. "Whatever is done will be up to the fire and police commission because, myself, the village board and the police chief have no authority to act."

Walsh said, however, that results of the polygraph test would not be admissible as evidence in court. He also said since the alleged theft took place in February, 1971, the statute of limitations would prohibit prosecution of the sergeant.

In a joint statement released Tuesday, Walsh and Larson said all allegations made by Merenkov were investigated and are untrue.

Investigation by the police department, they said, failed to prove that a theft had taken place at Scott's. All it revealed was that the sergeant had taken two items which the store had discarded as trash, they said.

Walsh said many of Merenkov's allegations were based on "second hand information" and the alleged theft at Scott's occurred seven months before Merenkov joined the department.

ACCORDING TO THE statement, Merenkov was unable to furnish the department with information on the alleged theft "except that it occurred three years before."

Walsh said he would be reluctant to order any members of the department to take polygraph examinations unless those making the accusations also submit to the test.

Merenkov said he is also willing to take a polygraph test, but does not know whether some of his former colleagues would be willing to submit to the test.

TRUSTEE EDWARD OSMON last week asked that Walsh and all police department personnel take polygraph examinations because of Merenkov's allegations.

Merenkov was suspended from the department July 5 by Walsh who asked for his dismissal by the police and fire commission. The commission last Saturday reinstated Merenkov, but he submitted his resignation after the hearing.

CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER Frank Cardinell of Rolling Meadows receives a medal for meritorious service from Maj. Harold Patton, adjutant general of the National

Guard units never die—just fade away

by JOE SWICKARD

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday ending the unit's 83-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of confrontation between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, state adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hanger used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fatigues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Caen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Janas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinell, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

Special education plan expanded for district

Special services for handicapped children in School Dist. 21 are being expanded this year to include a new class for intermediate students with serious learning disabilities.

The self-contained class will be added to a similar class set up last year for primary students at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove. Children from other areas of the district will be bused to Longfellow to participate in the special classes.

Besides Buffalo Grove, Dist. 21 serves Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

The new intermediate learning disabilities (LD) class is intended to accommodate children in the upper elementary grades who have previously been sent to Summit School near Elgin, according to Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 director of special services. Summit School specializes in teaching children with learning disabilities.

Wynn defined learning disabilities as basically neurological problems that cause children to have trouble taking in information and processing or communicating it accurately.

For example, he said, some children with a learning disability perceive images that are backward or upside down or hear sounds that are scrambled.

IN PROVIDING a special LD class for intermediate children as well as primary youngsters, Wynn said it is hoped that teachers will be able to correct the students' problems or at least, help them to cope with the difficulties well enough to be able to participate in regular junior high school classes.

"The goal of much of our special education program in the district is early identification so that teachers can work with the children to remediate their difficulties or the child can be taught ways to adapt learning procedures to his problems that will allow him to get back in the regular classroom as soon as possible," Wynn said.

Although the primary and intermediate LD classes are self-contained, Wynn said there is a high priority placed on integrating children in the classes as much as possible with the rest of their classmates in art, physical education and other activities.

"Children recognize when they're receiving special treatment and it's a better climate for them if they have as much contact with regular classes as possible," he said.

RESOURCE LD teachers are available in all 17 Dist. 21 schools and at area high schools as well for children with continuing problems that affect them throughout their school careers.

According to Wynn, another reason for setting up the intermediate LD class is to provide the necessary special instruction for children in the upper elementary grades moving into the district.

Parents of children known to have or whom they suspect of having one or more learning disabilities should contact the Dist. 21 special services office at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Phone bills might be higher in September

Some Wheeling area residents may see increases in their telephone bills beginning in September, due to proposed new rates for local area service.

Because of an increase in telephone use in the Wheeling area, Illinois Bell has asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to change some basic telephone service rates for residents with 459, 537 and 541 telephone number prefixes.

The proposed rates would become effective Aug. 28.

Increases in the monthly telephone bills of Wheeling residents affected by the change will range from 25 to 30 cents for individuals and $1 to $1.75 for businesses. There will be no increase for customers with metropolitan service.

Two lanes of Dundee Road ready

Two lanes of Dundee Road have been completed and state officials said traffic will be shifted to the new pavement later this week or early next week.

Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways said Wednesday workmen have put in approximately 6,000 feet of pavement during the last week.

The work was done following a two-month strike by cement and material truck drivers. The strike seriously set back progress on the road, Sifrer said.

Sifrer expressed confidence that the project will be completed this year. Completion of the project, he said, will depend on the weather and availability of construction materials.

The project consists of widening Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 83, through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Now that two lanes are completed, Sifrer said, traffic can be shifted from the battered existing lanes to the new pavement. The shift will make traveling on the road much safer, he said.

Before work starts on the last two lanes of Dundee Road, Sifrer said workers will replace 900 feet of pavement on Arlington Heights Road, adjacent to Buffalo Grove High School. The pavement has been in disrepair for quite some time and was recently closed to traffic.

After the repairs are made, the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads will be connected. Both roads were realigned where they intersect Dundee Road.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOHNSON

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

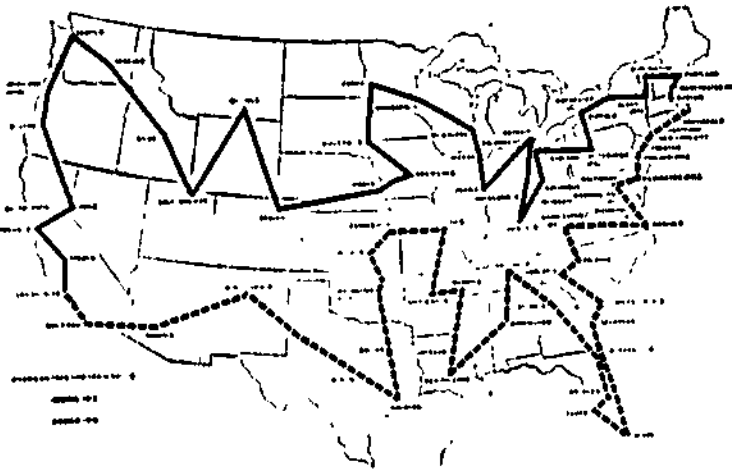

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said.

Des Plaines backer of superblock dies

A key backer of Des Plaines downtown redevelopment, businessman James Paroubek, died Wednesday morning in an auto accident in Des Plaines. Paroubek, 51, president of Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., lost control of his car and struck a light pole at Leo Street south of Forest Avenue at 5:20 a.m.

Mrs. Busse to be arraigned

Elaine Busse, a former Mount Prospect resident and member of the well-known Busse family, will be arraigned in Colorado today on charges involving the death of a 12-year-old child. Mrs. Busse, operator of the Winding River Ranch in Grand Lake, Colo., will be charged with negligent homicide, practicing medicine without a license and performing massages without a license in the death of a child at the ranch.

Artillery deactivated

Eighty-three years of Illinois National Guard service ended Wednesday when the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery was deactivated at the Arlington Heights Nike Base. The 500 personnel will be reassigned throughout the United States and the base will become an Army Reserve training center.

Underpass plan proposed

An Arlington Heights banker has proposed an alternative to the planned Arlington Heights Road railroad underpass at Northwest Hwy. By avoiding an Arlington Heights Road underpass, value of commercial property would be saved, Douglas Dodds said. Dodds' plan would include construction of a bypass highway east of the intersection and would connect with Belmont Avenue, two blocks east.

Support asked for housing

Mount Prospect's village board will be asked next week to support restrictive low and moderate income housing, primarily for senior citizens. The village community services and mental health commissions will ask for a board vote on a resolution calling for subsidized housing in the village.

by BARRY SIGALE

The idea of a 24-car-long railroad train carrying a load of historic documents and memorabilia to the American people seems pretty ambitious, especially when you consider the 1,700 mile journey will take 21 months to complete.

But that will be the goal of a probable crew of 70 to 80 persons next April when they begin to steam through 76 cities across the 48 continental states in the American Freedom Train to commemorate the nation's 200th anniversary. The trip will end in December, 1975.

The promotional mission of the train, the "Preamble Express," changed through Chicago Wednesday to spread the word in the project and to get a firm commitment from local officials to find a site for the proposed 15-day visit of the train and to market tickets to the public.

"This will be America's birthday gift to America," said John Killoran, general manager of railroads for the American Freedom Train Foundation. "It will give people the opportunity to see a lot of artifacts as well as historical figures... things they might never get a chance to see. It will be compelling to Americans."

FIFTY MILLION people are expected to see the train with an estimated 10 million visitors able to get on board to view special displays and presentations at $1 a ticket. The other 40 million are supposed to be able to watch the train as it passes slowly through their communities en route to major cities.

Traveling across Illinois the train will make stops in Peoria and Chicago (August 19, 1975), with specific locations to be determined. About 360,000 persons will fit into the train in a two week period at a rate of 2,000 people per hour or 24,000 a day in 12 hours.

(Northwest suburban residents, however, will not have a chance to see the train unless they take the tour because preliminary plans indicate either the Milwaukee Road or Chicago and North Western north shore line will be the route of the train when it goes to Milwaukee, the first stop after it leaves Chicago.)

The $13 million cost for "the only nationwide to-the-people project" planned for the Bicentennial celebration will be shouldered by five major national corporations ($5 million) and the public ($8 million), from tickets sold.

MOST OF THESE proceeds will be used toward the cost of operating the train while a smaller portion goes to pay for the costs of local promoters. An even smaller portion will be returned to community Bicentennial committees for use in their own programs. For example, about a dime for every ticket sold in Arlington Heights would be used for local commemorative activities, according to Train Foundation got a warm reception from Col. Jack Reilly, Mayor Dan's aide, when they showed off their plans Wednesday. "This is a magnificent presentation you have," said Reilly. "You're off to a fine start."

Not every community contacted by the foundation, however, was enthusiastic over the expectations of a train toting the final draft of the Declaration of Independence, Joe Louis's boxing gloves or the Apollo 12 space capsule and a moon rock coming to their town.

"Three titles told us no," said Killoran. "Tulsa, Oklahoma, Lubbock, Tex., and Cheyenne, Wyoming. They said something like, 'no way do we want to bother ourselves with something like the Freedom Train. But thanks for telling us about it.' I don't think they really believed in the project."

THE PROSPECTS of traveling across country for nearly two years is an inviting one for Killoran and his wife, Nancy, who is the main hostess aboard the train. They are going to learn about many of the country's major cities (stops in New York and Los Angeles will total nearly two months) while the people are learning about their country.

"This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said Killoran. "This will be like a dream-come-true. We both love trains," said Mrs. Killoran who pointed out that so far, on their one month promotional tour, things like light bulbs unscrewing are catching her attention.

TWILLIBY'S

ALEX JANOWSKI likes to keep an eye on where he's going even when it's backwards off the diving board at the Wheeling Park District's outdoor swimming pool in Chamber of Commerce Park on N. Wolf Road.

Zoners tied on advice for industrial park

Members of the Wheeling Village Board will have to decide whether to approve zoning for a proposed industrial park at the northwest corner of Huntz and Wolf roads without a clear recommendation from the zoning board.

With little indication of their reasons, zoning board members tied 2-2 in voting whether to recommend approval for the project. Alan Martin and Neil Brant voted in favor of the zoning while Roman Domas and Frank Wojek opposed it.

The vote came about 2 a.m. Wednesday after nearly three hours of discussion on Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regulations controlling obstacles to Pal-Waukee Airport flight patterns.

Zoning board members expressed concern that the FAA had no power to actually control obstacles built in the path of Pal-Waukee take-offs and landings. Domas noted that if zoning for the park is approved, the village has no assurance that the buildings will not be a safety hazard.

Doyle Hegland of the FAA noted that such buildings have been built south of the airport on Palatine Road, and pilots landing at Pal-Waukee now must take special precautions to avoid them.

OTHER PROBLEMS associated with the project proposed by Wheeling Partnership include poor soil conditions and a high water table that will make construction difficult.

A Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District report warned that these conditions would create severe construction problems for foundations and paving. "Foundations, streets, parking lots and sidewalks on them (the soils) are subject to cracking and heaving," the report states.

A soils expert testifying for the developers, however, said that special construction methods would make the site buildable. These methods include the sinking of special foundations to more solid soils and the reworking or replacement of soils for paving work.

The conservation district has also cautioned that the development might have an adverse effect on the Wheeling Drainage Ditch, which borders the northern edge of the 41.8-acre site. The report states that erosion could result from potential tree removal and runoff from the industrial park could pollute the creek.

THE SITE is separated from the Foxboro Apartments on the northeast by the creek. Developer Sigmund Lefkowitz, who was involved in the Foxboro project, is a partner in the industrial park proposal.

The property is now owned by Theodore and Marlon Melzer. Developers have testified that Acco International, a firm that makes office supplies, plans to build its headquarters in the park. The park will be expanded as other industries become interested in the site.

Wheeling's Domas refuses to vote on brother's zoning

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Zoning Board member Roman Domas abstained from "discussing, deliberating and voting" Tuesday night on the requested rezoning of property owned by his brother through a secret land trust.

The property in question, on Dundee Road west of the Wildwood Apartments, is proposed for a Ponderosa Steak House. The Cook County State's Attorney's Office is involved in an investigation of the property and the secret land trust which owns it.

The investigation reportedly centers on possible conflicts of interest involving secret land trusts. Several Wheeling officials have been subpoenaed to testify before a county grand jury on the matter. Those scheduled to testify Wednesday include Village Mgr. George Passolt, Plan Commission Chairman Herbert Lortz and village surveyor Thomas Popke.

"I HAVE REASON to believe I am related to a party involved with this property," Domas said Tuesday, referring to the fact that his brother Lambert is involved with a secret land trust which owns the property.

Other beneficiaries of Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank Trust #34 include Popke and his partner John Marnul.

Under questioning by Frank Wojek, zoning board chairman, Domas said he had no interest in the property. "I have no financial (interest), I have no hidden (interest), I have nothing that is involved with this piece of property," Domas said.

When asked if he had a silent partner with interest in the parcel, Domas said "I don't have a silent partner or a live partner. It's just unfortunate that people who do purchase property, who do happen to be related, I can't tell them not to purchase property here."

IN REMOVING himself from the matter, Domas forced the continuation of hearings on the proposed Ponderosa. Since only four zoning board members attended the Tuesday hearing, Domas' action left the board without a quorum because less than a majority of members were present. The hearing was continued to Sept. 10.

Disclosure of the trust beneficiaries came after plan commission members said that while the zoning was requested by contract purchaser Bernard Kron, the

Disclosure of secret land trusts left to commissions

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said individual commissions will have to decide whether to call for the disclosure of beneficiaries of all secret land trusts involved in village reviews.

Previously, Passolt maintained that the village would only seek disclosure from those trusts that applied for zoning changes, special use permits, building permits or licenses.

Citing recent state legislation, Passolt said the law only requires disclosure by those trusts seeking official village action.

In several instances, however, this approach allowed contract purchasers to apply for zoning and planning reviews. Thus, the actual owners of the property who would also benefit by the village action were never disclosed.

The disclosure revealed a possible conflict in which zoning board member Roman Domas would be asked to vote on property owned by his brother through a secret land trust. Domas has avoided that conflict by removing himself from any discussion or vote on the Ponderosa rezoning.

Passolt said he now expects the plan commission to require disclosure of all trusts involved in a planning review. "It's my impression that the plan commission will ask it every time," he said.

THE MANAGER said he is unsure what position the zoning board will take, but added its commissioners have the prerogative to demand such disclosure.

Noting that the village could not enforce any demand for disclosure by trusts not seeking official village action, Passolt said that he is unsure if the village policy should be changed.

"Where the contract purchaser is the petitioner, we could ask, but they are not under any obligation to tell us," he said, noting that the commissions could only refuse to vote on a project. "I'm sure we can require it although I do not think of that as something that is essential to know when approving a project."

names of present property owners were not known.

The village currently requires disclosure of any trusts that apply for zoning or planning approval or any type of permit. This disclosure, however, does not extend to property owners if a contract purchaser seeks the zoning action.

Popke and members of the Domas family have been involved in at least two other secret land trusts that profited from village actions, including another rezoning and the realignment of Wheeling Road. Property owned in one of these trusts may further be benefited by proposed village improvements to Pine Street, located in the industrial area along Wheeling Road.

Des Plaines redeveloper Paroubek dies in crash

by JOHN MAES
James I. Paroubek, a leader in the effort to make redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines a reality, was killed early Wednesday in an auto accident. He was 51.

Paroubek, who was often called the "father of downtown redevelopment" was killed after his auto went out of control about 5:20 a.m. and struck a light pole on Lee Street, just south of Forest Avenue.

The accident occurred a few blocks from his home at 1036 Oakwood Ave. Paroubek was traveling south on Lee Street when his late model Cadillac struck a hole in the street and rammed the pole in front of Allen's Store for Men.

He was on his way to O'Hare Airport to catch a plane to Detroit for a business trip.

MANY CITY officials and local business leaders were saddened by the news of Paroubek's death, but the general comments were typified by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

"This is certainly a tragedy for Jim's family and friends, but it is even more of a tragedy because some of the things that he has worked so hard on for so many years are on the brink of fruition and now he will not be here to see them. He was a dear and personal friend and a dedicated resident of Des Plaines," the mayor said.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 5:50 a.m.

There was some speculation among police that Paroubek may have suffered a heart attack at the wheel, causing him to lose control of the car. He suffered internal injuries, according to police reports.

In addition to his involvement in Des Plaines redevelopment plans, Paroubek owned a string of Ace Hardware stores in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. The Des Plaines store is at 694 Lee St.

Paroubek was president of the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., a group of prominent local businessmen who for more than a decade, have worked to foster the planned overhaul of the city's downtown area.

HE WAS ALSO instrumental in the 1968 formation of the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a not-for-profit organization composed of 40 to 50 businessmen who each pledged $5,000 or more, made possible the acquisition of property sites vital to the redevelopment push.

His first dealings with plans to facelift the Des Plaines business district came in 1968 when, after city council approval of the redevelopment idea, Paroubek volunteered to become president of the redevelopment association.

Superblock, a major cog in the redevelopment machine always held Paroubek's firm support.

City officials boast the $14 million superblock will showcase the new downtown Des Plaines with its 10-story office-retail store building that will be bounded by Lee, Pearson and Ellinwood streets and Prairie Avenue.

That redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the country was a prediction of Paroubek's. His office was a gallery of artist's renderings and architect's plans depicting the ultra-modern buildings and complexes he hoped would one day be downtown Des Plaines.

He held his ground stubbornly for several years in the face of project foes who looked upon redevelopment as a profiteering venture.

"SOME PEOPLE don't like change," he once said. "And I don't blame them. But we're going to get the population up to 100,000 and without planning, we'll have hodgepodge."

Paroubek is survived by his wife, Florence, and three daughters.

Visitation will be Friday afternoon and evening at Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets.

A funeral Mass is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Church, 794 Pearson St., and burial will follow in All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines.

Meeting today on school board seat

A special meeting of the School Dist. 21 Board of Education is set for tonight to interview applicants for the seat on the school board recently vacated by Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Reid resigned her post after nearly nine years on the school board to take a job with the district as public relations and volunteer coordinator.

Dist. 21 serves besides Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Seven residents had applied for the available school board seat by last Thursday, the deadline set for accepting applications. Supt. Kenneth Gill, however, said applications also will be taken until tonight's meeting, so others may indicate an interest in the position.

Residents who submitted letters of interest last week were Gerald McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Mary Arlene Weil, 624 Ivy Ct., A. M. Mansukhani, 24 St. Armand Ct., all of Wheeling; Susan Tripp Rose, 175 Timber Hill Rd. and Janet Grass, 331 Cottonwood Rd., both of Buffalo Grove; and Arnold Drobny, 3250 Volz Dr. and Jeanne Peters, 2413 E. Dundee Rd., both of Arlington Heights.

The special meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the administration building. The interviews will be open to the public.

The School Board must appoint Mrs. Reid's replacement by Aug. 24 or the county superintendent will call a special election. The appointee will serve until the regular school board election next April.

Downtown redeveloper

Auto accident kills James Paroubek, 51

by JOHN MAES

James I. Paroubek, a leader in the effort to make redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines a reality, was killed early Wednesday in an auto accident. He was 51.

Paroubek, who was often called the "father of downtown redevelopment" was killed after his auto went out of control about 5:20 a.m. and struck a light pole on Lee Street, just south of Forest Avenue.

The accident occurred a few blocks from his home at 1036 Oakwood Ave. Paroubek was traveling south on Lee Street when his late model Cadillac struck a hole in the street and rammed the pole in front of Allen's Store for Men. He was on his way to O'Hare Airport to catch a plane to Detroit for a business trip.

MANY CITY officials and local business leaders were saddened by the news of Paroubek's death, but the general comments were typified by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

"This is certainly a tragedy for Jim's family and friends, but it is even more of a tragedy because some of the things that he has worked so hard on for so many years are on the brink of fruition and now he will not be here to see them. He was a dear and personal friend and a dedicated resident of Des Plaines," the mayor said.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 5:50 a.m.

There was some speculation among police that Paroubek may have suffered a heart attack at the wheel, causing him to lose control of the car. He suffered internal injuries, according to police reports.

In addition to his involvement in Des Plaines redevelopment plans, Paroubek owned a string of Ace Hardware stores in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. The Des Plaines store is at 694 Lee St.

Paroubek was president of the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., a group of prominent local businessmen who for more than a decade, have worked to foster the planned overhaul of the city's downtown area.

HE WAS ALSO instrumental in the 1968 formation of the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a not-for-profit organization composed of 40 to 50 businessmen who each pledged $5,000 or more, made possible the acquisition of property sites vital to the redevelopment push.

His first dealings with plans to facelift the Des Plaines business district came in 1966 when, after city council approval of the redevelopment idea, Paroubek volunteered to become president of the redevelopment association.

Superblock, a major cog in the redevelopment machine always held Paroubek's firm support.

City officials boast the $14 million superblock will showcase the new downtown Des Plaines with its 10-story office-retail store building that will be bounded by Lee, Pearson and Ellinwood streets and Prairie Avenue.

That redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the country was a prediction of Paroubek's. His office was a gallery of artist's renderings and architect's plans depicting the ultra-modern buildings and complexes he hoped would one day be downtown Des Plaines.

He held his ground stubbornly for several years in the face of project foes who looked upon redevelopment as a profit-seeking venture.

"SOME PEOPLE don't like change," he once said. "And I don't blame them. But we're going to get the population up to 100,000 and without planning, we'll have hodgepodge."

Paroubek is survived by his wife, Florence, and three daughters.

Visitation will be Friday afternoon and evening at Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets.

A funeral Mass is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Church, 794 Pearson St., and burial will follow in All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines.

JAMES PAROUBEK, whose name was synonymous with downtown redevelopment and the Des Plaines Superblock was killed in an auto accident early Wednesday at the age of 51. Paroubek worked for more than a decade on the idea of facelifting the downtown area of Des Plaines.

They're happy Oakton has found permanent site: Seitz

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"Most people are happy we found a permanent campus."

John Seitz, professor at Oakton Community College has reached this conclusion after surveying community leaders in the college district. Seitz, an alderman from Des Plaines' 7th Ward, is special assistant to the college president for the summer and his assignment is to find out what kind of campus the community wants for Oakton.

Although the survey is not completed, Seitz said he's found that people aren't too concerned with what the college will look like or what sort of facilities it will have, but they're overjoyed that Oakton has finally found a home.

OAKTON IS IN the process of settling the legal details for the purchase of 147 acres from the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese for the permanent campus. The land is located along the Des Plaines River between Golf and Central roads in unincorporated Maine Township.

Since the college was formed in 1969 it has failed twice to acquire a permanent home because of negative public reaction to the two sites previously chosen. Maryhill Cemetery, Niles, in 1971 and the Beckwith Road site, Morton Grove, in 1972.

With a few exceptions, most people are pleased with the river site and are anxious for the college to get settled, says Seitz.

They're "very happy with the idea that we have a community college," says Seitz. "They think it's great." Several of the people he interviewed said Oakton seems "nebulous" to them because it is located in leased factory buildings in Morton Grove. "Most people believe that once we have a permanent campus we'll have a better image," says Seitz.

And Seitz says he's found that attitudes toward a community college in general are changing. People used to believe a college was a hangout for hippies and a community college was a place where students went if they couldn't get into a four-year school, he says.

"THEIR PERCEPTION OF the college is changing," says Seitz. Oakton's reputation has been enhanced by word-of-mouth and by the success of its students. "We have satisfied customers," Seitz says.

All the people interviewed by Seitz are "strongly in favor of having a community college," he says. "Those who have watched Oakton since its infancy are not

Guard units never die—just fade away

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday ending the unit's 83-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of confrontation between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, state adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hanger used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fatigues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Cien, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Janas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinelli, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of (Continued on page 5)

At Monday's council meeting

Civic center project up for review

The next phase of the proposed Des Plaines civic center development project will come up for consideration Monday before the city council.

It is expected that the architectural firm of Holmes and Fox will be recommended to do the design work for the parking garage that will be built adjacent to the new city hall and police building at Graceland and Miner streets.

The garage will be used for parking for police vehicles, city employees and visitors to the city hall complex.

Action on the garage comes as the city is finalizing plans for the police building and construction has resumed on the six-story city hall building.

Mayor Herbert Behrel recently said he anticipates the city will be able to take occupancy by March or early April of next year. Work was slowed by a strike of cement truck drivers.

ALSO THE CITY has installed two trailers that will be used to house some police services temporarily until the new building is completed. Construction of the new police building will require demolition of the old fire station. The police department has been using the fire department facilities for vehicle storage and offices.

In other action, the city council is expected to give preliminary consideration to the real estate tax levy for next year.

In several earlier committee meetings, aldermen proposed increasing property taxes to make up a portion of the needed additional revenue for next year, but also raising a number of licensing fees and rates for other services.

The council will also receive a recommendation from the fire committee to purchase telemetry equipment for use by the fire department paramedic units.

Prior to the council meeting, the aldermen will meet as a committee-of-the-whole to discuss a preannexation agreement with Commonwealth Edison officials. The two sides are meeting to discuss the annexation of property owned by the utility company at Rand and Seegers roads.

All of the property is currently being used as a power substation.

Maine opens registration for new students

Registration is now open for students planning to attend a Maine Township High School who have not previously registered.

All students who will enter the ninth grade this fall are required to take a placement test before registration for courses will be completed. Students who have not taken this test can do so at 7:45 a.m. Aug. 14 at Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Road, Park Ridge.

Registration is being conducted daily in the guidance offices at the four high schools. Parents must accompany a student registering for the first time.

For further information or to make appointments, call Maine East High School, 825-4484; Maine North High School, 298-5500; Maine South High School, 825-7711; or Maine West High School, 827-6176.

Ice cream men

creations of Chicago's 'Buffalo' to suburbia Bill and Jerry bring the elaborate old-time

by BETTY LEE

The man who once managed The Buffalo in Chicago, famed for its old-time atmosphere and elaborate ice cream treats, says he plans to bring The Buffalo ice cream creations to the suburbs.

William Katsogianos spent 11 years at The Buffalo, located near Irving Park Road and Pulaski Avenue.

Now he and his brother, Jerry, are the new owners of the Eros Restaurant at 18 N. Dryden St. Jerry takes care of the food orders while William sees to the soda fountain.

THE RESTAURANT was a venture that Katsogianos wanted to enter for some time. "I just wanted to do something on my own," he said. "So I got my brother into it and he does the cooking. I'm the ice cream man."

Katsogianos will pile ice cream scoops into a dish and drench it with fresh hot fudge sauce.

Or he'll top the ice cream with homemade fruit salads, strawberry or pineapple toppings, all made from fresh fruit. Caramel and butterscotch sauces are homemade, too.

And to follow The Buffalo tradition, pecans, cherries, real whipped cream and crisp sugar wafers are musts on sundaes. He'll also make shakes and malts.

"ICE CREAM is my business," Katsogianos said. While working at The Buffalo ice cream store, he had to maintain the business's 70-year tradition of serving rich (14 per cent butterfat) ice cream and homemade toppings.

Currently he is using The Buffalo ice cream, but will begin making it in his own restaurant if the ice cream business grows.

He plans to redecorate the restaurant, give it an old-fashioned look and to change the name.

A STRAWBERRY sundae with all the trimmings is just one ice cream treat that can be made by William Katsogianos, owner of the Eros Snack Shop in the Arlington Market. Before coming to the suburbs, Katsogianos ran The Buffalo in Chicago, famed for its ice cream creations and old-time atmosphere.

as critical of the college as they used to be."

Seitz says he has received a mixed reaction on what facilities the college should have. There's "no clear trend yet on this one," says Seitz, although many people have said they want the college to have an auditorium and a performing arts center, which would be open to the community.

As for planning the development of the campus, Seitz says most people think they should "leave that up to the architects. They're the experts."

One of the questions Seitz asks is "To what extent do you think students might utilize the public transportation that is available?" Most people say "What public transportation?" says Seitz. Although they don't believe the college should operate a bus system, many people think the college should encourage students to use what transportation is available, he says. Some people warned, "You're going to find it awfully difficult to shake a kid loose from his car."

SEITZ SAYS HE got a good response to his question on what vocational programs the college should offer. Many people saw vocational education as the chance for students to "earn and learn and take their place in the community," says Seitz. Some suggested that the college add courses in retailing and public administration to its list of vocational programs.

Seitz has interviewed municipal officials, a high school superintendent, members of local Chambers of Commerce, business executives and plans to interview members of parent-teacher organizations and homeowners associations. The task is very time-consuming, says Seitz and it may continue into the fall.

Seitz says he hasn't had a chance to do as many man-on-the-street interviews as he would like, but he welcomes comments from anyone in Oakton's district. He can be reached by writing or calling the college, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, 60053, 967-5120.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

"Just because he has a handicap doesn't mean he has to spend his life in a deaf community," said Mrs. Lamont Polcyn of Schaumburg about her son, Kurt, 9. He was diagnosed as a profoundly deaf child before he was two years old. He has worked with speech therapists since that age and can communicate through the oral methods, she said. Over the past year she said she noticed his oral abilities have been sacrificed to the manual communication methods.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said, (Continued on Page 16) their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

As an officer walked out to the ceremony, he remarked, "This is the last of the 202nd. Sort of like Custer's last stand."

THE HIGHLAND FLING was one highlight of a folk School summer program. The 35 youngsters are members of Nancy Carlson's international folk dance class.

Young folks swing in folk dance festival

by LINDA PUNCH

The strains of the Hora, Misericordia, Highland Fling and Virginia Reel filled the hallways of Devonshire School this week as 35 youngsters presented a folk dance festival.

The youngsters — students at Devonshire, Einstein and St. Zachary's schools in Des Plaines and Our Lady of the Ransom in Mount Prospect — are members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 folk dance class. They topped off the six-week course with a performance Tuesday morning for parents and fellow students.

Course instructor Nancy Carlson, a folk dancer in college, taught her students dances from several countries including the United States, Israel, the Philippines, Greece, Scotland, Mexico and Serbia.

"Besides learning the dances, we studied a little bit about the country," she said. "We learned about the people and why they do that type of dance."

Mrs. Carlson first taught the class last summer with an enrollment of 12. She noted that while no boys participated in the class last year, six boys enrolled this summer.

"ALL THE BOYS have been real enthusiastic — I'm hoping maybe next year we'll get some more," she said.

The Devonshire gym filled slowly Tuesday morning as parents and friends filled in for the 9 a.m. performance. The folk dance students waited nervously in the hallway with some youngsters practicing steps while others shifted excitedly from foot to foot.

The youngsters, dressed in white shirts and blouses and red and blue skirts and pants, walked into the gym in pairs after an introduction by the principal. They formed a circle and launched into a swinging version of "Oh Susana."

The children sang and clapped as they skipped and whirled their way through the dance. One boy strained as he reached to grab the hands of his slightly taller partner.

The American folk dance was followed by a leg-swinging Hora, an Israeli dance performed in a single circular line. The youngsters started the dance in unison but occasionally slipped out of step as the tempo increased and they became short of breath.

THE TINKLING — a Filipino dance involving hopping over and between bamboo poles rhythmically tapped on the ground — followed. The girls skillfully danced and turned between the poles, rarely missing a beat. One young spectator, apparently awed by their agility, commented to a friend that "you could get your toes chopped off."

The Misericordia, a native dance of Greece, got off to a false start when a dancer bumped into the record player. The rhythmic twisting dance was followed by the Highland Fling, where students whirled to the accompaniment of Scottish music.

A Serbian folk dance, The Milanovo Kolo and the American Virginia Reel, climaxed the program. Spectators were also treated to the traditional Irish jig performed by Irish folk dancer Celene Fitzgerald, a visiting cousin of student Ann Caine.

Mrs. Carlson spent most of the performance kneeling beside the record player, nodding her head in time to the music. Despite her appearance of outward calm, one student remarked "she was more nervous than we were."

Firemen's union effort brings halt to talks

The formation of a union by firefighters in Elk Grove Village has apparently brought a halt to meetings between the department and the village board's personnel committee.

"I will not meet with union officials," Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, chairman of the personnel committee, said Wednesday.

"When the fire department unionized in May, we had nothing more to discuss, so why meet?" she added.

The leader of the firemen's union, Joseph Gardner, said he was unaware of the move, but added, "If Trustee Vanderweel, by her statement, is saying she crossed the old firemen's pay raise committee off her meeting schedule because she wants the union officials to go through the procedures of discussing salary proposals, we are pleased."

MRS. VANDERWEEL, however, said she has closed the door to further discussion with the union.

"My committee is not an arbitration or negotiations panel and it is not my role to negotiate with a union," she said.

Although the village firemen formed Local 2340 of the International Assn. of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, May 10, they have not formally requested the village to recognize the unit.

"The union has not ever met or ever asked formally for a meeting with the personnel committee," Gardner said.

He also said the union has not formally asked administrative or elected officials to recognize it as the bargaining agent.

"WE SIMPLY NOTIFIED them that we have a union and are a chartered local that is ready and willing to communicate," said Gardner.

Trustee Vanderweel claims she is not closing the door to the fire department, "Just to the union."

"I will meet at any time with any village employee, but only on personnel committee business such as working conditions, insurance coverage or grievance procedures which I believe are in the personnel committee's realm of discussion," she said. "But not with union representatives, just individual employees," she added.

Mrs. Vanderweel said "I think the union should go to the village administrators or perhaps our attorney to talk, but they are not going to be scheduled at my personnel meetings," she said.

UNTIL MAY OF this year, Elk Grove Village firemen were represented by a group of firefighters designated as the pay raise committee. The committee met monthly for approximately two years with village officials.

At the point of unionization, officials and firefighters were discussing a shortened work week. Firefighters were asking for a reduction of their 56-hour week or longer vacation time to compensate for what they called a longer work week than other employees.

TENNIS ANYONE? That will be the cry throughout Elk Grove Village starting Aug. 12 when the park district's all-village tennis tournament gets underway. Mark Stringfellow, 11, warms up for the action during the park district's tennis lessons. Registration deadline for the tennis tournament is Aug. 8.

Parks set appropriation of $977,101

Elk Grove Park District members have approved an appropriation ordinance representing almost a 19 per cent increase over last year's fiscal appropriation total.

The board has OK'd a $977,101 total appropriation for the fiscal year that began May 1 of this year and will end April 30, 1975. The previous year's appropriation ordinance was for $822,169.

An appropriation ordinance closely resembles a budget, however. It is an estimate of what the park district plans to spend in the coming year. All bodies who spend taxpayer monies are required by law to file an appropriation ordinance every year.

The appropriation ordinance was based on an estimate of the 1973 assessed valuation, which has not been released. The estimate was $290 million. The appropriation ordinance was also based on an estimated 1974 assessed valuation of $325 million.

The park board has not approved a budget for the current fiscal year, pending release of assessed valuation figures.

THE ORDINANCE said the park district plans to spend $327,130 for general park purposes. The majority of the money, $325,650, will come from taxes collected, up from $293,900 last year.

Some $339,600 was estimated to be spent during the year on recreational programs. Of the money, $95,000 will come from fees, with the remaining $244,600 from taxes, up from $219,750 last year.

Other planned expenditures are $24,000 for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, $230,351 for the bond and interest fund, which pays off principal and interest on general obligation bonds which have been sold by the park district, $6,000 for auditing fees, $10,000 for liability insurance and $17,000 for paving.

Combined with an estimated cash on hand of $47,000, the park district's appropriation ordinance indicated the district will spend slightly more than $1 million for the first time in history.

OF THAT TOTAL, $870,801 will be levied in taxes. Park district officials could not say what effect the appropriation will have on tax bills, since 1973 assessed valuation has not been released yet.

Some $29,400 was earmarked for new park equipment, $12,000 of which will be for playground developments of new parks. The rest of the money will go for a new dump truck, $5,000; furniture and fixtures, $2,000; new truck, $4,200; new automobile, $2,200; and a new tractor, $4,000.

In addition to $10,000 for liability insurance, another $21,500 was set aside for other insurances such as fire, auto, Workman's Compensation and group insurance.

Parents voice support for Whipple's program

by WANDALYN RICE

A group of parents who support the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night at the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board continued its investigation of charges against the school.

In addition, representatives of Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick appeared before the governing board to tell them that John Whipple, director of the school in Arlington Heights, has been privately practicing psychology without a license in violation of state law.

At Herald press time, the NEC governing board was meeting in closed session with Whipple and his attorney. The board had not announced whether it would formally hear the parents who had supported the program.

Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent from Martwick's office, said that the charges about Whipple's private psychology practice are "very germane" to the board's investigation. In addition, Hennessey said Whipple has twice failed the state licensing examination for private psychologists, in 1968 and 1972.

Under Illinois law, for a psychologist to see patients in private practice he must have a Ph.D. and pass the state licensing examination. Whipple is a registered school psychologist, a registration which does not qualify him for private practice.

THE PARENTS who appeared before the board went into its meeting said the charges against Whipple and the Dwyer program are "hogwash."

The charges about Dwyer have been made by a group of present and former members of the staff at the school. The charges include allegations that children are physically abused and beaten with large wooden paddles, that staff at the school are unqualified and that staff members engage in unprofessional behavior.

Most of the charges have centered on Whipple, the psychologist who heads the program. Martwick has said Whipple is unqualified for his job because he does not have the certificate required for a school administrator in Illinois.

Mary Lou Ghanam, who has a child in the program, said, "I don't believe any staff member ever abused a child and if they did they were the ones John (Whipple) fired. I don't consider John only the director of a school my son went to. I consider him my friend."

Other parents said they had questioned

their children about paddling or other physical abuse and that their children said they had never seen any. One father said that his son was sometimes disciplined with a paddle "But they cleared it with me first."

DEE OGLESBY, a teacher who worked with Whipple in beginning days of the Dwyer School program in 1968, also appeared and expressed her support for Whipple. She said she has worked with Barbara Hickey, one of Whipple's chief accusers. Mrs. Oglesby said, "Barbara is very traditional in her methods with children. I'm not sure she could be very flexible if something unusual or unorthodox were going on."

Earlier today officials from State School Supt. Michael Bakalis's office said that Dwyer School "is not in danger of losing state aid" because of the charges which have been made about the school.

Robert Shoup, in Bakalis's Springfield office, made the statement Wednesday.

In addition, Leo Athas, attorney for Bakalis's office, who sat in on earlier meetings between NEC officials and Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick on the charges, Wednesday did not endorse statements made by Martwick in a press conference Tuesday.

Tuesday, Martwick announced that he was ordering all physical punishment at Dwyer to cease immediately and called for State's Atty. Bernard Carey and Bakalis to join his investigation at Dwyer. Martwick also indicated that state funds might be withdrawn from the program because of the charges.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said,

Des Plaines redeveloper Paroubek dies in crash

by JOHN MAES

James I. Paroubek, a leader in the effort to make redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines a reality, was killed early Wednesday in an auto accident. He was 51.

Paroubek, who was often called the "father of downtown redevelopment" was killed after his auto went out of control about 5:20 a.m. and struck a light pole on Lee Street, just south of Forest Avenue.

The accident occurred a few blocks from his home at 1036 Oakwood Ave. Paroubek was traveling south on Lee Street when his late model Cadillac struck a hole in the street and rammed the pole in front of Allen's Store for Men. He was on his way to O'Hare Airport to catch a plane to Detroit for a business trip.

MANY CITY officials and local business leaders were saddened by the news of Paroubek's death, but the general comments were typified by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

"This is certainly a tragedy for Jim's family and friends, but it is even more of a tragedy because some of the things that he has worked so hard on for so many years are on the brink of fruition and now he will not be here to see them. He was a dear and personal friend and a dedicated resident of Des Plaines," the mayor said.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 5:30 a.m.

There was some speculation among police that Paroubek may have suffered a heart attack at the wheel, causing him to lose control of the car. He suffered internal injuries, according to police reports.

In addition to his involvement in Des Plaines redevelopment plans, Paroubek owned a string of Ace Hardware stores in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. The Des Plaines store is at 684 Lee St.

Paroubek was president of the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., a group of prominent local businessmen who for more than a decade, have worked to foster the planned overhaul of the city's downtown area.

HE WAS ALSO instrumental in the 1968 formation of the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a not-for-profit organization composed of 40 to 50 businessmen who each pledged $5,000 or more, made possible the acquisition of property sites vital to the redevelopment push.

His first dealings with plans to facelift the Des Plaines business district came in 1966 when, after city council approval of the redevelopment idea, Paroubek volunteered to become president of the redevelopment association.

Superblock, a major cog in the redevelopment machine always held Paroubek's firm support.

City officials boast the $14 million superblock will showcase the new downtown Des Plaines with its 10-story office-retail store building that will be bounded by Lee, Pearson and Ellinwood streets and Prairie Avenue.

That redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the country was a prediction of Paroubek's. His office was a gallery of artist's renderings and architect's plans depicting the ultra-modern buildings and complexes he hoped would one day be downtown Des Plaines.

He held his ground stubbornly for several years in the face of project foes who looked upon redevelopment as a profiteering venture.

"SOME PEOPLE don't like change," he once said. "And I don't blame them. But we're going to get the population up to 100,000 and without planning, we'll have hodgepodge."

Paroubek is survived by his wife, Florence, and three daughters.

Visitation will be Friday afternoon and evening at Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets.

A funeral Mass is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Church, 794 Pearson St., and burial will follow in All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines.

Play based on 'Little Red Riding Hood'

Children and movie screen act together in production

by FRAN SLIMMER

The bulletin boards in Room 16 of Lakeview School in Hoffman Estates looked like the sidewalk in front of Grauman's Chinese Theater.

There, on the navy background, was the yellow construction-paper handprints, footprints and names of stars from a summer school dramatics class end-of-the-session production, "The Hairy Tale of the Little Long-Ears, or Gone With the Wolf."

It wasn't just an ordinary grade-school play, the kids performed with real movie actors — or more, specifically, a real movie.

The movie was projected from the back of a special screen, and the children talked to the life-size actors as if they were all on the same stage. The film is designed to give the students a chance to interact and become part of the movie.

"It looks like you're really in it," said Janeen Pfister, who was a candy man in the production.

The story is loosely based on "Little Red Riding Hood," teacher Ethel Rosenberg said.

Two children, Mimi and Billy, are going to spend summer vacation at Grandmother's house. They take the train to her town, but Grandmother can't meet them because she broke her leg sky-diving.

The children spent their taxi money on candy and now must walk through the forest to Grandmother's house, carrying a basketful of cookies, milk and pork chops.

Of course, the wolf that lives in the forest loves pork chops, and does everything he can to get them, including dressing up as an elephant and an aardvark. He also disguises himself as Grandmother, for the familiar what-eyes-you-have scene.

Children from two dramatics classes put on two separate performances Friday playing the parts of Mimi and Billy, their friends, passengers, conductors and candymen on the train and the zookeepers who finally catch the wolf.

One of the leading ladies, Lori Cottone, said she liked the part when the boy kissed Mimi and Billy goodbye.

"You kiss the screen?" a little boy classmate asked, with obvious disgust.

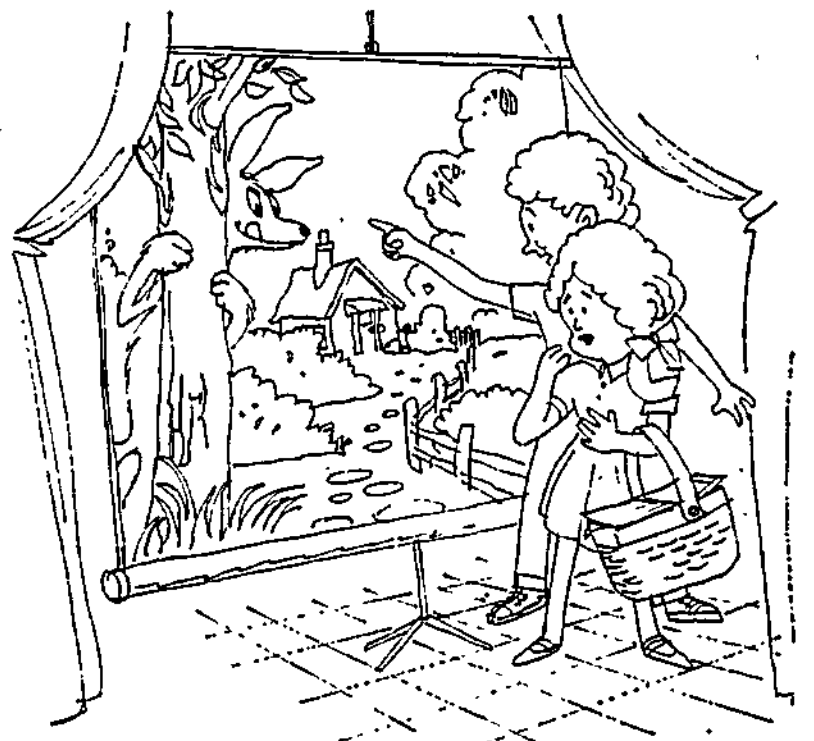

Besides kissing the children, the movie mother literally handed them a basket of goodies and a suitcase. As the mother reached down with the items, they slid out from under the screen, into the children's hands.

"THEY ARE SO funny," Mrs. Rosenberg said of her young thespians. "The younger ones especially, are so uninhibited and put such feeling and emotion into it." One actress, Jenny Brenke, played Billy in the first performance, and "she adds a lot of character to the film," Mrs. Rosenberg said. Jenny takes her lines seriously, and even looks up when she says something about the sky, Mrs. Rosenberg added.

But Jenny said, "You don't know what you're doing when you're up there." She was excited about Friday's performance before parents and schoolmates. "When people are watching you, you get nervous," she said.

Others in the two dramatics classes echoed her sentiments.

"I'm embarrassed. Everybody from my first class is here," said Mary Kosin, who spent the time behind the scenes as sound director.

THIS WAS THE first time the class had been offered at the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Dist. 54 school. There were about a dozen children in each class, give or take a few because of vacations, Mrs. Rosenberg said. Only two shy boys were in each, so the leading male roles for both casts went to girls, who didn't seem to mind.

Jane Sladek, who played Billy in the second performance, hadn't given the idea much thought. "It's good being a boy," she said. "No one teases me."

Long-haired Michele Cook shrugged her shoulders in her oversized conductor's jacket. "I just pretend I'm a hippie."

THE CHILDREN have been pretending all through the summer session, Mrs. Rosenberg said. She started out reading stories to the class and discussing the characters. Then the students performed pantomimes and acted out situations Mrs. Rosenberg invented.

Fire chief attending international meeting

Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulet is attending a meeting of the International Association of Fire Chiefs in Washington, D.C.

Hulet is participating in the session called to set new safety standards and fire code specifications. The participants will discuss amendments to the fire code specifications articles and review new standards for clothing and equipment used by firemen.

She also showed filmstrips and let the children re-enact the story later, as often as they wanted. These activities were all to help the children loosen up to prepare for the final production, she said.

The children said they liked the characters they played, although some wished they had more lines.

"All my friends are the parts I wanted to be," said Bonnie Werms, who played Mimi in the second performance. Bonnie's friend Jan Sladek said she was a lot like the "Billy" she portrayed.

However, the other Mimi, Lori Cottone, said she liked the character but wasn't much like her. What's the Mimi character like?

"She's nice," Lori said absently.

Youngsters plan carnival for charity

Two Elk Grove youngsters are planning a carnival against muscular dystrophy in an effort to raise funds to combat the disease.

Rickie and Robbie Panzer will hold the carnival at 69 Clearmont Dr., Elk Grove Village. The youngsters plan to offer Bozo buckets and beanbag throws as two carnival events.

They will be assisted by Pam and Donna Cantrell along with Julie and Tina Johnston.

The carnivals are part of a nationally sponsored program being coordinated again this year by the McDonald's Corp. and the Muscular Dystrophy Assns. of America. Last year there were more than 42,000 such carnivals in the country which raised more than $1.2 million for research and patient services.

THE HIGHLAND FLING was one highlight of a folk School summer program. The 35 youngsters are members of Nancy Carlson's international folk dance class.

Young folks swing in folk dance festival

by LINDA PUNCH

The strains of the Hora, Misirlou, Highland Fling and Virginia Reel filled the hallways of Devonshire School this week as 35 youngsters presented a folk dance festival.

The youngsters — students at Devonshire, Einstein and St. Zachary's schools in Des Plaines and Our Lady of the Rosary in Mount Prospect — are members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 folk dance class. They topped off the six-week course with a performance Tuesday morning for parents and fellow students.

Course instructor Nancy Carlson, a folk dancer in college, taught her students dances from several countries including the United States, Israel, the Philippines, Greece, Scotland, Mexico and Serbia.

"Besides learning the dances, we studied a little bit about the country," she said. "We learned about the people and why they do that type of dance."

Mrs. Carlson first taught the class last summer with an enrollment of 12. She noted that while no boys participated in the class last year, six boys enrolled this summer.

"ALL THE BOYS have been real enthusiastic — I'm hoping maybe next year we'll get some more," she said.

The Devonshire gym filled slowly Tuesday morning as parents and friends filed in for the 9 a.m. performance. The folk dance students performed nervously in the hallway with some youngsters practicing steps while others shifted excitedly from foot to foot.

The youngsters, dressed in white shirts and blouses and red and blue skirts and pants, walked into the gym in pairs after an introduction by the principal. They formed a circle and launched into a swinging version of "Oh Susana."

The children sang and clapped as they skipped and whirled their way through the dance. One boy strained as he reached to grab the hands of his slightly taller partner.

THE TINIKLING — a Filipino dance involving hopping over and between bamboo poles rhythmically tapped on the ground — followed. The girls skillfully danced and turned between the poles, rarely missing a beat. One young spectator, apparently awed by their agility, commented to a friend that "you could get your toes chopped off."

The Misirlou, a native dance of Greece, got off to a false start when a dancer bumped into the record player. The rhythmic twisting dance was followed by the Highland Fling, where students whirled to the accompaniment of Scottish music.

A Serbian folk dance, The Milanovo Kolo and the American Virginia Reel, climaxed the program. Spectators were also treated to the traditional Irish jig performed by Irish folk dancer Celene Fitzgerald, a visiting cousin of student Ann Calne.

Mrs. Carlson spent most of the performance kneeling beside the record player, nodding her head in time to the music. Despite her appearance of outward calm, one student remarked "she was more nervous than we were."

Guard units never die — just fade away

by JOE SWICKARD

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday ending the unit's 63-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of confrontation between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, staff adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hangar used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fatigues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Caen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Janas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit. Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinelli, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

As an officer walked out to the ceremony, he remarked, "This is the last of the 202nd. Sort of like Custer's last stand."

Vows replacement if found

Johnson denies furnaces contain defective parts

Johnson Furnace Co. of Bellevue, Ohio, denies its furnaces installed in about 1,700 Elk Grove Village Homes have defective parts. "But if there are any, we will replace them," said William Olsen, Johnson president. "The firm is honoring its parts replacement guarantee and confused about a local contractor's statement that the guarantee is virtually worthless," said Olsen.

The Herald disclosed in June that defective furnaces and possible code violations and faulty installation exist in more than 1,700 Centex Homes Corp.-built homes in Elk Grove Village.

Since that time a dispute has raged over the issue with village officials and local contractors working together to find the reason for the falling furnaces.

THE CAUSE OF the most prevalent problem, rusting or cracking of a heat exchanger, is complex and still not determined.

The village hired the Polytechnic Institute of Chicago to pinpoint the responsibility and expects a report from the firm soon.

"We are also anxiously waiting for that report, because we believe it will support our own study which proves our furnaces are not defective but that parts are going bad because of other contributing causes," said Olsen.

"Until that report is released the only other comment I have is that we will replace defective parts but feel perfectly justified in stipulating that replacement will only be offered if installation was correct and no code violations exist," said Olsen.

Robert Wing, of Wing Heating and Air Conditioning of Elk Grove Village, a heating contractor who brought the problem to the village officials' attention when he noticed an alarming number of defective furnaces challenged Olsen's guarantee earlier this week.

WING MAINTAINS that not one house in the 1,700 Centex Homes Corp.-built homes with suspect furnaces is without some code violations.

His challenge of the Johnson guarantee pledge arose when he asked the furnace manufacturer for clarification of a July announcement that Johnson furnace will replace heat exchangers in its models WAS 105 and WAS 130. A few months earlier the manufacturer announced it would no longer honor its replacement guarantee because of improper installations. An engineering report paid for by the firm blamed faulty installation for the furnace failure.

Wing said Olsen wrote him and stressed his attitude had not changed, Olsen agreed and said "The firm still believes furnace failure is not due to defective parts, but to faulty installations."

Olsen who was unavailable for comment last week when Wing challenged the validity guarantee, Wednesday said "My guarantee offer is an honorable one, but I am not about to offer an installation guarantee and apparently that's what is being asked of me."

Mount Prospect youth charged with burglary

A 16-year-old Mount Prospect resident has been charged with burglarizing a home and a gas station in Des Plaines. The burglaries occurred last week.

Local juvenile authorities could not identify the youth, but said he was being named in a delinquency petition alleging burglary.

According to reports, the youth stole between $30 and $50 from Herb's Phillips 66 gas station, Wolf and Central roads, and at least $7 from the home of Edward Mahoney, 474 Fifth Ave.

The youth has been scheduled for a juvenile court appearance in Niles.

Township history unearthed

In the Cady Cemetery.

One of those families was the Kitsons, who settled in 1840 on Quentin Road near Palatine Road, east of an area known then as Englishman's Cove. The area was named for the number of settlers from England, like Kitson, who lived there.

FOUNDING FATHER John Kitson was a brickmaker who built and lived in the house that Avery Wolfram, township cemetery board chairman, now lives in on Quentin Road. Kitson bricks were widely used to build many of the first brick homes in the township that replaced the settlers' temporary log cabins.

John Kitson, who died in 1893, his wife, and an undetermined number of their eight children are buried in the Cady Cemetery.

Another founding father, John Fosket, followed Cady from New York in the 1840s by way of the lakes of Toledo, Ohio, the route which many of the early settlers took to the Midwest. Fosket settled south of the Cady property purchasing at least 160 acres of land from the federal government for $1.60 an acre. These first land holders purchased the land cheaply from the government with the understanding that they would develop the land and build homes and other establishments on the land within a certain time limit.

Many of the pioneer families moved out to the Midwest from a crowded New England coast where there was little land left for the expansion of a big family. In an untamed land, large families were essential for the time-consuming development of land, building of homes and providing of basic goods. A family with many children was a blessed family in a growing, religious-dominated community.

MRS. MARY REGAN is a member of the township cemetery committee who is researching the genealogy of early township families who are buried in Cady

A RELIC of Palatine Township's past lies nestled in the weeds and grass of Cady Cemetery. The cemetery, under reconstruction by the township, is the resting place of many of the township's founding families.

Once by appointment only, this gas is now on sale

Five months ago, gas was in such great demand that customers were making appointments to have their cars fueled at Don Wilson's Northwest Marathon station, 115 W. Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights.

Now, Wilson has such a surplus at month's end that he's put his gas on sale.

Wilson ran ads last week offering regular gasoline for 50.9 cents per gallon plus tax, a price 3 to 10 cents per gallon below area competitors.

Why the surplus and sale? "Because of the way the government operates," Wilson said, referring to the gas allocation system.

WILSON'S REGULAR business has been disrupted lately by road construction on Dundee Road. If surplus gasoline remains in his tanks at the end of the month, Wilson said the oil company will reclaim it without giving him credit or the right to recall the gas at a later date. Frequent surpluses also could result in a reduced gas allocation for his station, Wilson added.

Wilson said the gas sale is cutting his profit margin in half, but he "wants to give the customers a break." Rather than have the oil company get the surplus gas, Wilson said he would rather drop back the cost per gallon to cover pumping costs and keep his allocation.

Wilson said his business has been "unbelievable" since the sale began last week. "People have been calling in to ask when we're open, how late we're open," he said. Wilson hopes to keep his sales at the "unbelievable" level with a sale on lead-free gas next month.

Fremd High graduate wins photo award from Kodak

An 18-year-old graduate of Fremd High School has won a medallion of excellence award from the Eastman Kodak Co. for her photograph, "Paper Positive."

Sue Witte, 4661 Dawngate Ln., Rolling Meadows, first became interested in photography when she took a course in it at Fremd. Her black and white photo, an abstract, was judged best picture entered in the photography division of the Illinois Regional Scholastic Art Awards exhibition.

The photograph was selected recently as the winner from three finalists in national judging in New York City. It is now on display along with other winning prints at the Kodak photography, 1133 Avenue of the Americas, New York City.

The award program, sponsored by Eastman Kodak Company, is conducted annually by Scholastic Magazines Inc. It is open to junior and senior high school students who compete in groups according to grade level. Both black-and-white and color prints are eligible.

The incident was reported to have taken place between midnight Tuesday night and 6:30 a.m. Wednesday.

their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Coen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Janas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinelli, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

As an officer walked out to the ceremony, he remarked, "This is the last of the 202nd. Sort of like Custer's last stand."

He was asked if it didn't more closely resemble the British leaving India. He chuckled, "Yes. It does at that."

CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER Frank Cardinelli of Rolling Meadows receives a medal for meritorious service from Maj. Harold Patton, adjutant general of the National Guard Wednesday at the last awards ceremony to be held at the Arlington Heights Nike Base. The base will become an Army Reserve center in September.

Cemetery. Mrs. Regan is attempting to determine relationships between people buried in the cemetery and to identify its many unmarked graves by using lot maps filed with Cook County. In one case Mrs. Regan has found the graves of four wives and five children of the early settler Thomas Wilson, who also is buried in the cemetery.

Wilson settled in an area on Baldwin Road east of the Cady property in 1840, migrating from Northern Ireland. Four silos peering out of a grove of trees mark, today, where the Wilson farm once was. Wilson was a farmer and a preacher, noted for his long prayers. One of his sons, John, a veterinarian, used part of the Wilson farm to breed and train carriage horses for special customers in New York and Chicago.

Information taken in the 1860 census when 495 families lived in the township, has helped Mrs. Regan to partially complete the family trees of many of these pioneer families. Information rendered by a few existing descendants of these first Palatine families of the Cady area also has helped.

"CEMETERIES like Cady should be worked on to be made a memorial to the people who first settled this land," Mrs. Regan said.

Mrs. Regan has not found the historic consciousness among residents in Palatine Township that exists in New England where she is originally from. Mrs. Regan has published two of a planned seven volumes covering the genealogy of the Beers families of which she is descended, who settled on the east coast.

Mrs. Regan acknowledges that places like the Cady Cemetery are filled with artifacts that could help to unveil the history of the township and its people. But, that type of work requires time and patience, something that is scarce in a fast-developing township area, only a century and a half old.

Despite cement truck driver's strike

Summer road work on schedule

Summer road work in Palatine Township and the village is being completed on schedule despite earlier delays due to the six-week cement truck drivers' strike.

Township and village highway crews have been working to catch-up with primarily paving and resurfacing road work that had been planned now that concrete materials are available.

The township completed the resurfacing of Baldwin Road, serving the subdivisions of Splunkner Cove and Winston Park, on Tuesday. The repaving of Gilbert Street, from the village limits to Quentin Road; and Kenilworth Road, from Clyde Street to Quentin Road, was completed Wednesday.

The resurfacing of streets in Brentwood Estates and Barrington Trails subdivisions will be completed sometime this summer and will be paid for with motor fuel tax funds.

Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner, said that $75,000 of the total $100,000 asphaltting costs will be paid for with the motor fuel tax funds. The township contracted R. W. Duntmann Co. of Bensenville to do some of the remaining asphaltting for a low bid of $37,000.

Bergman also said that $30,000 worth of seal-coating will be completed on various streets throughout Palatine Township by early September at the latest. The seal-coating work will be paid for with funds from the township road and bridge tax. The township has contracted the Skokie Valley Co. to help with the seal-coating work for the low bids of $24,000 for priming the roads, and $36,000 for the seal-coating of the roads.

Although the paving and seal-coating of streets in the township is being done six to eight weeks later than was planned, "the highway department is going to complete the road work by the end of the summer," Bergman said.

Lee Plate, a public works spokesman for the village, said that the village should be able to complete its contracted road work on schedule, "barring unforeseen events."

The only major contracted road project that was delayed by the concrete strike involves the repaving of roads in the older sections of the village and in the Winston Park area.

With concrete materials now available to the village, preparation work is being done by village crews on the streets before they can be repaved. Plate expects the street drainage outlets to be raised and other preparation work to be completed by the second week in August.

The village contracted the Rock Road Co. of Des Plaines to do the resurfacing of the roads for a low bid of $148,137 to be paid for with motor fuel tax funds. The company could complete the resurfacing of the streets by the original Aug. 31 completion date if it begins work in mid-August, Plate said.

Otherwise, both township and village road crews are continuing with the normal patching of roads, and mowing of roadside grass and weeds without any problems.

West Fest planning under way

Planning is under way for the annual West Fest carnival in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Aug. 22 through Aug. 25. The theme of the event, sponsored annually by the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Assn. will be the Old West.

Local organizations will be participating in the event. The Jaycees will sponsor a dunking booth, the American Legion will sell bratwurst, sauerkraut and hot dogs, the Rolling Meadows Hockey Club will sell beer and the Cub Scouts will sell watermelon.

Carnival rides will also be operated for the four-day event at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. Other entertainment will include a magician with an old west medicine show, clowns, a quick-draw demonstration, square dancers and country and western music by Linda Plunkott.

Sidewalk sales will also be sponsored by the shopping center merchants during the event.

Persons interested in performing at the event should contact Phyllis Peszek at 253-1334.

Mutilated? Well, money is money...

The Palatine National Bank sold $500 in mutilated bills last week during the Mutilated Money Sale it sponsored during Sidewalk Days.

Torn and dirty $20 bills were sold for $18.50, $10 bills were sold for $9.50, $5 bills were sold for $4.50, and mutilated $1 bills went for 90 cents each.

Due to the success of the sale, the bank may possibly sponsor another mutilated money sale next year, said Mrs. Wanda Malow, assistant vice president of Palatine National Bank.

$52 in cash stolen from Paddock office

Fifty-two dollars in cash was stolen from the Palatine office of Paddock Publications, 19 N. Bothwell, on Tuesday. Palatine police reported that no forced entry was made to get into the office, and that entry could possibly have been made with the use of an office key.

The theft was said to have happened between 5 p.m. on Tuesday and 8:25 a.m. on Wednesday.

If city approves license

Senior citizens may use free township bus service

Elk Grove Township's senior citizen bus service may be available for use by some Rolling Meadows residents soon if a required licensing application is approved by the city.

Township officials plan to attend the next regular city council meeting Aug. 13 to request approval of the licensing application required by the city in order for the transportation system to operate in the city.

If the request is approved, it would entitle senior citizens living in Rolling Meadows south of Central Road to use the free township bus service.

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Richard Hall said Wednesday Township Auditor

Wayne Hult will attend the meeting with "all the necessary forms filled out" to apply for the license. Hall said if approval is granted the township would be ready to start the service "immediately" for senior citizens in the city's Elk Grove Township limits.

The township's bus service for senior citizens began in December, but has never operated in Rolling Meadows because of the license required by the city. A similar bus service for senior citizens in Palatine Township, which began in February, also has not operated in the city because township officials chose not to go through the licensing procedure.

"I'm a little confused," Hall said in reference to the city's licensing requirement. He said no other community in which the service is provided, including Elk Grove Village, parts of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, have required a license.

Before Palatine Township decided against seeking the city license, Mayor Roland Meyer said he might not sign a license application because of questions surrounding the legality of using federal revenue-sharing money to fund the service.

MEYER REFERRED TO an opinion handed down by Ill. Atty. Gen. William Scott which apparently bars townships from using the funds for transportation. Because townships are limited by Illinois law in the areas for which they may spend funds, Scott ruled revenue-sharing monies could only be used for areas on which the townships could expend their own funds.

Transportation is not included in that area, however, township officials have said the revenue use was justified as a service for the youth, poor and aged. Scott's ruling is under appeal from both Elk Grove and Wheeling townships.

Meyer could not be reached Wednesday to comment on whether he would consider signing a license for the Elk Grove Township bus service.

The township service provides free transportation for senior citizens to any location in the township. Seniors make appointments for bus service one day prior to when it will be used and are picked up and taken home free. There also is a once-a-week service to the Woodfield and Randhurst shopping centers.

Hall said only a small portion of the city would be entitled to the service, but the township was pursuing the licensing procedure to attempt to extend the service to the city's eligible seniors.

"We have received several calls from people wanting to use the service," Hall said. "We would like to serve those people and believe we can. We can't understand why Rolling Meadows wouldn't want us to."

Park district considering new pool filter system

The Rolling Meadows Park District is considering the purchase of a new pool filter system this year because of continuous breakdowns in the present system, resulting in pool closings and lost revenue.

The estimated cost for a new system is $15,000.

The pool was forced to close twice this summer because of a breakdown in the filter system, which keeps the water clear. The breakdowns resulted in a loss of about $1,200 in admission revenue and repair costs to the park district, according to Supt. of Parks and Recreation Steve Person. The system also has broken down several times in previous years.

"WE THINK WE can get a more efficient system," he said. The present system is 12 years old and has been flooded several times because of overflows from Salt Creek, Person said.

"Nothing's built to last forever," said pool supervisor Ken Smith.

The system is obsolete and replacement parts are not available, said Person. The breakdown in the filtering system this summer was caused by a short in one of the electrical engines. The engine was improperly rewound and then broke down two other times, said Person. Flooding of the underground equipment room is another problem.

THE SYSTEM WAS purchased in the early '60s when the pool was built. "At that time, it was one of the best we could get," said an ex-park board president. By 1972, however, the park district was having difficulties with the system and parts were no longer available, according to Park Board Pres. Raymond Neukranz.

The city was asked to contribute money for a new filter in 1972, but refused. The park district has delayed purchasing a new filter because of other financial obligations.

"It's old," Neukranz added, "and the only way to fix it is to completely put in a new system."

Prenatal care for teens given

The Crossroads Clinic in Palatine has begun offering a prenatal care program for pregnant teens who have decided against abortion.

Five pregnant teenagers are enrolled in the program which began in April, to receive prenatal and postnatal care in instruction said Barbara Michelin, clinic director.

Michelin said that more young girls are being presented with "all the alternatives to pregnancy, and are giving more serious thought to abortion." Many more girls than in the past who have come to Crossroads for assistance have the baby rather than have an abortion, she said.

The program, which costs $5 a month, is offered by doctors working at the clinic at 432 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Michelin explained that new programs catering to the needs of the clinic's patients will be created as those needs are identified. The clinic has experienced a 30 per cent increase in patients since January, most of whom come to the clinic for venereal disease tests and treatment as well as birth control information.

THE CLINIC also has extended its evening hours of 6:30 to 10 to three nights a week. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, to meet the increasing use of the clinic. Billings for treatment and examination are not sent to the patient's home, and patients are not required to pay for the services "unless they are in a financial situation where they can afford it," Michelin said.

"All we can do is recognize the problem and attempt to treat it. We are not trying to deal with morals. We are only trying to provide a service that has been overlooked in this area," Michelin said.

Michelin said that she feels the recent controversy over the clinic's offering of medical treatment and contraceptives to teenagers has been "beneficial" at it has "made people think about the problem of pregnancy that exists in the suburbs whether they want to admit it or not."

Parents voice support for Whipple's program

by WANDALYN RICE

A group of parents who support the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night as the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board continued its investigation of charges against the school.

In addition, representatives of Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick appeared before the governing board to tell them that John Whipple, director of the school in Arlington Heights, has been privately practicing psychology without a license in violation of state law.

At Hordell press time, the NEC governing board was meeting in closed session with Whipple and his attorney. The board had not announced whether it would formally hear the parents who had supported the program.

Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent from Martwick's office, said that the charges about Whipple's private psychology practice are "very germane" to the board's investigation. In addition, Hennessey said Whipple has twice failed the state licensing examination for private psychologists, in 1968 and 1972.

Under Illinois law, for a psychologist to see patients in private practice he must have a Ph.D. and pass the state licensing examination. Whipple is a registered school psychologist, a registration which does not qualify him for private practice.

THE PARENTS who appeared before the board went into its meeting said the charges against Whipple and the Dwyer program are "hogwash."

The charges about Dwyer have been made by a group of present and former members of the staff at the school. The charges include allegations that children are physically abused and beaten with large wooden paddles, that staff at the school are unqualified and that staff members engage in unprofessional behavior.

Most of the charges have centered on Whipple, the psychologist who heads the program. Martwick has said Whipple is unqualified for his job because he does not have the certificate required for a school administrator in Illinois.

Mary Lou Ghannam, who has a child in the program, said, "I don't believe any staff member ever abused a child and if they did they were the ones John (Whipple) fired. I don't consider John only the director of a school my son went to. I consider him my friend."

Other parents said they had questioned

their children about paddling or other physical abuse and that their children said they had never seen any. One father said that his son was sometimes disciplined with a paddle "But they cleared it with me first."

DEE OGLESBY, a teacher who worked with Whipple in beginning days of the Dwyer School program in 1968, also appeared and expressed her support for Whipple. She said she has worked with Barbara Hickey, one of Whipple's chief accusers. Mrs. Oglesby said, "Barbara is very traditional in her methods with children. I'm not sure she could be very flexible if something unusual or unorthodox were going on."

Earlier today officials from State School Supt. Michael Bakalis's office said that Dwyer School "is not in danger of losing state aid" because of the charges which have been made about the school.

Robert Shoup, in Bakalis's Springfield office, made the statement Wednesday.

In addition, Leo Athas, attorney for Bakalis's office, who sat in on earlier meetings between NEC officials and Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick on the charges, Wednesday did not endorse statements made by Martwick in a press conference Tuesday.

Tuesday, Martwick announced that he was ordering all physical punishment at Dwyer to cease immediately and called for State's Atty. Bernard Carey and Bakalis to join his investigation at Dwyer. Martwick also indicated that state funds might be withdrawn from the program because of the charges.

Church cornfest Saturday

The weekend shopping list for Rolling Meadows calls for 505 pounds of hamburger, 12,000 ears of corn, 85 pounds of hot dogs, 172 watermelons and 70 cases of soft drinks.

The Community Church of Rolling Meadows will be buying these items in preparation for Saturday's 17th annual Cornfest. The event will be held at the church, Kirchhoff Road and Meadow Drive, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. A hamburger or hotdog, slice of watermelon, beverage and unlimited corn on the cob costs $1.85. Children can enjoy the same fare for 85 cents.

The cost is 10 cents higher than last year because of rising food costs, said

June Fields, publicity chairman for Community Church. Seconds will be available at added cost, she said.

Despite the fact that this has been a generally bad year for corn crops due to the wet cool spring, Community Church has an assured shipment of corn for Saturday. Mrs. Fields said that the Cornfest date is really determined by the farmer supplying the corn.

This year, an advanced ticket serving line will be tried, according to Mrs. Fields. Those purchasing tickets in advance will be served from a separate line than those buying tickets the day of the Cornfest. Those wishing advance tickets may call the church office before noon at 255-8510.

Township history unearthed

by DIANE STEFANOS

A wilderness sliced only by scattered dirt roads and flowing creeks was Palatine Township as its earliest settlers founded it in the early 1800s — settlers who worked the land, developed it, died and were buried in it.

The lost identity of many of the township's first founders is being reconstructed with the renovation of the pioneer Cady Cemetery.

Members of the township's cemetery board are piecing together the fragments of some 100 tombstones in the cemetery, a reconstruction that slowly is revealing the names, birth and death dates and origins of some of the township's founding families.

MOST OF THE people buried in the cemetery, located on Ela Road south of Dundee Road, were members of families who had farmed land in the surrounding area.

The Cady family, after whom the cemetery is named, was one of the first farming families to come to Palatine from New York in 1837.

The first family settled on 240 acres in the southwest part of an area known then as Deer Grove. Clarinda Cady was the first white child to be born in Palatine Township in 1838. The Cady Cemetery originated in 1841 when Ezekiel Cady buried his young son, Wilbur, upon a small knoll at the north side of his farm because there were no cemeteries in existence. Neighboring families later came to bury their dead in family groups on the knoll.

A family lot, shaded by the still-existing trees from the Cady family orchard, contains the graves of Ezekiel Cady, his wife and five of their nine children. One of the Cady sons, Arad, is one of many Civil War veterans buried there. Other Cady children married members of other area families who also have family lots in the Cady Cemetery.

One of those families was the Kitsons, who settled in 1848 on Quentin Road near Palatine Road, east of an area known then as Englishman's Cove. The area was named for the number of settlers from England, like Kitson, who lived there.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said,

Ferndale Hts. utility hike under study

A decision on Ferndale Heights Utility Co.'s request for a 16.5 per cent hike in water and sewer rates is expected by the Illinois Commerce Commission in a month.

The ICC concluded its hearing of the Ferndale Heights case Wednesday morning in its Chicago office, 160 N. LaSalle St. Cross-examination into salaries paid to Ferndale Heights officers was heard, said James Mellugh, ICC hearing official.

Ferndale Heights' request for a 16.5 per cent hike, if approved, would increase its customers' quarterly sewer bill from $12 to $14. The minimum quarterly water bill for 12,000 gallons of water would rise from $18.20 to $18.35. The combined minimum annual increase for homeowners in unincorporated Palatine Township served by Ferndale Heights would be $18.60. However, since most customers use an average of 21,000 gallons of water quarterly, the increase would be even higher.

"The biggest bone of contention," said Mellugh, is Ferndale Heights' request to add a $10 monthly surcharge to the bills of all homeowners with illegal sanitary sewer connections. Ray DiVito, manager of Ferndale Heights, said the purpose of the surcharge is to discourage residents from making illegal connections to the sanitary sewers and overtaxing the lift stations.

Mellugh said that the company is seeking a $10 surcharge when their officers' salaries are too high.

According to Mellugh, the utility company "just wants more money," a request they attempted to support at the ICC hearings with claims of increased costs.

Ferndale Heights serves more than 2,000 customers including 20 commercial establishments. Unincorporated areas served include English Valley, Heatherlea, Pepper Tree Farms, Pinehurst Manor and Northern Aire subdivisions north of the Village of Palatine and several large apartment complexes along Rand Road.

"BIBLE TIMES" is the theme for Trinity Lutheran Church's Vacation Bible School, to be held at the Rolling Meadows Church Aug. 5-16. A biblical market place, being constructed by Joanne and Harry Henderson, will be used to teach three-year-olds through eighth graders about the times of Christ. The cost of the bible school is $1.50 per child or $5 per family per week. Class sessions will be held Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Mrs. Jim Tetmeyer is directing the school.

Part-time sanitarian may be hired here soon

The hiring of a man to work part time as Rolling Meadows sanitarian may be "very imminent," City Mgr. James Watson said this week.

Watson said a registered sanitarian is being considered to work for the city during evenings and on weekends to handle health inspections required at businesses and apartment complexes. The sanitarian would be considered a part-time employee and probably will be paid an hourly rate to be determined, Watson said.

The sanitarian's position has been vacant since July 1 when Donald Schindler resigned to move to Wisconsin. The city has had problems in finding a successor because a sanitarian appointed by Mayor Roland Meyer can only serve until the end of Meyer's term in April.

The sanitarian post is an appointive position of the mayor subject to city council approval.

SEVERAL PERSONS have been interviewed for the post but the limited duration of the term has hampered efforts to appoint a successor.

Watson said as city manager he is authorized to hire an employee to perform the sanitarian's duties, although the hired sanitarian will not be considered a department head. Watson added he would like to hire someone soon to avoid the city getting too far behind in inspection needs.

"I think we haven't done many inspections for the whole month of July," Watson said. "John Schultz (health officer) has done some but it certainly isn't anywhere near the level I think we should have."

The sanitarian is responsible for enforcing city health codes and making inspections of businesses, food establishments and residents relating to health concerns.

West Fest planning under way

Planning is under way for the annual West Fest carnival in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Aug. 22 through Aug. 25. The theme of the event, sponsored annually by the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Assn. will be the Old West.

Local organizations will be participating in the event. The Jaycees will sponsor a dunking booth, the American Legion will sell bratwurst, sauerkraut and hot dogs, the Rolling Meadows Hockey Club will sell beer and the Cub Scouts will sell watermelon.

Carnival rides will also be operated for the four-day event at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. Other entertainment will include a magician with an old west medicine show, clowns, a quick-draw demonstration, square dancers and country and western music by Linda Plunkett.

Sidewalk sales will also be sponsored by the shopping center merchants during the event.

Persons interested in performing at the event should contact Phyllis Peszek at 253-1334.

Old Guard units never die—they just fade away

by JOE SWICKARD

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday ending the unit's 83-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of contention between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, state adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hanger used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fatigues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Caen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Jonas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinell, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

As an officer walked out to the ceremony, he remarked, "This is the last of the 202nd. Sort of like Custer's last stand."

He was asked if it didn't more closely resemble the British leaving India. He chuckled, "Yes, it does at that."

CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER Frank Cardinell of Rolling Meadows receives a medal for meritorious service from Maj. Harold Patton, adjutant general of the National Guard Wednesday at the last awards ceremony to be held at the Arlington Heights Nike Base. The base will become an Army Reserve center in September.

Golden Years Club to get new ID cards

Members of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club will be among the first persons to receive new identification cards being provided by the Cook County clerk's office.

A bus will take the members to the county building Friday morning to receive the new ID cards. The bus will leave the city hall at 8:30 a.m. and return by about noon.

Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, said Wednesday the group was first asked by Mayor Roland Meyer last week if they would like the cards. She said Meyer made arrangements with County Clerk Stanley Kasper for the trip Friday and issuance of the cards.

Steve Healey of Kasper's office said Wednesday Meyer arranged for the bus and will accompany the seniors to the county building. Healey said 33 seniors are expected to attend and cards for them have been processed in advance of the general availability of the cards, which will begin Monday.

The cards will cost $3 each and are designed to be an accepted form of identification to eliminate the need for several identifying cards a person might otherwise be required to carry.

Mrs. Hofstede said members of the Golden Years Club interested in taking part in Friday's trip should contact her.

Salt Creek park meeting date changed

The Salt Creek Park Board has moved its monthly board meetings to the second Tuesday of each month. The board formerly met each first Tuesday of the month.

Salt Creek Park District Director James DeVos said that the later meeting date is better for billing and accounting procedures. Bills that had to be paid with board approval were often not in by the first Tuesday of the month, he said, throwing off the district's accounting.

The park district board meets at 8 p.m. in the Rose Park building on Williams Avenue, Palatine.

Glass shattered at Fremd High School

An estimated $800 damage was done to glass windows and doors at Fremd High School in Palatine Tuesday night with a pellet gun.

Four glass doors and one window, were shattered, and one metal garage door was apparently shot at, Palatine police reported.

The incident was reported to have taken place between midnight Tuesday night and 6:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Through cemetery renovation

Pieces of township history revealed

a brickmaker who built and lived in the house that Avery Wolfram, township cemetery board chairman, now lives in on Quentin Road. Kitson bricks were widely used to build many of the first brick homes in the township that replaced the settlers' temporary log cabins.

John Kitson, who died in 1895, his wife, and an undetermined number of their eight children are buried in the Cady Cemetery.

Another founding father, John Fosket, followed Cady from New York in the 1840s by way of the lakes of Toledo, Ohio, the route which many of the early settlers took to the Midwest. Fosket settled south of the Cady property purchasing at least 150 acres of land from the federal government for $1.60 an acre. These first land holders purchased the land cheaply from the government with the understanding that they would develop the land and build homes and other establishments on the land within a certain time limit.

Many of the pioneer families moved out to the Midwest from a crowded New England coast where there was little land left for the expansion of a big family. In an untamed land, large families were essential for the time-consuming development of land, building of homes and providing of basic goods. A family with many children was a blessed family in a growing, religious-dominated community.

MRS. MARY REGAN is a member of the township cemetery committee who is researching the genealogy of early township families who are buried in Cady Cemetery.

Mrs. Regan is attempting to determine relationships between people buried in the cemetery and to identify its many unmarked graves by using lot maps filed with Cook County. In one case Mrs. Regan has found the graves of four wives and five children of the early settler Thomas Wilson, who also is buried in the cemetery.

Wilson settled in an area on Baldwin Road east of the Cady property in 1840, migrating from Northern Ireland. Four silos peering out of a grove of trees mark, today, where the Wilson farm once was. Wilson was a farmer and a preacher, noted for his long prayers. One of his sons, John, a veterinarian, used part of the Wilson farm to breed and train carriage horses for special customers in New York and Chicago.

Information taken in the 1880 census when 495 families lived in the township, has helped Mrs. Regan to partially complete the family trees of many of these pioneer families. Information rendered by a few existing descendants of these first Palatine families of the Cady area also has helped.

"CEMETERIES like Cady should be worked out to be made a memorial to the people who first settled this land," Mrs. Regan said.

Mrs. Regan has not found the historic consciousness among residents in Palatine Township that exists in New England where she is originally from. Mrs. Regan has published two of a planned seven volumes covering the genealogy of the Beers families of which she is descended, who settled on the east coast.

Mrs. Regan acknowledges that places like the Cady Cemetery are filled with artifacts that could help to unveil the history of the township and its people. But, that type of work requires time and patience, something that is scarce in a fast-developing township area, only a century and a half old.

Occult replacing sex for library patrons

Rolling Meadows Library patrons are checking out more books on the occult and less on sex, according to Geno Good, acting library director.

Mrs. Good said astrology, fortune telling and related books are increasing in popularity. Also very popular are books on gardening, decorating and crocheting.

"People are reading about movie stars quite a bit," she added.

The 14 books on the library's reserve list, however, are still primarily fictional. "Sybil" by Flora Rheta Schreiber, is one of the most popular, said the library staff.

Other books requested in advance by patrons include "Cashelmarra" by Susan Howatch, "Jaws" by Nathaniel Benchley and "The House of a Thousand Lanterns" by Victoria Holt. "Charlotte of the Gods," the popular book by Erich Von Daniken, which was made into a movie, is still on the reserve list.

Mutilated? Well, money is money...

The Palatine National Bank sold $300 in mutilated bills last week during the Mutilated Money Sale it sponsored during Sidewalk Days.

Torn and dirty $20 bills were sold for $18.50, $10 bills were sold for $9.50, $5 bills were sold for $4.50, and mutilated $1 bills went for 90 cents each.

Due to the success of the sale, the bank may possibly sponsor another mutilated money sale next year, said Mrs. Wanda Mallow, assistant vice president of Palatine National Bank.

If Saturday's fire referendum passes

Village fire department may be formed in 2 months

by STUHLING MORITA

If a referendum calling for placement of an area north of the Northwest Tollway in the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District passes Saturday, creation of a village fire department may be only two months away.

The key to the village takeover is transfer of the Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates and the Windemere subdivision in South Barrington from the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District to the HEFPD. Registered voters in the area will go to the polls Saturday to vote on the referendum.

Results of the referendum will not be immediately disclosed to the public. The results will be presented Monday morning in Circuit Court because of an order issued by Judge Harry G. Comerford, who is presiding over the proposed transfer.

THOMAS McGUIRE, president of the Winston Knolls Homeowners Assn., said it appeared that many of the homeowners are in favor of the transfer because of anticipated improvement of fire service. Warren Fuller, president of the Windemere Homeowners Assn., said he could not speak for homeowners in the subdivision, but noted he favored the transfer. The area in South Barrington was included in the transfer so it would not be split off from the PRFPD.

A. J. Judoe, president of the Palatine district board, said the board has agreed to "go along" with the transfer because of eventual improvements of services.

Tax rates are certain to go up in the area if the transfer is approved. Tax rates in 1972 for the PRFPD were 6.4 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, while the HEFPD taxes are at the maximum, allowable rate of 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Additional rates are approximately 3 cents for insurance and retirement benefits, and approximately 11 cents for payment of a recent bond referendum. Fire district trustees have assured Windemere residents they would be only liable for 43 cents of the total rate.

Insurance rates for Windemere homes may decline because the quality of service will improve, but village and HEFPD officials will not guarantee any insurance premium drops because insurance ratings of fire departments are made by an independent organization.

PRFPD HAS A CONTRACT with the Palatine Fire Dept. for firefighter services. Palatine has 13 full-time men and 20 volunteers. The HEFPD has 20 full-time men and 25 volunteers, 10 of which recently joined as a volunteer force from Winston Knolls.

Play based on 'Little Red Riding Hood'

Children and movie screen act together in production

by FRAN SLIMMER

The bulletin boards in Room 16 of Lakeview School in Hoffman Estates looked like the sidewalk in front of Grauman's Chinese Theater.

There, on the navy background, was the yellow construction-paper handprints, footprints and names of stars from a summer school dramatics class end-of-the-session production. "The Hairy Tale of Leslie Long-Ears, or Gone With the Wolf."

It wasn't just an ordinary grade-school play, the kids performed with real movie actors — or more specifically, a real movie.

The movie was projected from the back of a special screen, and the children talked to the life-size actors as if they were all on the same stage. The film is designed to give the students a chance to interact and become part of the movie.

"It looks like you're really in it," said Janene Pfister, who was a candy man in the production.

The story is loosely based on "Little Red Riding Hood," teacher Ethel Rosenberg said.

Two children, Mimi and Billy, are going to spend summer vacation at Grandmother's house. They take the train to her town, but Grandmother can't meet them because she broke her leg sky-diving.

The children spent their taxi money on candy and now must walk through the forest to Grandmother's house, carrying (Continued on page 5)

Zoners hear testimony on Pumpkin Hills plans

Continued testimony on Pumpkin Hills, a 1,116-unit development proposed at Algonquin and Plum Grove roads in north-central Schaumburg had not concluded at press time Wednesday.

Algonquin Road Developers is asking for annexation of 84 acres and multiple family zoning to allow construction of a mix of apartments for rent and sale.

Plans call for low-rise garden units and seven to eight-story midrise buildings surrounding two retention lakes. The development would be built in four phases, each to contain a swimming pool, tennis courts and parking along with dwelling units.

Brothers arrested: drug charge

Two brothers, one of them a Schaumburg man, were arrested early Wednesday on various drug counts after police responded to a report of an assault near 903 Bradford Ln., Schaumburg.

William Boehm, 20, Northbrook, and Randall Boehm, 20, 1331 Amherst Ln., Schaumburg, were charged with possession of a controlled substance thought to be heroin. William Boehm was also charged with battery and possession of a controlled substance thought to be LSD.

Police responded at about 2:50 a.m. to a call from James Deppner who reported he was kicked in the mouth by one of two youths camping in a tent near his home on Bradford Lane.

The youths were arrested and three packets of a white powder were found in the tent. A small quantity of a substance thought to be LSD was found on William Boehm.

Deppner told police he was checking out strange noises near his backyard when the alleged assault occurred.

William Boehm was being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of bonds totaling $11,000. Randall Boehm was also being held in the same jail and bond was set for him at $10,000.

Their court date has been set for Aug. 7 in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Parents voice support for Whipple's program

by WANDALYN RICE

A group of parents who support the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night as the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board continued its investigation of charges against the school.

In addition, representatives of Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick appeared before the governing board to tell them that John Whipple, director of the school in Arlington Heights, has been privately practicing psychology without a license in violation of state law.

At Herald press time, the NEC governing board was meeting in closed session with Whipple and his attorney. The board had not announced whether it would formally hear the parents who had supported the program.

Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent from Martwick's office, said that the charges about Whipple's private psychology practice are "very germane" to the board's investigation. In addition, Hennessey said Whipple has twice failed the state licensing examination for private psychologists, in 1968 and 1972.

Under Illinois law, for a psychologist to see patients in private practice he must have a Ph.D. and pass the state licensing examination. Whipple is a registered school psychologist, a registration which does not qualify him for private practice.

THE PARENTS who appeared before the board went into its meeting said the charges against Whipple and the Dwyer program are "hogwash."

The charges about Dwyer have been made by a group of present and former members of the staff at the school. The charges include allegations that children are physically abused and beaten with large wooden paddles, that staff at the school are unqualified and that staff members engage in unprofessional behavior.

Most of the charges have centered on Whipple, the psychologist who heads the program. Martwick has said Whipple is unqualified for his job because he does not have the certificate required for a school administrator in Illinois.

Mary Lou Ghannam, who has a child in the program, said, "I don't believe any staff member ever abused a child and if they did they were the ones John (Whipple) fired. I don't consider John only the director of a school my son went to. I consider him my friend."

Other parents said they had questioned

their children about paddling or other physical abuse and that their children said they had never seen any. One father said that his son was sometimes disciplined with a paddle "But they cleared it with me first."

DEE OGLESBY, a teacher who worked with Whipple in beginning days of the Dwyer School program in 1968, also appeared and expressed her support for Whipple. She said she has worked with Barbara Hickey, one of Whipple's chief accusers. Mrs. Oglesby said, "Barbara is very traditional in her methods with children. I'm not sure she could be very flexible if something unusual or unorthodox were going on."

Earlier today officials from State School Supt. Michael Bakalis's office said that Dwyer School "is not in danger of losing state aid" because of the charges which have been made about the school.

Robert Shoup, in Bakalis's Springfield office, made the statement Wednesday.

In addition, Leo Athas, attorney for Bakalis's office, who sat in on earlier meetings between NEC officials and Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick on the charges, Wednesday did not endorse statements made by Martwick in a press conference Tuesday.

Tuesday, Martwick announced that he was ordering all physical punishment at Dwyer to cease immediately and called for State's Atty. Bernard Carey and Bakalis to join his investigation at Dwyer. Martwick also indicated that state funds might be withdrawn from the program because of the charges.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said,

If Saturday's fire referendum passes

service to the area, until a nearby station is completed, will probably come from either Station No. 2 or the yet-to-be-completed Station No. 3. Palatine fire officials estimated the 3 1/2-mile trip to the area could be made in seven to eight minutes. Longmeyer said the trip from Station No. 3 near Governors Lane and Higgins Road could be made in six to seven minutes.

The village plans to set aside approximately $250,000 for construction of another fire station in the Westbury development and for men and equipment. Longmeyer said establishment of the station may take one year.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert explained if the area is annexed to the HEFPD, petitions for addition to the district of areas inside the village, but outside the fire district will be filed in court approximately two weeks after the referendum. Then village officials would be ready to file a petition calling for establishment of the village department, Hofert said. The steps for transfer could be completed sometime in October, Hofert noted.

EVERY PIECE OF equipment owned by the fire district would be inventoried and listed in a deed, title or bill of sale. In return, village officials promise to take over the debts of the HEFPD, he said.

The district will remain as a legal taxing body, which will tax areas outside the village to be served by the village department. The district then would contract for services with the village department.

Areas now in the district are not to be annexed to Hoffman Estates. The village

Station No. 2 to be shut?

The only immediate change to be recommended for Hoffman Estates fire service after it is assumed by a municipal department will be the closing of Station No. 2 at Hassell Road and Rosedale.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said the rough draft of a budget he is preparing for the fire department probably will be presented to the village board finance committee at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Although some policy and operations changes may be considered on a long-term basis, few adjustments are likely in this budget since the village is assuming fire protection responsibilities in the middle of the fiscal year, he said.

Longmeyer previously had said he will recommend that the village board close Station No. 2 as soon as possible after Station No. 3, south of Higgins Road at Governors Lane, is in operation. The village was advised in a consultant's report last August that the two stations are too close together. The report, prepared by National Loss Control Service, urged abandonment of plans for the third station, or if that was impossible, a shut-down of the second once the third was in use.

It will urge continuance of the district's policy of having paid firemen on duty over a 24-hour schedule. At least for the present it will provide for continued dispatching of fire equipment by fire department personnel.

The National Loss report suggested one means of reducing fire department expenses would be to channel dispatching duties through the police department, since it also must provide 24-hour service. The option will be studied for possible adoption in the future, Longmeyer said.

Training currently provided by the district, such as for paramedics, also will be continued, said Longmeyer.

There is no indication the village will need to purchase any replacement equipment, or meet extraordinary expenses not normally included in the fire district's budget.

will never have taxing jurisdiction over these areas including the Windemere area unless they are annexed to the village, Hofert said.

It has been noted that if the referendum does not pass and a village department is created, residents in the Winston Knolls area would be doubly taxed — paying taxes to the PRFPD and a portion of the village tax for fire services.

Winston Knolls residents may vote at 100 E. Charleston Ln., Hoffman Estates. Windemere residents will vote at 2738 Canterbury Ct., South Barrington. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

a basketfull of cookies, milk and pork chops.

Of course, the wolf that lives in the forest loves pork chops, and does everything he can to get them, including dressing up as an elephant and an aardvark. He also disguises himself as Grandmother, for the familiar what-eyes-you-have scene.

Children from two dramatics classes put on two separate performances Friday playing the parts of Mimi and Billy, their friends, passengers, conductors and candyman on the train and the zookeepers who finally catch the wolf.

One of the leading ladies, Lori Cottone, said she liked the part when the mother kissed Mimi and Billy goodbye.

"You kiss the screen?" a little boy classmate asked, with obvious disgust.

Besides kissing the children, the movie mother literally handed them a basket of goodies and a suitcase. As the mother reached down with the items, they slid out from under the screen, into the children's hands.

"THEY ARE SO funny," Mrs. Rosenberg said of her young thespians. "The younger ones especially, are so uninhibited and put such feeling and emotion into it." One actress, Jenny Brenke, played Billy in the first performance, and "she adds a lot of character to the film," Mrs. Rosenberg said. Jenny takes her lines seriously, and even looks up when she says something about the sky, Mrs. Rosenberg added.

But Jenny said, "You don't know what you're doing when you're up there." She was excited about Friday's performance before parents and schoolmates. "When people are watching you, you get nervous," she said.

Others in the two dramatics classes echoed her sentiments.

"I'm embarrassed. Everybody from my first class is here," said Mary Kozin, who spent the time behind the scenes as sound director.

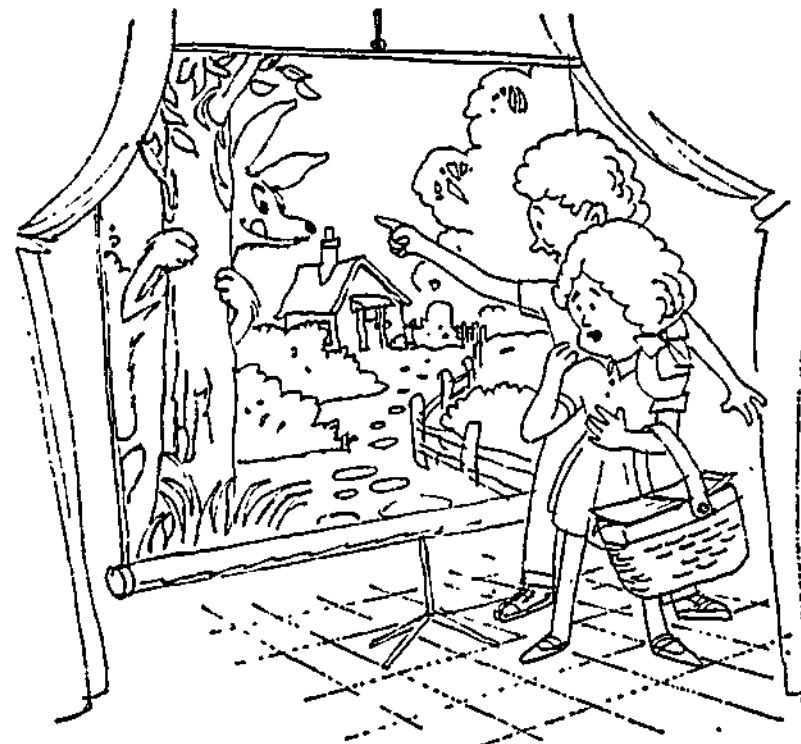

THIS WAS THE first time the class had been offered at the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Dist. 54 school. There were about a dozen children in each class, give or take a few because of vacations, Mrs. Rosenberg said. Only two shy boys were in each, so the leading male roles for both casts went to girls, who didn't seem to mind.

Long-haired Mehele Cook shrugged her shoulders in her oversized conductor's jacket. "I just pretend I'm a hippie."

THE CHILDREN have been pretending all through the summer session, Mrs. Rosenberg said. She started out reading stories to the class and discussing the characters. Then the students performed pantomimes and acted out situations Mrs. Rosenberg invented.

She also showed filmstrips and let the children re-enact the story later, as often as they wanted. These activities were all to help the children loosen up to prepare for the final production, she said.

WHO'S AFRAID of the big, bad wolf Lakeview School drama students when he's only part of a movie? "performed" with the film last week.

Village may face contempt charge over Westbury plan

Hoffman Estates village officials could find themselves back in federal court within one week facing potential contempt citations for failure to comply with a court-ordered development plan for Westbury.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter informed plan commission members Wednesday night that officials of the Meridian Development Co. had told her they would seek an order from Chief U.S. District Court Judge Edwin Robson for the village to proceed with the original development plan. Commission members have been hearing a petition by the village to upgrade the plan for the portion of Westbury including townhouses and single-family homes built on zero lot lines. The revision would provide for public dedication of almost all streets in that section.

The commission had expected to vote on the proposal July 24 but planning consultant Jerry Estes had not prepared the final draft of documents incorporating the change until that night. Commission members had ordered the documents delivered two days earlier to permit time to review them. Pres. Hayter said Richard Adashek, representative for Meridian, told her last week he might take the matter up with Judge Robson. He apparently waited in hopes of receiving a commission vote this week. When it was not forthcoming he told her he had already contacted the court and would seek the scheduling of a hearing today.

Commission chairman Richard Regan scheduled a special commission meeting for 9 a.m. Saturday at the municipal hall, 1200 N. Gannon Dr., to review a final drawing the commission told Estes to prepare at this week's meeting. Regan said later, the village faces no legal danger if a recommendation on the revision is presented to the village board Monday. He noted the board did not meet this week and said last week's delay did not make any difference in the date on which the village board receives the commission's recommendation.

The board then can present its decision to Meridian and Judge Robson within the next seven days, Regan said.

GETTING READY FOR the 10th annual Schaumburg Park District water show are six Sea Sprites, members of the district's synchronized swimming program. The show will be presented Friday night at Atcher Pool.

Sea Sprites

55 park district swimmers getting ready for Friday's big water show

by STIRLING MORITA

Synchronization is the key, and 55 Schaumburg Park District Sea Sprites have spent more than 50 hours each this summer in pool water putting arms and bodies in unison for the annual water show.

Girls ranging in age from seven to 17 practiced five hours a week for six weeks in the park district synchronized swimming program. When the water show neared, the pace intensified with some girls practicing as much as 2½ hours each weekday for three weeks.

Culmination of their hard work is in the show. Thirteen routines are planned for the show to be held at 8 p.m. Friday at Atcher Pool, 730 Springguth Rd. The 10th annual show's theme is "Free to Be..."

The Schaumburg Rotary Club will supply clowns for the event. About 12 mothers have been donating their time to sew costumes for the Sea Sprites. About 50 pool staff personnel will have participated in the show.

TICKETS ARE $1 for adults and 75 cents for children and are available at Atcher Pool. The rain date is Saturday. The park district program has grown from 17 in the original session four years ago to the present 55.

Martha Derda, synchronized swim instructor, does not get paid when the practices are three weeks in advance of the show, but does it for the love of the sport.

Mrs. Derda, who heads up the women's swimming program for East Leyden High School, explained it is not that difficult to train large numbers of swimmers to become one gracefully working machine.

THE SPORT TAKES the physical rigors of water polo and the grace of ballet, she noted. The girls, of course, must be good swimmers before starting out, and having the qualities of a gymnast certainly helps, she said.

"They're (the girls) really interested," Mrs. Derda said. "It's different than anything they've ever done."

Sea Sprites win 10 awards at AAU meet

Members of the Schaumburg Park District Sea Sprites came away recently with 10 awards over the weekend from the Central Assn. AAU Synchronized Swimming Meet at Ridge Park pool in Chicago.

Sea Sprites took nine figure competition places. In the 10-year-old and under category, Lisa Strama took third, Kelli Pritchett, fourth, and Karyn Becker, seventh.

In competition for 11- and 12-year-olds, Kim Stack placed fourth, Sherry Pritchett, sixth, and Gina Gobin, seventh.

In the 13- and 14-year-old category, Shelly Ingebreitson and Michaelino Trychta took sixth and seventh respectively. Miss Croll nabbed fourth in the 15- to 17-year-old competition.

Mrs. Derda sometimes demonstrates the moves she wants done in the water, teaching the girls basic stunts. But as they get older she tries to let them be creative and invent some of their own stunts.

"I enjoy every minute of it," said Mary Strama, 13, who is in her second year in the program.

Tasha Calabria, 12, who has been in the program since it started, said it was "really nice" and that practice was really not that tiring.

Mrs. Derda worked Monday to get all the girls synchronized for the finale number. Some of the music was from a Mario Thomas television special by the same name as the show.

Blood drive Aug. 16

Schaumburg needs blood of all types during a village-wide blood drive Aug. 16 from 4 to 9 p.m. at St. Marcelline's social center, 820 S. Springguth.

The goal of the drive, run by the village health department and the American Red Cross, is 250 pints. The last drive, held June 23, collected 191 pints, nine short of its goal.

Summer always is a slow season for blood drive because people are on vacation, said Mary Nagy, blood drive committee chairman. However, evening hours are more successful because people often stop by on their way home from work.

Schaumburg's quota this year is 12,000 pints, under an agreement with the Red Cross. This signifies contributions from 4 per cent of the population. If the village reaches this goal, then all the residents, their immediate families and dependents, and even their grandparents and grandparents-in-law, would be covered for blood. This includes those unable to donate blood and hemophiliacs.

Blood from the drive is processed by the Red Cross, at its processing center in Chicago.

Questions about eligibility for contributing blood or about cases with an immediate need for blood can be called in to the health department, 894-8268. Drive information is also available from Mrs. Nagy, 529-1243; Sue Berlet, committee co-chairman, 882-2634; or Nancy Larson, donor recruiter, 894-7081.

Low, moderate-income homes for elderly sought

Group to ask village take stand on housing issue

The Mount Prospect Village Board will be asked next week to go on record supporting restrictive low and moderate-income housing, primarily for senior citizens.

The village's community services and mental health commission Tuesday night will present a resolution adopted unanimously at its last meeting calling for subsidized housing in the village.

The commission anticipated the potential explosiveness of the issue by carefully wording the low-key resolution to give top priority in housing to persons who already live in Mount Prospect. "It's quite tight," said Dr. Conrad Mazeski, co-chairman of the commission, explaining that the intent is to aid current residents rather than attracting new ones.

The village board has previously taken a stand in favor of subsidized housing for the elderly, which is regarded as a non-controversial matter. The board has not taken a position, however, on subsidized housing for the general population, which could spark considerable debate.

The commission will recommend that any subsidized housing be available according to the following priority list:

- Senior citizens currently living in Mount Prospect.

- Other residents of Mount Prospect, below 65 years of age, who qualify for subsidies.

- Senior citizens related to village residents.

- Persons employed in Mount Prospect.

THE LAST CATEGORY is expected to be the focal point of opponents to subsidized housing, because it would draw nonresidents to the village. During the last local election campaign in 1973, low and moderate-income housing — with all its economic and racial overtones — was made a key issue.

Dr. Mazeski said low and moderate-income housing could take two forms: New apartment buildings specifically for that purpose, or subsidies to assist rent payments of residents at their present addresses. While the commission reiterated its earlier position that senior citizen housing should be constructed at the Central School site in downtown Mount Prospect — which the village board has earmarked for a public library — it also urged that any subsidized housing be scattered throughout the village rather than being concentrated in a single location.

The community services and mental health commission also will ask the village board to create a housing authority to oversee any subsidized housing program and to apply for a federal grant.

Included in the commission's resolution is a provision for an annual review of the housing program. "If it is not in the village's best interest, it would be gradually

Lincoln School work will be done when classes open

Renovation under way in the industrial arts wing at Lincoln Junior High School in Mount Prospect is expected to be completed by the time classes resume Aug. 28.

Delivery of some new materials, however, may extend into September.

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 Assistant Supt. J. C. Busenhart said September delivery is expected on practical arts equipment and some kitchen cabinets. Busenhart said he does not expect the late deliveries to interfere with the operation of classes in home economics and shop courses.

Remodeling in the industrial arts wing of the school was approved by the board of education in June. The work is being done by the district custodial staff and will cost about $21,000.

IMPROVEMENTS planned for the wing include:

- Increasing the number of kitchen stations in the home economics room from three to five including two new gas stoves.

- Construct a new demonstration table for the home economics room.

- Furnish rollaway cabinets for storage.

- Establish a living room unit in the home economics room, and install drapes and ventilating fans.

Busenhart said roofing work scheduled for three schools was delayed due to material delivery slowdowns caused by the recent cement truck drivers strike.

Preliminary work has been completed on the roofs at Lincoln, Gregory and Westbrook schools. Busenhart said the roofing contractor, Imperial Building Maintenance Inc. of Ingleside, told the district the roof repairs will begin soon now that the strike has ended and materials are becoming more readily available.

BUSENHART SAID this work will not affect school activities if it extends into the start of classes because none of the work is major.

Remodeling work at Sunset Park School is almost complete, Busenhart said, with office renovations finished and new computers ready for installation. The computers are being installed in rooms, rented to Westinghouse Learning Corp. for use by High School Dist. 214.

The rooms where the computers will be located were formerly occupied by computers operated by the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC). The NEC computers were dismantled when the NEC data processing program was dissolved this spring.

Parents voice support for Whipple's program

by WANDALYN RICE

A group of parents who support the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night as the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board continued its investigation of charges against the school.

In addition, representatives of Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick appeared before the governing board to tell them that John Whipple, director of the school in Arlington Heights, has been privately practicing psychology without a license in violation of state law.

At Herald press time, the NEC governing board was meeting in closed session with Whipple and his attorney. The board had not announced whether it would formally hear the parents who had supported the program.

Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent from Martwick's office, said that the charges about Whipple's private psychology practice are "very germane" to the board's investigation. In addition, Hennessey said Whipple has twice failed the state licensing examination for private psychologists, in 1968 and 1972.

Under Illinois law, for a psychologist to see patients in private practice he must have a Ph.D. and pass the state licensing examination. Whipple is a registered school psychologist, a registration which does not qualify him for private practice.

THE PARENTS who appeared before the board went into its meeting said the charges against Whipple and the Dwyer program are "hogwash."

The charges about Dwyer have been made by a group of present and former members of the staff at the school. The

Elaine Busse faces charges in child death

Elaine Busse, a former Mount Prospect resident, will be arraigned today in a Colorado court on charges stemming from the death of a 12-year-old child at a health ranch operated by the woman.

According to authorities in Grand Lake, Colo., Mrs. Busse is charged with negligent homicide, practicing medicine without a license and performing massages without being a licensed masseur. The June 30 incident allegedly occurred at the Winding River Ranch in Grand Lake, about 60 miles northwest of Denver.

Marshall Gary Myers, of Grand Lake would not release details surrounding the incident but said the charges were filed by the district attorney for the Fourteenth Judicial System in Colorado after a 12-year-old girl died at the Busse ranch.

Myers said Mrs. Busse, who is free on bond, will be advised of her rights and have the charges against her explained by a district court judge at her arraignment today. Myers did not say what the possible penalties would be against Mrs. Busse if she is convicted.

MYERS SAID Mrs. Busse has been operating the health ranch about five or six years. This is the first time any malpractice charges have been filed against her or the ranch, according to Myers.

Myers added that no desist order has been placed on the ranch. Deputy District Atty. Greg Long, who is in charge of the case, could not be reached for comment Wednesday on whether such an order would be issued.

Before moving to Colorado Mrs. Busse and her husband Robert Sr. owned and operated The Gift Box Ltd., 107 S. Main, Mount Prospect, for 17 years.

Mrs. Busse's husband, who is not charged in the incident, is the brother of the late William Busse, president of the Mount Prospect State Bank until his death last year.

Special meeting tonight on school board aspirants

A special meeting of the School Dist. 21 Board of Education is set for tonight to interview applicants for the seat on the school board recently vacated by Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Reid resigned her post after nearly nine years on the school board to take a job with the district as public relations and volunteer coordinator.

Dist. 21 serves besides Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Seven residents had applied for the available school board seat by last Thursday, the deadline set for accepting applications. Supt. Kenneth Gill, however, said applications also will be taken until tonight's meeting, so others may indicate an interest in the position.

Residents who submitted letters of interest last week were Gerald McGlothlin, (Continued on Page 5)

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said,

THE HIGHLAND FLING was one highlight of a folk School summer program. The 35 youngsters are members of Nancy Carlson's international folk dance class.

Young folks swing in folk dance festival

by LINDA PUNCH

The strains of the Hora, Misirlou, Highland Fling and Virginia Reel filled the hallways of Devonshire School this week as 35 youngsters presented a folk dance festival.

The youngsters — students at Devonshire, Einstein and St. Zachary's schools in Des Plaines and Our Lady of the Ransom in Mount Prospect — are members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 39 folk dance class. They topped off the six-week course with a performance Tuesday morning for parents and fellow students.

Course instructor Nancy Carlson, a folk dancer in college, taught her students dances from several countries including the United States, Israel, the Philippines, Greece, Scotland, Mexico and Serbia.

"Besides learning the dances, we studied a little bit about the country," she said. "We learned about the people and why they do that type of dance."

Mrs. Carlson first taught the class last summer with an enrollment of 12. She noted that while no boys participated in the class last year, six boys enrolled this summer.

"ALL THE BOYS have been real enthusiastic — I'm hoping maybe next year we'll get some more," she said.

The Devonshire gym filled slowly Tuesday morning as parents and friends filed in for the 9 a.m. performance. The folk dance students waited nervously in the hallway with some youngsters practicing steps while others shifted excitedly from foot to foot.

The youngsters, dressed in white shirts and blouses and red and blue skirts and pants, walked into the gym in pairs after an introduction by the principal. They formed a circle and launched into a swinging version of "Oh Susanna."

The children sang and clapped as they skipped and whirled their way through the dance. One boy strained as he reached to grab the hands of his slightly taller partner.

THE TINKLING — a Filipino dance

involving hopping over and between bamboo poles rhythmically tapped on the ground — followed. The girls skillfully danced and turned between the poles, rarely missing a beat. One young spectator, apparently awed by their agility, commented to a friend that "you could get your toes chopped off."

The Misirlou, a native dance of Greece, got off to a false start when a dancer bumped into the record player. The rhythmic twisting dance was followed by the Highland Fling, where students whirled to the accompaniment of Scottish music.

A Serbian folk dance, The Milanovo Kolo and the American Virginia Reel, climaxed the program. Spectators were also treated to the traditional Irish jig performed by Irish folk dancer Celene Fitzgerald, a visiting cousin of student Ann Caine.

Mrs. Carlson spent most of the performance kneeling beside the record player, nodding her head in time to the music. Despite her appearance of outward calm, one student remarked "she was more nervous than we were."

Throughout district schools

Special education program expanded

Special services for handicapped children in School Dist. 21 are being expanded this year to include a new class for intermediate students with serious learning disabilities.

The self-contained class will be added to a similar class set up last year for primary students at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove. Children from other areas of the district will be bused to Longfellow to participate in the special classes.

Besides Buffalo Grove, Dist. 21 serves Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

The new intermediate learning disabilities (LD) class is intended to accommodate children in the upper elementary grades who have previously been sent to Summit School near Elgin, according to Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 director of special services. Summit School specializes in teaching children with learning disabilities.

Wynn defined learning disabilities as basically neurological problems that cause children to have trouble taking in information and processing or communicating it accurately.

For example, he said, some children with a learning disability perceive images that are backward or upside down or hear sounds that are scrambled.

IN PROVIDING a special LD class for intermediate children as well as primary youngsters, Wynn said it is hoped that teachers will be able to correct the students' problems or at least, help them to cope with the difficulties well enough to be able to participate in regular junior high school classes.

"The goal of much of our special education program in the district is early identification so that teachers can work with the children to remediate their difficulties or the child can be taught ways to adapt learning procedures to his problems that will allow him to get back in the regular classroom as soon as possible," Wynn said.

Although the primary and intermediate

LD classes are self-contained, Wynn said there is a high priority placed on integrating children in the classes as much as possible with the rest of their classmates in art, physical education and other activities.

"Children recognize when they're receiving special treatment and it's a better climate for them if they have as much contact with regular classes as possible," he said.

RESOURCE LD teachers are available in all 17 Dist. 21 schools and at area high schools as well for children with continuing problems that affect them throughout their school careers.

According to Wynn, another reason for setting up the intermediate LD class is to provide the necessary special instruction for children in the upper elementary grades moving into the district.

Parents of children known to have or whom they suspect of having one or more learning disabilities should contact the Dist. 21 special services office at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

On five educational topics

Schools schedule inservice workshops for teachers

Five half-day workshops, designed to provide teachers with inservice training on specific educational topics, have been scheduled for the 1974-75 school year in Mount Prospect Dist. 57.

The dates and subject matter for each workshop were formulated this summer by a special committee composed of teachers, principals, department chairmen and Assistant Supt. Dwight W. Hall.

Each workshop will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m. and students will be required to attend classes for only three hours the morning of each workshop day.

THE FIRST WORKSHOP, scheduled to focus on special education, will be conducted at Lincoln Junior High, Sept. 24. Committee objectives for the workshop are to present special education formats for staff discussion and to design improved means for meeting the needs of exceptional children.

In order to evaluate the district's special education program, the committee has suggested that a periodic survey be made of principals and the special education director, Shirley Gundersen. The survey will determine the degree of contact between special education teachers and classroom teachers.

The district's aim is to increase communication between classroom teachers and special education teachers to improve teaching methods and compare programs.

The district's second workshop, Oct. 7, will center on a discussion of visual aids. The workshop will acquaint staff members with available audio-visual material, provide training in the operation of equipment, clarify questions about circulation procedures, and motivate greater utilization of central facilities.

"THE PURPOSE of this workshop is to demonstrate materials and techniques and to clarify circulation procedures as they are practiced by the Dist. 57 central library resource office and by the Northwest Educational Cooperative film library," according to the committee outline of the workshop series.

A third workshop, Oct. 24, will be a grade-level meeting to be conducted at each school and designed to allow each grade-level group of teachers an opportunity to discuss curriculum matters.

The fourth workshop, scheduled for Feb. 4, will be reserved for parent-teacher conferences at each school. The meeting will be the annual mid-year conference to inform parents of their child's progress.

The final workshop will be held April 23 and will involve a discussion of how well the district is proceeding in its efforts to meet its educational goals as outlined in a report last year to the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

THIS WORKSHOP will include an updating of progress toward implementing student and program goals as outlined in the district's report, which was required of all districts by the OSPI last year.

Student goals included the continued development of communication skills, such as listening, speaking, reading and writing; the development of positive attitudes to nurture physical, mental, social and emotional health; and instruction to develop an understanding of cultural and environmental heritage.

The workshops will be collectively evaluated by a committee at the end of the school year. The committee, which will be appointed in September to succeed the existing group, also will plan the district's 1975-76 workshop schedule.

Temporary reprieve given for zone code violations

Mount Prospect developer J. M. Brickman has been given a temporary reprieve for alleged violations of the village's zoning code.

Peter Billing, deputy code enforcement officer in the building department, said Tuesday a notice warning of possible violations at the former site of the Brickman office building, 905 E. Euclid Ave., was sent to Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank, which holds the trust to the property. The notice allows five days to comply with the village zoning code by removing the building or converting it to a house.

Brickman allegedly used part of the building as a warehouse, which would be illegal under the village building code. The use came to the attention of inspectors after a fire June 18 caused an estimated $23,000 damage to the structure.

Earlier, the building department sent a notice to Brickman, who is beneficiary of the trust, giving him 10 days to comply with the zoning code or face legal action. The deadline passed Friday, but the building department followed up the warning with formal notice to the Wheeling institution.

Old Guard units never die—they just fade away

by JOE SWICKARD

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday evening at the unit's 63-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of confrontation between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, state adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hangar used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fa-ligues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Caen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

LT. Col. Edward M. Janns, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyant, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinell, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

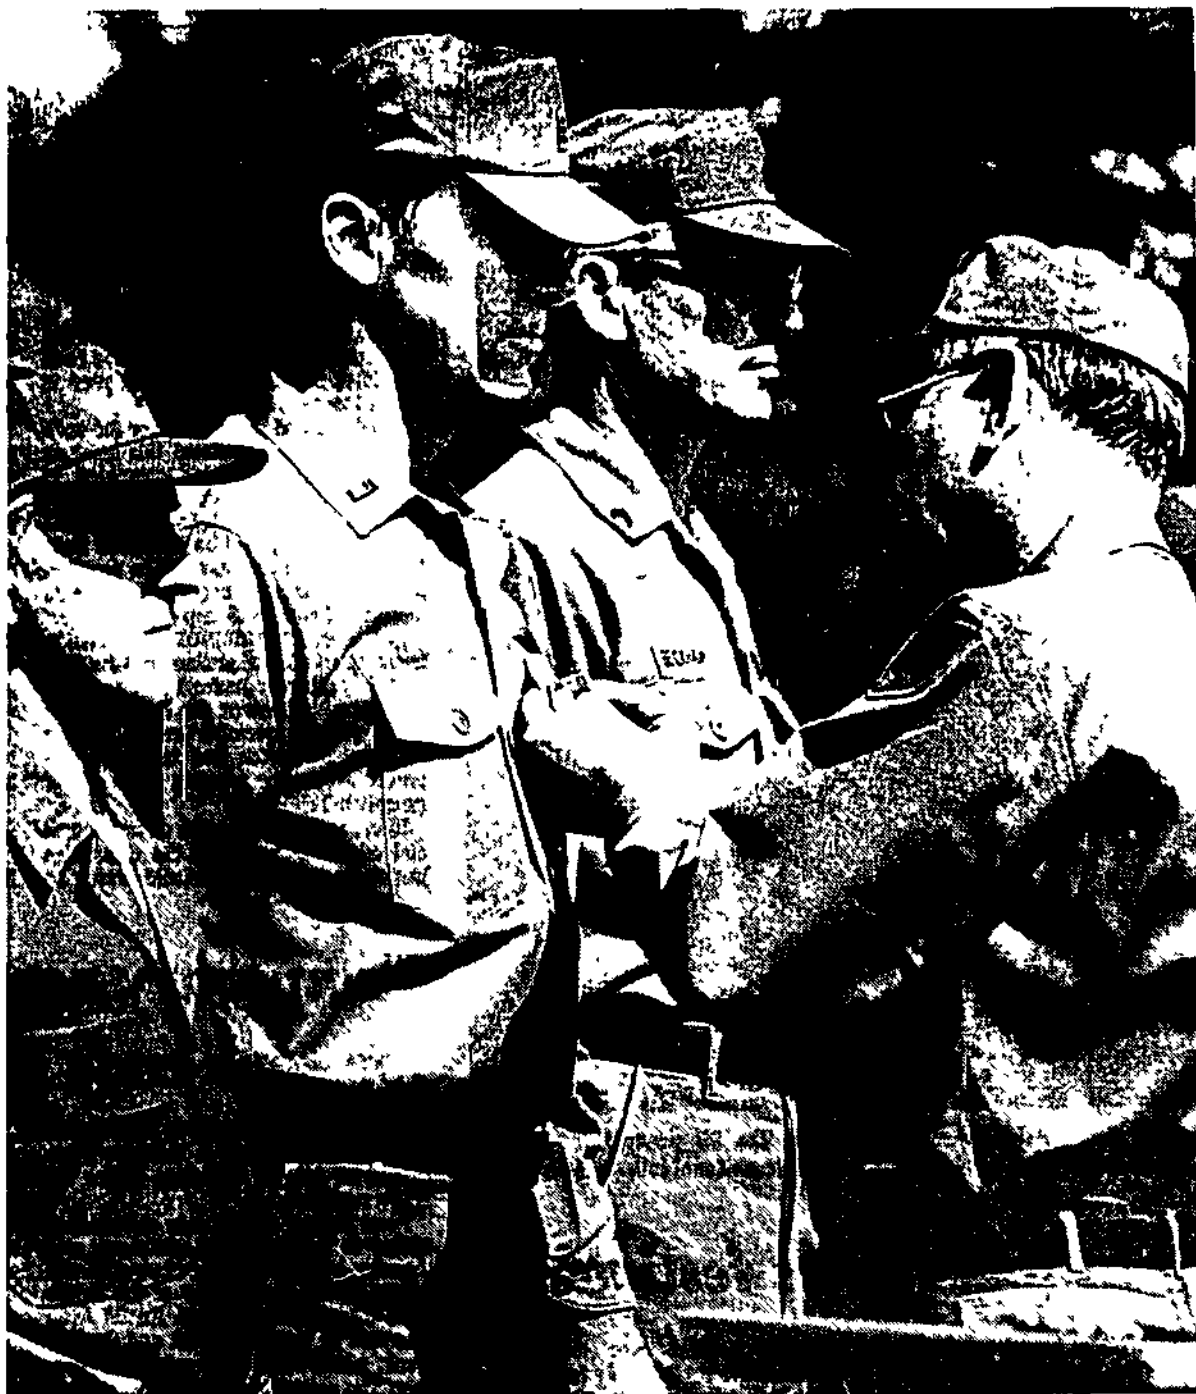

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

Annex hearing of high-rise site set Aug. 22

A public hearing on a request to annex to Mount Prospect a 3½-acre site near the Randhurst Shopping Center that has been earmarked for a high-rise apartment building has been rescheduled for Aug. 22.

The new date was set by Carolyn Krause, chairman of the village's zoning board of appeals, after the petitioner, J. M. Brickman Mid-west Corp., Mount Prospect, asked for a continuance. The hearing is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The property, on Kensington Road east of Elmhurst Road, is zoned for multifamily and commercial use in unincorporated Wheeling Township. Brickman plans to build a 13-story tower with apartments and office space.

Also before the zoning board is a petition by Brickman to annex a small shopping center on Euclid Avenue, east of Elmhurst Road. It, too, is in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Library board meeting changed to Aug. 8

The Mount Prospect Library Board has rescheduled its Aug. 8 meeting to Aug. 15. The change of date was required because a quorum will not be available Aug. 8.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the staff room of the library, 14 E. Busse Ave., Mount Prospect.

Man's injuries critical after train accident

Lorenz C. Rogas, 51, of Mount Prospect, remained in critical condition Wednesday at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights from injuries incurred when he was struck by a train.

Rogas, of 404 S. I-Oka Ave., was in the intensive care unit of the hospital with severe head injuries.

According to Mount Prospect police, Rogas walked around a lowered guard rail near the Main Street crossing of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in downtown Mount Prospect when he was hit by a southeast-bound express train.

Witnesses said Rogas appeared to be looking for a train from the opposite direction.

The engineer of the train told police he sounded the bell and horn in an effort to warn Rogas, but was unable to stop the vehicle. The train reportedly was traveling 5 to 10 miles per hour.

The incident occurred around 6 p.m. Monday, but police reports were not available until Wednesday.

Burglars take drugs from Victor Pharmacy

Mount Prospect police are investigating a break-in at a pharmacy in which an unknown quantity of drugs was taken.

According to police, a 16-inch diameter hole was cut through the ceiling of Victor Pharmacy, 1060 W. Northwest Hwy. over the weekend. The area where drugs are kept was "ransacked, with drawers dumped and items knocked over," police said.

It was speculated that tools such as wrenches or hammers were used to gain entrance through the roof. The store is wired for a burglary alarm, but it was inoperative at the time of the break-in.

Des Plaines redeveloper Paroubek dies in crash

by JOHN MIAES

James I. Paroubek, a leader in the effort to make redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines a reality, was killed early Wednesday in an auto accident. He was 51.

Paroubek, who was often called the "father of downtown redevelopment" was killed after his auto went out of control about 5:20 a.m. and struck a light pole on Lee Street, just south of Forest Avenue.

The accident occurred a few blocks from his home at 1036 Oakwood Ave. Paroubek was traveling south on Lee Street when his late model Cadillac struck a hole in the street and rammed the pole in front of Allen's Store for Men.

He was on his way to O'Hare Airport to catch a plane to Detroit for a business trip.

MANY CITY officials and local business leaders were saddened by the news of Paroubek's death, but the general comments were typified by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

"This is certainly a tragedy for Jim's family and friends, but it is even more of a tragedy because some of the things that he has worked so hard on for so many years are on the brink of fruition and now he will not be here to see them. He was a dear and personal friend and a dedicated resident of Des Plaines," the mayor said.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 5:50 a.m.

There was some speculation among police that Paroubek may have suffered a heart attack at the wheel, causing him to lose control of the car. He suffered internal injuries, according to police reports.

In addition to his involvement in Des Plaines redevelopment plans, Paroubek owned a string of Ace Hardware stores in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. The Des Plaines store is at 604 Lee St.

Paroubek was president of the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., a group of prominent local businessmen who for more than a decade, have worked to foster the planned overhaul of the city's downtown area.

HE WAS ALSO instrumental in the 1968 formation of the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a not-for-profit organization composed of 40 to 50 businessmen who each pledged $5,000 or more, made possible the acquisition of property sites vital to the redevelopment push.

His first dealings with plans to facelift the Des Plaines business district came in 1966 when, after city council approval of the redevelopment idea, Paroubek volunteered to become president of the redevelopment association.

Superblock, a major cog in the redevelopment machine always held Paroubek's firm support.

City officials boast the $14 million superblock will showcase the new downtown Des Plaines with its 10-story office-retail store building that will be bounded by Leo, Pearson and Ellinwood streets and Prairie Avenue.

That redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the country was a prediction of Paroubek's. His office was a gallery of artist's renderings and architect's plans depicting the ultra-modern buildings and complexes he hoped would one day be downtown Des Plaines.

He held his ground stubbornly for several years in the face of project foes who looked upon redevelopment as a profit-seeking venture.

"SOME PEOPLE don't like change," he once said. "And I don't blame them."

But we're going to get the population up to 100,000 and without planning, we'll have hodgepodge."

Paroubek is survived by his wife, Florence, and three daughters.

Visitation will be Friday afternoon and evening at Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets.

A funeral Mass is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Church, 794 Pearson St., and burial will follow in All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines.

The local scene

Voters may sign up at center

The Cook County clerk's office will register voters today and Friday at the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center, Rand and Central roads.

A voter registration van will be at the shopping center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Potential voters must be at least 18 years old and residents of their voting districts for at least 30 days. Naturalized citizens must provide citizenship papers.

Village calendar on the move

The village community calendar is being moved one block east. Village officials said the calendar, in the municipal parking lot on Northwest Highway in downtown Mount Prospect, is a distraction to passing motorists. It will be relocated near the water tower on Maple Street.

phased out," Dr. Mazeski said.

He said there is a demonstrated need for subsidized housing, to aid both the elderly living on a fixed income and families below the poverty level who are attempting to cope with inflation.

A SURVEY TAKEN by the village's senior citizen services office six months ago showed that two-thirds of the respondents would move into housing for the elderly if it were available.

In addition, a study based on the 1970 census of Mount Prospect and neighboring Prospect Heights indicated that there were 98 families receiving public assistance, and a total of 254 families, or 2 per cent of the population, below the federal-defined poverty level. Moderate-income is regarded as $8,000 to $10,000 for a family of four, with low income considered below $8,000.

The community services and mental health commission plans to take a survey of the village to determine just how many persons would qualify for subsidies.

The only subsidized housing in the village now is at the Huntington Commons Apartments, 1200 S. Elmhurst Rd., where 108 of the 324 rental units are leased with federal subsidies covering as much as one-third of the rent.

Urges bypass highway to east

Douglas Dodds proposes alternative to underpass

by KURT BAER

Arlington Heights banker Douglas Dodds has proposed an alternative to the planned Arlington Heights Road underpass at Northwest Highway—a project which he says will have a disastrous effect on some downtown property.

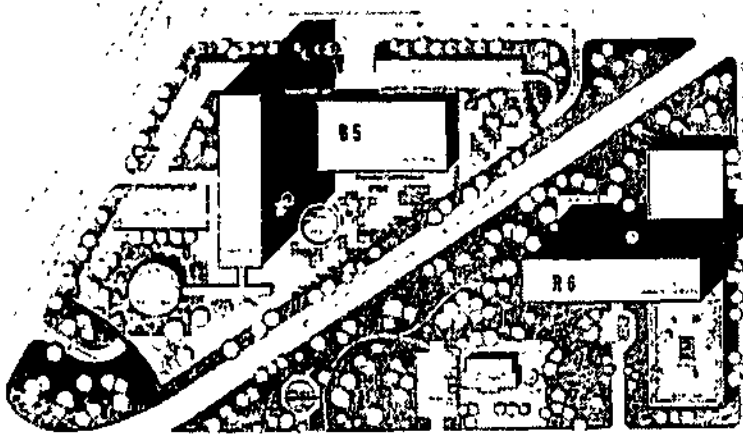

Dodds' plan is to build a new bypass highway east of the Arlington Heights Road-Northwest Highway intersection. Belmont Avenue, two blocks east of Arlington Heights Road, would be joined with an underpass and then rerouted northwest through a six-block area, finally meeting Arlington Heights Road at Eastman Street.

By eliminating the Arlington Heights Road underpass, Dodds says, the value of commercial property fronting on Arlington Heights Road will be preserved.

"There's no question that this underpass is going to be very detrimental to land values in the central business district," he said Wednesday.

"ONCE BLIGHT sets in, it spreads. Possibly Davis Street and North Arlington Heights Road could be affected," he said.

Dodds is president of the First Arlington National Bank, 1 N. Dunton Ave.,

A BYPASS HIGHWAY from Northwest Highway (lower left) to Arlington Heights Road has been proposed as an alternative to a planned Arlington Heights Road underpass. High-rise apartments and commercial buildings would flank the bypass, according to banker Douglas Dodds' plan.

Schools will be spruced up by fall

Dist. 25 elementary and junior high schools in Arlington Heights will be spruced up before students return to classes this fall.

Painters are putting fresh coats of paint in the classrooms while gardeners are preparing the grounds for new plants. In some schools workers are even knocking down a few walls to create different size rooms.

Many of the maintenance projects started this spring and will last throughout the summer, said James E. Monroe, director of building grounds and auxiliary services.

It will cost more than $100,000 for the remodeling, maintenance and restoration projects.

At Wilson School a new ceiling will be installed in the lower wing. The school will also have new stage draperies and lights. Both projects are estimated to cost $7,400.

Rand Junior High School will have new stage lights, costing the district $1,300.

MORE SERIOUS REPAIRS are being made at Ridge School, which is in need of a new heating system. The school will convert to "radiant wall" type heating system that is believed to be better than the current one, according to Monroe. New heating at Ridge will cost $39,500.

The walls are being removed at Greenbrier, Dryden and Westgate schools.

One wall removed at Greenbrier will create a larger class-study area. Two entrances will be made between three rooms at Dryden School and two walls will be removed to connect a room between the library and a learning center.

New draperies will be put up in 15 of the district's schools. These include Berkeley, Dunton, Greenbrier, Ivy Hill, Kensington, North, Park, Patton, Ridge, Westgate and Windsor schools and Rand, South, Thomas and Miner junior high schools.

Bids have been sent out to build a warehouse at South Junior High School and for asphalt resurfacing of areas at Rand and Miner junior high schools and at Windsor School.

Bushes have been planted at Olive School. North School will have honey-suckle plants and 25 plants have been ordered to replace dead ones at Rand.

Coffee set for parents

A coffee will be held Aug. 8 by the Northwest Suburban Montessori for parents interested in the school program.

The coffee will be held at 10 a.m. at 127 N. Evanston in Arlington Heights.

School officials will add a full day care program to take the place of the current half-day sessions and infant classes on Saturdays.

Montessori School is a not-for-profit parent-operated organization which has been serving the area for 10 years.

For further information, call Peggy Sleser at 308-2788.

and has been active in various plans for redevelopment in downtown Arlington Heights.

The bypass proposal was presented to village officials a year ago, but has come to light again because of recent progress toward the 12-year-old goal of an Arlington Heights Road underpass, a $5 to $8 million project that would require both state and federal highway funds.

Dodds said the Arlington Heights Road underpass would have the following disadvantages:

- It would wall off properties along the road between Sigwalt Street and Eastman Street including: the village hall, Hill-Behan Lumber Co., the vacant property west of village hall, Bowen Hardware, the two gas stations north of Northwest Highway, Herzog Roofing and the First Arlington drive-in bank.

- It would have to be very deep, posing a flooding hazard, and wide, taking away high-priced property along the right-of-way.

- It would close Davis Street at Arlington Heights Road.

- It could eliminate turning movements at Arlington Heights Road and Northwest Highway.

"I JUST DON'T see this thing at all when the other plan has so much merit," Dodds said.

The 12-block bypass area bounded by Arlington Heights Road on the west, Belmont Avenue on the east, Northwest Highway to the south and Eastman Street on the north, would have to be acquired and cleared by a specially-created redevelopment authority, he said.

Dodds' proposal calls for high-rise residential housing on the east side of the bypass, and new office and commercial buildings on the west side.

"This would combine the underpass with a really fine downtown improvement, and without destroying a lot of

Change Sherwood? You're barking up the wrong tree

by KURT BAER

The name alone should tell you that trees, big arching leafy green trees, are near and dear to residents of Sherwood.

Most of the 129 oversized lots that make up the subdivision are shaded by tall elms, and George Thieman, current president of the Sherwood Improvement Assn., says the arboreal atmosphere is one of the area's most prized assets.

"We take care of many of the trees ourselves, even though, when they're on the parkway, they're the village's responsibility," says Thieman, who resides at 1122 N. Patton Ave.

Sherwood is one of the three so-called "Sacred S's" in Arlington Heights (the other two being the Scarsdale and Stonegate subdivisions.) It is one of the village's most expensive and fashionable neighborhoods. As one observer remarked a number of years ago, "Even the dogs in Sherwood snub each other."

Along Sherwood's winding streets you'll find no sidewalks or street lights and that fact, says Thieman, is very important to the people who live there.

"Everybody is absolutely opposed to them. Open space is a reason they bought in the area, and they want to keep it that way," he says.

THE OLDEST homes in Sherwood date from the early 1930's. Many of the newer homes at the northern end of the subdivision went up in the late

Parents voice support for Whipple's program

by WANDALYN RICE

A group of parents who support the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night as the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board continued its investigation of charges against the school.

In addition, representatives of Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick appeared before the governing board to tell them that John Whipple, director of the school in Arlington Heights, has been privately practicing psychology without a license in violation of state law.

At Herald press time, the NEC governing board was meeting in closed session with Whipple and his attorney. The board had not announced whether it would formally hear the parents who had supported the program.

Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent from Martwick's office, said that the charges about Whipple's private psychology practice are "very germane" to the board's investigation. In addition, Hennessey said Whipple has twice failed the state licensing examination for private psychologists, in 1968 and 1972.

Under Illinois law, for a psychologist to see patients in private practice he must have a Ph.D. and pass the state licensing examination. Whipple is a registered school psychologist, a registration which does not qualify him for private practice.

THE PARENTS who appeared before the board went into its meeting said the charges against Whipple and the Dwyer program are "hogwash."

The charges about Dwyer have been made by a group of present and former members of the staff at the school. The charges include allegations that children are physically abused and beaten with large wooden paddles, that staff at the school are unqualified and that staff members engage in unprofessional behavior.

Most of the charges have centered on Whipple, the psychologist who heads the program. Martwick has said Whipple is unqualified for his job because he does not have the certificate required for a school administrator in Illinois.

Mary Lou Ghanam, who has a child in the program, said, "I don't believe any staff member ever abused a child and if they did they were the ones John (Whipple) fired. I don't consider John only the director of a school my son went to. I consider him my friend."

Other parents said they had questioned

their children about paddling or other physical abuse and that their children said they had never seen any. One father said that his son was sometimes disciplined with a paddle "But they cleared it with me first."

DEE OGLESBY, a teacher who worked with Whipple in beginning days of the Dwyer School program in 1968, also appeared and expressed her support for Whipple. She said she has worked with Barbara Hickey, one of Whipple's chief accusers. Mrs. Oglesby said, "Barbara is very traditional in her methods with children. I'm not sure she could be very flexible if something unusual or unorthodox were going on."

Earlier today officials from State School Supt. Michael Bakalis' office said that Dwyer School "is not in danger of losing state aid" because of the charges which have been made about the school.

Robert Shoup, in Bakalis' Springfield office, made the statement Wednesday.

In addition, Leo Athas, attorney for Bakalis' office, who sat in on earlier meetings between NEC officials and Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick on the charges, Wednesday did not endorse statements made by Martwick in a press conference Tuesday.

Tuesday, Martwick announced that he was ordering all physical punishment at Dwyer to cease immediately and called for State Atty. Bernard Carey and Bakalis to join his investigation at Dwyer. Martwick also indicated that state funds might be withdrawn from the program because of the charges.

Parents hit program for deaf children

by JUDY JOBBITT

Poor communications between parents of deaf children and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization administrators have forced several parents to complain about the programs set for their children.

Parents of seven deaf children at an informal meeting Tuesday night expressed concern that only one method of teaching deaf children is offered through NSSEO.

Over the past five years, NSSEO has changed to a method of teaching known as "total communication." This method uses a combination of sign language, finger spelling, lip reading and vocal communication.

Prior to the switch, NSSEO primarily used the oral method of teaching deaf children by stressing lip reading and vocal communication. Oral education does not use or teach other visual methods of communication such as sign language.

The debate over total and oral methods of teaching deaf children goes beyond NSSEO. It is discussed between teachers of the two methods throughout the nation.

ACCORDING TO THE parents, John Wightman, NSSEO executive director, sent them a letter when NSSEO started changing to the current method, stating that there always would be an oral class available for deaf children. However, two years ago they were informed that only the total communication method would be used.

Wightman said Wednesday he never wrote a letter stating "there would be an oral program forever. I don't think I'd ever say anything is forever. We told parents we would try to offer a dual-track program for the interim period," he said.

He said it was a decision by the entire regional area that includes five special education districts in the North-Northwest suburban area to change to the total approach. "I believe total to mean including oral to the best of the child's ability," he said.

The parents Tuesday night recognized that the total approach includes some oral methods, but they said oralism is lost to the manual methods of signing and finger spelling because deaf children can pick up these methods of communication more easily.

A SPEECH THERAPIST, who has worked with several of the parents' children, said it is difficult to find a good oral program. "So many kids failed, not because oral is wrong, but because it's hard to find a good oral program," she said.

She said it is unrealistic to expect a child to learn both oral and manual methods, but that if parents want their child to become an oral adult, he should be placed in an oral program. "The parents should have the choice, not the school district," she said.

Wightman said he would like to offer both programs, but with the few number of deaf children in NSSEO, it is not feasible. There currently are 55 deaf and 64 hard of hearing children in the NSSEO area.

"We felt that all children could benefit from total," he said.

CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER Frank Cardinell of Rolling Meadows receives a medal for meritorious service from Maj. Harold Patton, adjutant general of the National Guard Wednesday at the last awards ceremony to be held at the Arlington Heights Nike Base. The base will become an Army Reserve center in September.

Guard units never die—just fade away

by JOE SWICKARD

The two children sat in the shade of the sycamore tree and their mother focused the movie camera as their father marched forward to receive his citation.

The last awards ceremony for the First Battalion of the 202nd Air Defense Artillery of the Illinois National Guard took place Wednesday ending the unit's 83-year history. The 500-man unit that has been stationed at the Arlington Heights Nike Base under the command of Col. Julius Schwartz, is being deactivated and the men of the unit being reassigned throughout the continental United States.

The facility, recently a source of confrontation between the village, the park district and the Army, will become an Army Reserve training center serving the Northwest suburban area.

MAJ. GEN. Harold A. Patton, state adjutant general for the Guard, arrived at the base by helicopter for the last ceremony. The helicopter shone in comparison to the nearby hanger used as a garage and the rusting quonset huts.

The 12 men to receive medals and awards stood at attention in pressed fatigues adorned with flat rank insignia used in the field. For the final ceremony, their red flag with battle streamers commemorating action at Caen, the Ardennes and the Rhineland was flanked by the Illinois state flag and the American flag.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Janas, Buffalo Grove, joined the 202nd in 1948 as a private. He stepped forward Wednesday as operations officer for recognition of meritorious service.

Capt. John Wyatt, of Rolling Meadows, was decorated for "exceptional service" in his four-year tour with the unit.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Cardinell, of Rolling Meadows, was cited for meritorious service in his year with the 202nd.

Several of the other men were already wearing the insignia and headgear of their new units as they were called forward.

The family and a couple of officers were the only observers of this last ceremony. Until the Reservists take command of the base, it is almost deserted.

The guard post at the main gate, when the hut is not padlocked, is manned by a privately hired guard.

Behind the ranks of the 202nd, a Nike missile shell was already rusting. The base flag was sun bleached and wind-whipped into frayed ends.

THE BARRACKS are, for the most part, empty and starting to show neglect. The tennis court has weeds coming through the cement and grass is edging onto the basketball court.

Before February, the base was the headquarters for the air defense command for the Detroit-Chicago population and industrial complex.

As an officer walked out to the ceremony, he remarked, "This is the last of the 202nd. Sort of like Custer's last stand."

He was asked if it didn't more closely resemble the British leaving India. He chuckled, "Yes, it does at that."

Special meeting tonight on school board aspirants

A special meeting of the School Dist. 21 Board of Education is set for tonight to interview applicants for the seat on the school board recently vacated by Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Reid resigned her post after nearly nine years on the school board to take a job with the district as public relations and volunteer coordinator.

Dist. 21 serves besides Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Seven residents had applied for the available school board seat by last Thursday, the deadline set for accepting applications. Supt. Kenneth Gill, however, said applications also will be taken until tonight's meeting, so others may indicate an interest in the position.

Residents who submitted letters of interest last week were Gerald McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Mary Arlene Weil, 624 Ivy Ct., A. M. Mansukhani, 24 St. Armand Ct., all of Wheeling; Susan Tripp Rose, 175 Timber Hill Rd. and Janet Grass, 331 Cottonwood Rd., both of Buffalo Grove; and Arnold Drohny, 3250 Volz Dr. and Jeanne Peters, 2413 E. Dundee Rd., both of Arlington Heights.

The special meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the administration building. The interviews will be open to the public.

The School Board must appoint Mrs. Reid's replacement by Aug. 24 or the county superintendent will call a special election. The appointee will serve until the regular school board election next April.

Illinois graduates

Three students from Arlington Heights recently were graduated from the University of Illinois at the Chicago Circle campus.

They included Bibi Tiger of 2315 E. Olive; Bruce A. Luxon of 2218 Goebbert Rd. and John Athanasopoulos of 1303 S. Kaspar.

They were among 645 undergraduates to receive their degrees.

Des Plaines redeveloper Paroubek dies in crash

by JOHN MAES

James I. Paroubek, a leader in the effort to make redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines a reality, was killed early Wednesday in an auto accident. He was 51.

Paroubek, who was often called the "father of downtown redevelopment" was killed after his auto went out of control about 5:20 a.m. and struck a light pole on Lee Street, just south of Forest Avenue.

The accident occurred a few blocks from his home at 1036 Oakwood Ave. Paroubek was traveling south on Lee Street when his late model Cadillac struck a hole in the street and rammed the pole in front of Allen's Store for Men.

He was on his way to O'Hare Airport to catch a plane to Detroit for a business trip.

MANY CITY officials and local business leaders were saddened by the news of Paroubek's death, but the general comments were typified by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

"This is certainly a tragedy for Jim's family and friends, but it is even more of a tragedy because some of the things that he has worked so hard on for so many years are on the brink of fruition and now he will not be here to see them. He was a dear and personal friend and a dedicated resident of Des Plaines," the mayor said.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 5:50 a.m.

There was some speculation among police that Paroubek may have suffered a heart attack at the wheel, causing him to lose control of the car. He suffered internal injuries, according to police reports.

In addition to his involvement in Des Plaines redevelopment plans, Paroubek owned a string of Ace Hardware stores in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. The Des Plaines store is at 604 Lee St.

Paroubek was president of the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., a group of prominent local businessmen who for more than a decade, have worked to foster the planned overhaul of the city's downtown area.

HE WAS ALSO instrumental in the 1968 formation of the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a not-for-profit organization composed of 40 to 50 businessmen who each pledged $5,000 or more, made possible the acquisition of property sites vital to the redevelopment push.

His first dealings with plans to facelift the Des Plaines business district came in 1966 when, after city council approval of the redevelopment idea, Paroubek volunteered to become president of the redevelopment association.

Superblock, a major cog in the redevelopment machine always held Paroubek's firm support.

City officials boast the $14 million superblock will showcase the new downtown Des Plaines with its 10-story office-retail store building that will be bounded by Lee, Pearson and Ellinwood streets and Prairie Avenue.

That redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the country was a prediction of Paroubek's. His office was a gallery of artist's renderings and architect's plans depicting the ultra-modern buildings and complexes he hoped would one day be downtown Des Plaines.

He held his ground stubbornly for several years in the face of project foes who looked upon redevelopment as a profiteering venture.

Sherwood area residents oppose 'improvements'

1950s and 60s, and there are individual homes still being added to the subdivision.

Even the most modest home in Sherwood will be priced in the $60,000 to $70,000 bracket, and some of the larger new houses reach into the high 90's and up.

Compared with other parts of the village, turnover in Sherwood is low. Flooding is a problem in parts of the subdivision, particularly south of Watling Street, Thieman says.

"The flooding problems have intensified with increased building on the hill, north of Watling," he says.

A new storm sewer system for the subdivision is part of the village's $16 million flood control plan. Once built, the existing combined sewer system would then be limited only to sanitary sewage.

DIRECTLY EAST of Sherwood, across Kennicott Boulevard, stands the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged. Plans to add 700 more apartment and cottage-type housing units to the nursing home over the next 10 years apparently are not a major concern to residents.

"We know what the plans are, and I've never heard any objections to them," Thieman says.

Vigilant opposition to sidewalk plans and some dissatisfaction with the village's schedule for tree trimming top the list of civic problems important to Sherwood residents.

"Oh, there is one other thing," says Thieman. "Last year when they had that rock group at Arlington Park, the decibels that they put out were very annoying."

That's the atmosphere in Sherwood — aylvan quietude. It's a cool little corner of Arlington Heights.

Underpass alternative proposed

valuable property," he said.

Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, who has been negotiating with state and federal highway officials over funds for the underpass, said Wednesday that the cost and difficulty of acquiring the 12-block bypass area would be monumental.

The new right-of-way would mean displacing a number of residents who almost certainly would oppose the plan, Hanson said.

"We couldn't even get five homeowners to go along with the first senior citizens' housing site," he said, referring to residents in the block between Dunton, Evergreen, St. James and Fremont streets that was first suggested for a planned low-rent senior citizens housing development.

HANSON ALSO SAID that the Arlington Heights Road underpass would not seal off either village hall or the parking lot opposite it, since driveways to both properties are located along Sigwalt Street.

The village has a long-standing plan to acquire the Hill-Behan property, and proposals to close Davis Street at Arlington Heights Road have been talked about for years, he added.

Hanson also said it was premature to discuss the depth or width of the underpass, since preliminary engineering for the project has not been completed.

The Arlington Heights Village Board is to consider the recommendation of its finance committee Monday night that the engineering firm of Alstot and March be hired to do the preliminary engineering work. The underpass design is expected to cost about $50,000, money which village officials say probably will be recouped through state and federal funds.

The chairman of the finance committee, Trustee Frank Palmatier, said

Wednesday that acceptance of Alstot and March as engineers will commit the village board to the Arlington Heights Road underpass, provided state and federal highway authorities agree to fund the project.

"I think it will be clear to everyone that, if we go ahead with these engineers, we're committed to the project unless the state and federal funds don't come through," he said.

Palmatier said he thought Dodds was being "overly fearful" about the drawbacks of an Arlington Heights Road underpass, and he also referred to the number of residents who would be displaced by the bypass as a "severe disadvantage" in Dodds' alternate plan.

"THE BENEFITS of the Arlington Heights Road underpass are such that we have to accept the possibility of some drawbacks. But I don't think there is anything we couldn't overcome by rearranging the traffic pattern downtown," he said.

Once the preliminary engineering work is completed, the state will hold public hearings on the underpass project. The hearings probably will not be held before late fall, Palmatier said.

Actual construction of the underpass, if approved, may be as much as three years away.

Dodds said he plans to object to the underpass project when the public hearings are scheduled, and that he may be joined by other village business leaders.

"I don't like to always be in opposition," he said. "But I wonder why I can't get a fair hearing for the plan I've proposed."

Palmatier said that village trustees have considered the Belmont bypass and decided that the "best alternative" was still an underpass on Arlington Heights Road.
